Union Papers Upheld in Airing Views On Politics

Supreme Court Rules for CIO in Taft-Hartley Test; Quits for Summer

By The Associated Press

The Supreme Court ruled yesterday that the Taft-Hartley Act does not forbid political partisanship in newspapers financed out of labor union funds.

Unanimously the court added that if the law did do that the constitutionality of the ban would be highly questionable.

The case had been intended by both the CIO and the Government as a direct test on the validity of the act's general prohibition against political expenditures from union treasuries but in that respect it fell flat. The court said it did not have to go into the constitutional question to make its ruling. It simply held that the law does not forbid the acts alleged as a violation.

Thus, at the start of the season of heavy political warfare, unions and Government are left to make their own guesses as to how far unions may go in political spending. Many unions have planned ambitious programs during the campaigns.

The high court quit for the summer after handing down the ruling so that there is no chance of a definitive decision in time for the main campaign weeks. The court next meets again the first Monday in October, which would not allow time to process a new case ahead of the November elections.

Along with its political expenditures ruling, the court yesterday upheld 7 to 2 the Taft-Hartley law's requirement that unions register and file financial statements with the Secretary of Labor. The dissenters were Justices Black and Douglas.

It side-stepped, however, a ruling on the companion requirement that principal union officers file affidavits saying they have no Communist affiliations, if they are to have use of the National Labor Relations Board.

Those rulings came in an order by the court declining to review a decision by a three judge special court here.

The lower court had upheld the non-Communist affidavit provision as well as the financial statement requirement. The high court, however, said the case could be decided strictly on the basis of the financial statements and there was no need to go into the non-Communist affidavit matter.

The attack on the validity of those two requirements of the law was made by the National Maritime Union after the National Labor Relations Board refused to place its name on the ballot in two collective bargaining elections on Great Lakes shipping lines, at the M. A. Hanna Company and the Wilson Transit Company. NLRB turned them down on the grounds

District Youth Killed in Fall At Yosemite Park

C. Judson Groff, 19-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Chalmers F. Groff, 3802 24th st. ne., fell to his death in Yosemite National Park last Saturday while climbing Capitan Cliff.

C. J. Groff

The youth, who had finished his freshman year at George Washington University, was working for the National Park Service for the summer. He was accompanied by Elliott L. Amidon, 19, of 1526 Irving st. ne., when the accident occurred, Park Service officials said.

A native of Washington, Groff was a graduate of McKinley High School. Groff leaves his parents, two sisters, Virginia, 20, and Diane, 4 months, and his grandmother, Mrs. Annie S. Groff, 5300 Kansas ave. nw. Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

U. S. Pay Rise Still Issue To 500,000

By Jerry Kluttz

The pay raise is still the big news for Federal workers. Since 500,000 or more Government employes are not covered by the Classification Act, representatives of these groups want to know if they, too, will get the $330 annual increase.

This is a round-up of Federal worker groups that are and are not included in the pay bill:

About 15,000 or more employes in the Veterans Administration's department of medicine and surgery—doctors, dentists, nurses and the like—will get the $330 raise even though they are not under Civil Service.

Customs clerks covered by the Bachrach Pay Act of 1928, will get the $330 raise;

Immigration and Naturalization inspectors whose salaries are fixed by the Reed-Jenkins Act of 1928 will also get $330 boost;

Collectors of Internal Revenue will get the same pay raise;

Charwomen will get an increase of 20 cents an hour;

Per diem employes whose wages are fixed by wage boards will not get the pay raises.

Clerical mechanical employes—several hundred are in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing here—will get an increase of 20 cents an hour.

Employes of the Tennessee Valley Authority are not included in the pay bill.

$2 Realty Tax Rate Seen Holding for Year

Gamblers Surprised at Sentences

Expected Crackdown By Justice Holtzoff Fails to Materialize

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

District gamblers yesterday looked on with surprise as the expected "crackdown" on numbers writers who refused to "talk" in the special grand jury probe of gambling failed to develop.

At least seven of nine persons who appeared for sentencing on numbers charges yesterday before District Court Justice Alexander Holtzoff were called before the special jury last week in the hope they would "cooperate" with gambling information, in return for leniency.

But there was no general indication yesterday fo special leniency for those who "cooperated," or severe penalties for those who did not.

While two of the nine defendants—they received the only two straight jail sentences—were cited by Justice Holtzoff for "not cooperating" with law enforcement authorities, one person commended for "cooperating" received a heavier sentence than a woman who was reprimanded for "not cooperating."

In the other cases there was no apparent indication of special treatment either way. All defendants had pleaded guilty.

While there was no comment on the sentences from United States Attorney George Morris Fay, who

McCormick Calls For Selection of Taft With Stassen As Running Mate

Post Reporter

Philadelphia, June 21.—The fate of four major candidates for the Republican presidential nomination was tied up tonight with four significant off-the-convention-floor developments.

They were:

1. Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan made it clear that he is in the presidential race by issuing a statement calling on the GOP to give the Nation "the forward-looking program which opportunity requires."

2. The convention's credentials committee backed New York Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's claim to Georgia's 16 delegate votes. This was a setback for Ohio's Senator Robert A. Taft, who had contested a pro-Dewey decision of the Republican National Committee. The vote was a close 26 to 24.

3. Blasting both Vandenberg and Dewey, Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of the Chicago Tribune, urged a Taft-Stassen ticket with youthful Harold E. Stassen, former Governor of Minnesota, running for Vice President. Stassen, he said, was not mature enough to run for President.

4. Taft partly offset the Dewey gain when the credentials Committee "without dissent" agreed to seat a pro-Taft eight-vote Mississippi group headed by Perry Howard, Negro attorney of Mississippi and Washington, D. C. A "lily white" delegation had challenged the Howard group before the national committee without success.

Draft in Making, Sigler Says

Michigan's Gov. Kim Sigler followed Vandenberg's statement with an announcement that a "draft Vandenberg" movement was in the making among unpledged "balance of power" delegates to the convention.

Sigler and other Michigan delegates accepted Vandenberg's statement as assurance that he would not upset their "draft" plans.

Vandenberg issued his statement to the press through his son, Arthur, jr., who said it would be his father's "last word."

The most significant sentences in the statement by the President pro-tem of the Senate and chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee were:

"Above all, we must not falter in our leadership for peace. I will do all I can to those ends."

In some quarters the statement was interpreted as an indirect answer to the proposal by Colonel McCormick of a Taft-Stassen ticket.

Text of Statement

The text of the Vandenberg statement:

"I am happy to be in Philadelphia and at this great Republican convention which has a date with destiny.

"My interest is that the party shall face the facts and give America the forward-looking program which our opportunity requires.

"Above all we must not falter in our leadership for peace. I will do all I can to those ends.

"Since my personal attitude toward the nomination remains the same as always, I shall have nothing further to say upon this subject.

"I add my warmest greetings to my friends, my deepest attachment to the Republican Party and my

GOP Rules Group Headed By Colladay

Believed First Major Convention Post to Go To a District Delegate

By a Post Reporter

Philadelphia, June 21.—Edward F. Colladay, Washington attorney, today became chairman of the rules committee of the Republican National Convention.

Colladay, elated with the assignment, said it was the first time to his knowledge that the chairmanship of one of the major convention committees had gone to a District delegate.

Two measures of the assignment's importance immediately were made evident:

1. On the serious side, the rules committee voted to ask the convention Tuesday to double the size of the District's delegation to the 1952 Republican convention. The present delegation has three members; the rules committee decided there should be six.

2. On the less serious side, into the wind-up of the rules committee meeting walked red-headed Billy Brown, 9-year-old Philadelphia newsboy, with an armful of papers. He promptly asked if Colladay was the man who was going to be the next President. Colladay and Billy traded big grins and handshakes.

Colladay was a chairman without a chair.

The rules committee met in a basement room of Convention Hall after adjournment of the morning session. There were no chairs for anyone. Committee members stood in a circle as Colladay called the group to order.

He took over as temporary chairman at the direct request of Carroll Reece, chairman of the

Tackling Foreign Affairs

Stronger Planks on Housing, Civil Rights Put in Platform

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Philadelphia, June 21.—The Republican resolutions committee today voted strengthened housing and civil rights planks into a hotly contested platform and then waded into night session on the party's foreign affairs stand.

Awaiting approval was the so-called Vandenberg plank pledging continued assistance to "other peace loving nations to restore their economic independence and to preserve and perpetuate the human rights and fundamental freedoms."

The committee took time out following an embattled four-hour session on domestic provisions of a 2400-word "working draft." A similar fight threatened on the party's "most international" foreign plank when the committee resumed after a brief dinner recess.

The working paper "leaked" to the press while the committee was in afternoon session, but Chairman Henry Cabot Lodge, jr., warned newsmen major changes were voted by the committee and more may be adopted tonight.

Among the shifts voted in what Lodge described as "big arguments" on domestic policies:

1. Addition of a public housing commitment to a plank Lodge described as now roughly in line with the House-sidetracked Taft-Ellender-Wagner long-range housing bill.

2. Elimination of Federal aid to education from the platform.

3. A tougher civil rights stand and defeat of a move to strike that plank completely from the bill.

The revised housing plank recommends Federal aid to the States for slum clearance and low rental housing "wherever there is a need that cannot be met either by private enterprise or by the States and localities.

The civil rights plank was tightened up reiteration the party's 1944 stand for a Fair Employment Practices Commission and specifically asking legislation to end lynching or any other mob violence.

The plank calls for abolition of the poll tax and opposes the idea of segregation in the armed forces but does not specifically ask legislation to do either.

In tentative form, the platform leads off with a brief preamble asserting the aim of the Republican Party "to establish and maintain peace, to build a country in which every citizen can earn a good living with the promise of real progress for himself and his family and to hold out as a beacon light for mankind everywhere the inspiring American tradition of liberty, opportunity and justice for all."

The foreign policy plank is dedicated to "the preservation of a free America in a free world of freemen."

In committing the party to continuance of the foreign aid program, the tentative platform says this must be done "within the prudent limits of our own economic welfare" and on "a basis of self-help and mutual aid."

The plank promises appropriations only for those foreign commitments "made by legislative enactment."

Criticizing the Administration's conduct of foreign affairs as lacing "clarity, competence of consistency," the platform promises "businesslike and efficient" administration and cooperation to end politics "at the water's edge."

It reaffirms faith in collective security against aggression, "welcomes cooperation but spurns appeasement," and calls for elimination of the Big Four veto in the peaceful settlement of disputes:

Labor—the Taft-Hartley act is described as "a sensible reform of the labor law" but continuing study is pledged to improve labor-management legislation "in the light of experience and changing conditions."

Farm—long-term legislation including an accelerated program of "sounder" soil conservation and protection of "reasonable" market prices.

Defense—maintenance of our

Home Rule To Be Urged In Platform

Auchincloss Plan Reported to Be Basis For Republican Plank

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Philadelphia, June 21.—Self-government for the District will be urged in the 1948 Republican campaign platform, it was disclosed tonight.

GOP platform writers were reported thinking specifically of the Auchincloss Home Rule bill when they agreed to recommend the District self-government plank to the Republican convention. It says:

"We favor self-government for the residents of the Nation's Capital."

The plank was approved by the convention's resolutoins committee at the start of a night executive session.

Culbertson Plan Rejected

The group voted down the proposal of Mrs. William S. Culbertson, District delegate to the convention, for adding to the home rule plank an appeal for national representation for the District.

The three-member District delegation had placed high on their list of convention objectives a platform plank to say:

"We favor granting to the District of Columbia voting representation in the Congress and in the Electoral College."

The home rule plank, if finally confirmed as part of the platform—and such confirmation is probable—will be the first District suffrage demand to become a part of any Republican platform.

Modeled on Warner Proposal

In its wording, the home rule plank showed that it had been closely modeled on the one proposed last week by Sturgis Warner, Washington attorney, representing the Washington Home Rule Committee, an organization which strongly supported the Auchincloss bill.

Warner had recommended this language:

"We favor restoring self-government to residents of the Nation's Capital."

The new plank could become a powerful springboard for the hopes of Representative James C. Auchincloss (R., N. J.), home rule sponsor, for early favorable House action on the plank next year.

While the Auchincloss plan had leadership backing in its stormy trip to the House this year, it nev-

Convention Hall, Philadelphia, June 21.—The Republican legions, scenting a victory in November, whooped it up tonight as their orators lashed the Roosevelt and Truman administrations and raised foreign policy as an issue in 1948.

Gov. Dwight Green of Illinois, keynote orator of the twenty-fourth GOP National Convention, charged that America was "losing the peace" because of the Administration's confused and incompetent foreign policy.

"The cold war we face today," he said, "is the lusty child of the New Deal's rendezvous with communism . . . The New Deal cannot escape this indictment by double-talk about a bipartisan foreign policy. The Republican Party was not present at Teheran, Yalta or Potsdam."

"Atta-boy; yelled a delegate and cheers arose from the arena."

Clare Boothe Luce, playwright and former member of Congress from Connecticut, called President Truman "Gone Goose" and Henry Wallace "Stalin's Mortimer Snerd."

His Bolt Ignored

Both Governor Green and Mrs. Luce ignored Wallace's bolt from the Democratic Party.

The Iawan, having been lashed at this convention as a New Dealer, doubtless will get another rawhiding when the Democratic convention opens in July.

The Conventoin Hall was a blaze of color as tonight's session opened. Flags were everywhere, suspended from the ceiling, the balcony rails, and around the huge booth holding the television cameras. A huge basket of gladioli stood in front of the rostrum used by Governor Green and Mrs. Luce. However, there was only one picture in the entire hall—a lithograph of Abraham Lincoln.

Despite the torrent of criticism, Governor Green indorsed the heart of Mr. Truman's current foreign policy—the Marshall Plan. At least, he did not oppose it.

Glamorous Mrs. Luce told the convention that President Truman was a "gone goose."

But the Nation, she said, should be grateful that Mr. Truman had become Vice President in 1944, "with the gallant aid of the big city bosses.

"If he had failed," she continued, "our President today would be—Mr. Wallace. Yes, Providence wrote straight with crooked lines when Pendergast gave us colorless

Mrs. Smith Takes Strong Lead for Maine Senator

Portland, Me., June 21 (AP).—With about half of today's Maine primary vote in, Representative Margaret C. Smith widened her lead in a four-way race for the Republican United States Senate nomination.

Closest of her three male opponents was Gov. Horace Hildreth.

Mrs. Smith, in her fifth House term, wants to be the Nation's second elected woman Senator.

Returns from 300 of the State's 620 precincts gave Mrs. Smith 14,981 votes to 8923 for Hildreth. Former Gov. Sumner Sewall had 5383 and Albion P. Beverage 2002.

Former State Finance Commissioner Frederick G. Payne had a narrow lead for the GOP gubernatorial nomination.

He led George D. Varney, Roy L. Fernald, Neil S. Bishop and Robinson Verrill.

In the only major Democratic contest, Leland B. Currier led Biddeford's Mayor Louis B. Lausier.

Representative Hale, seeking Republican renomination in the First District, was far ahead of three openents.

In the Second District, Mayor Charles P. Nelson of Augusta was far ahead of James B. Perkins, jr., James E. Glover and Eldwin A. Wixson.

Hundreds of Area Youths Enlist in Military Reserves

Boards Could Be Set Up Within 2 Weeks After Authorization

By Frank Wilder
Post Reporter

Hundreds of Greater Washington youth rushed to join military reserves yesterday as a means of gaining exemption from the draft law awaiting President Truman's signature.

A District Selective Service official, meanwhile, predicted that draft boards could be operating here within two weeks after they were authorized.

The District National Guard did the biggest business in recruitments among all the local military enlistment centers here. About 164 signed up by closing time last night. The office, at the National Guard Armory, was to stay open "as late as necessary" beyond 11 p. m.

Under the new law, anyone in an organized reserve unit before the President signs the bill, is exempt from the draft.

Varying increases in applicants were experienced also by the Army recruiting station, Pennsylvania ave. and 10th st. nw.; the Naval Reserve Procurement Office at the Naval Gun Factory, Naval Air Reserve at the Anacostia air base and

'Escape Hatch' Still Open for at Least a Day, Officials State

Army officials predicted last night that the "escape hatch" from the draft—enlistment in the National Guard or any drilling unit of the organized reserve—will be open at least through today.

Men in the 19 through 25-year-old group of eligibles can become exempt from call by enrolling in the Guard or active Army, Navy, Marine Corps or Air Force reserve unit before President Truman signs the draft bill.

Reports received here from all over the country indicated that recruiting offices were flooded with inquiries about National Guard enlistments and that applicants were lined up at some points.

How long the "hatch" will remain open was not known last night. Late in the afternoon White House Press Secretary Charles G. Ross announced that the President would not sign the bill Monday.

He declined comment on a report that Mr. Truman would wait the full 10 days he has to sign legislation in order to permit the Guard and other units to fill up to authorized strength. Ross indicated

Russians Accept British Plan To Discuss Currency for Berlin

Berlin (Tuesday), June 22 (AP).—The Russians accepted early today a British proposal for four-power discussions of uniform currency reform in Berlin, the Soviet-licensed German news agency announced.

Berlin is the seat of four-power rule in Germany.

The agency said Marshal Vassily D. Sokolovsky, the Russian commander in Germany, proposed that representatives of the United States, Britain, France and Russia meet at 2 p. m. (8 a. m., E. D. T.) today.

The Western Allies' reply to Sokolovsky was not made known immediately, but it was assumed they would accept the original proposal for the meeting made last night by Gen. Sir Brian Robertson, the British Military Governor.

Robertson bluntly told the Russians they had no more rights in Berlin than the Western Allies.

He suggested to the Soviets that they join a four-power meeting to discuss the currency situation in Berlin which now faces the prospect of two kinds of currency—that introduced beginning Sunday by the Allies in western Germany and currency soon expected to be produced by the Russians.

Meanwhile, Adolf Hitler's old reischsmark still is legal tender in the Russian zone of Germany. Marshal Sokolovsky wrote identi-

Convention Still Wide Open As Bands Play, Cameras Grind

By Alexander F. Jones

Philadelphia, June 21.—The noisy band has just finished a rousing tune, the great crowd here in the Municipal Auditorium is cheering, and the television cameras and news reels are grinding furiously as gorgeous Clare Boothe Luce starts her speech under the glaring platform lights.

It is all very colorful and exciting for the audience. But the purpose of this convention is to select Republican nominees for President and Vice President. All of this business today, Tuesday, and most of Wednesday is window dressing. The delegates seem to enjoy it and certainly the speakers are having a grand time pointing with pride to Republican accomplishments and scornfully pouring the heat on the record of the Democrats and the New Deal. It is their brief moment in the sun and they are making the most of it.

As usual, the important business of this convention will be transacted outside the hall. In the next 48 hours every major candidate and his chief aides will be busier than bird dogs jockeying for delegates in an attempt to win the greatest of all prizes—the Presidential nomination.

And there is certainly a tempting block of delegates to be won

Col. R. R. McCormick, Who Plumped for Taft-Stassen Ticket, Known as an 'Aginner'

Muscular, mustachioed, 6 ft. 4 in. Col. Robert Rutherford McCormick, who yesterday plumped for a Taft-Stassen ticket, is, what, in the Deep South is known as an "aginner."

He was against our entry in the First World War and he was against participation in the League of Nations after the war. He opposed prohibition and said the New Deal menaced the Bill of Rights.

McCormick

In 1940 with France prostrate and Britain threatened, he fought moves for United States intervention and predicted it would take up to five years to train and equip a United States Army of less than half a million men.

Wendell Willkie was to him "a foreigner" and last October he was quoted as terming Eisenhower, Dewey and Stassen, "part of the Wall Street crowd."

The colonel has now apparently changed his mind as far as the Minnesotan is concerned.

Last year he cast eyes in the direction of Gen. Douglas MacArthur as possible presidential timber. Following a tour of the Pacific, he declared Taft was the strongest man the Republicans have.

McCormick was born July 30, 1880, in Chicago, the grandson of Cyrus H. McCormick, inventor of the harvester, and of Joseph Medill, who had bought a quarter interest in the Tribune in 1885.

He traveled widely as a youngster with his father, Robert S. McCormick, Ambassador to Austria-Hungary, France and Russia.

He graduated from Groton one form ahead of Franklin D. Roosevelt. In 1903 he was graduated at Yale and continued law studies at Northwestern University.

At the death of Robert W. Patterson, editor of the Tribune in 1910, McCormick and his cousin, Joseph Medill Patterson, gained control of the publication. Then third in circulation among eight Chicago papers, the Tribune rose to top rank in less than 20 years.

During the difficulties with Mexico in 1916, McCormick served on the border as a major and when the U. S. entered the World War he served on the staff of General Pershing, seeing action as an artillery officer. Later he commanded Fort Sheridan near Chicago as a colonel.

Lauded by his followers—and they number in the thousands over the wide midwest area—as a 100 per cent American, McCormick is known to his critics as a 1000 per cent obstructionist.

During the height of the war, the Tribune was charged with revealing Navy secrets in a story about the Battle of Midway.

A Federal grand jury, sitting in Chicago, cleared the newspaper after five days of investigation.

Green Flays Truman Policy

Harry Truman, instead of red Hank Wallace."

Mrs. Luce divided the Democratic Party into three parts— the Jim Crow wing on the extreme right, the Moscow wing on the left, and the Pendergast center.

"This is currently being master minded by Stalin's Mortimer Snerd, Henry Wallace."

The night session was opened with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner by Eleanor Steber of the Metropolitan Opera. Dennis Cardinal Dougherty, venerable Archbishop of Philadelphia, offered a prayer asking divine guidance for the delegates, to the end that their work would be for the welfare of the country.

A flurry was caused just before this by the arrival of Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan. Reporters and photographers surrounded him on the platform. The Michigan delegation caught on eventually, and set up a cry of "Yeah, Vandenberg!" One delegate carried the Michigan standard to the platform.

James Melton, another Metropolitan star, gave the crowd "Great Day," Schubert's "Ave Maria" and wound up with the favorite of four years ago, "God Bless America."

It was now time for the oratorical thunder.

Governor Green, despite the heat, was wearing a double-breasted blue suit as he strode to the platform. He got a cheer on his first sentence.

"We are here," he said, "to nominate the thirty-fourth President of the United States."

Called Strange Alliance

As he got into his speech, Green began to work on the New Deal. He called it a strange alliance that was held together by "bosses, boodle, buncombe and blarney."

Green never mentioned the late Franklin D. Roosevelt by name, but he didn't have to.

"It (the New Deal) promised peace again and again and again, when it knew war to be inevitable," Green said, and the crowd laughed.

"The only promises that were really kept," he contined, amid more laughter, "were those it gave to Joe Stalin."

The hilarious mood continued as Green went to work on President Truman.

"As its boat sinks," he said, "the skipper's piano still pounds out 'Meet Me Next Year in Dreamland.'"

'Not on Our Back'

Green's indorsement of the Marshall Plan for European relief was only midly applauded. He got a much bigger hand when he said: "We cannot permanently support the world. Our task is to put the world on its feet, and not on our back."

Taking up the New Deal's failures in the domestic field, Green charged that it had no plans to meet emergencies but to shackle and regiment American business. He then used language that brought back memories of Wendell Willkie, who was nominated by the GOP in this hall eight years ago.

The New Deal, Green said, "can never learn that only an unregimented economy can be strong, and only a strong economy can keep us free."

What the delegates really wanted to hear—as they showed by their applause—was a clarion call for a Republican President, and all-out denunciation of their rivals in office.

Stand Up Cheering

Green talked for a solid hour, and the perspiration was streaming down his face when he ended. The delegates stood up cheering, Illinois standards were held aloft, and the band played the "Illinois Victory Song."

Golden-haired Mrs. Luce, who followed Green to the mikes, got a burst of laughter with her description of Mr. Truman as a "gone goose."

Her first sarcastic reference to Henry Wallace brought boos.

When she called Wallace "Stalin's Mortimer Snerd," Mrs. Luce spaced her words like a finished actress and garnished them with a laugh-provoking sneer.

"Troubadors of Trouble"

A yell of delight arose from the arena when Mrs. Luce said that "Democratic presidents are always troubadors of trouble, crooners of catastrophe."

"We Republicans," she said, to win another burst of acclaim, "believe that peace can be brought to a great section of the world, by electing a president who will show the simple courage of saying what he means and meaning what he says both to people overseas and to us at home."

Mrs. Luce precipitated a demonstration for Senator Vandenberg just after poking fun at Roosevelt for saying he got along fine with Stalin, and at Truman for saying "I like Old Joe."

Gave Him Eastern Europe

"Of course, they liked him," she said, with vast sarcasm. "Didn't they give him all eastern Europe . . .

"We tremble to think how much more they would have given him if Senator Vandenberg and Foster Dulles and other Republican statesmen had not put some backbone into the New Deal State Department."

The Michigan delegates jumped to their feet, cheering, at the mention of Vandenberg. A good many other delegations joined in the applause.

In closing, Mrs. Luce gave the crowd a start.

"Let us recall the words of President Roosevelt," she said.

She paused and then added "Theodore Roosevelt . . ." Well, that was all right, and after holding their breath the delegates cheered.

The long-awaited sessions began this morning.

It was 11:30 o'clock when Walter S. Hallanan, arrangement committee chairman pounded his gavel and called the convention to order.

Like all conventions, it was late in getting under way.

Meyer Davis and his white-shirted musicians, perched in a bandstand near the roof, had beguiled the delegates with "I've Been Working on the Railroad," "Yes, Sir, That's My Baby," "Glory, Golry Halleujah" and the sure-fire "Dixie."

Now Political Gospel

The first real whoops arose from the convention when Hallanan said: "We are back in Philadelphia to name the next President of the United States."

The men and women gathered out in the arena had applauded such statements before-in '32, '36, '40 and '44.

In those years, however, there was no heart, no conviction behind the handclaps.

This time the words of Hallanan were taken as political gospel, as a verity like the rising of the sun each morning.

Nominee Mystery

Yes, they agreed, the GOP nominee selected here was going to be the next President of the United States; but who that nominee would be remained an exciting riddle even among the candidates.

Gov. James H. Duff of Pennsylvania, welcoming the delegates, recalled Philadelphia's glorious history, and sought to black out the talk of "deals" and "bargains" with a touch of idealism.

He called on the delegates to emulate the Founding Fathers, and to put principles above personalities and "the welfare of the country above any personal or private ambitions."

The orchestra played "This Is My Lucky Day" and National Chairman Carroll Reece moved onto the rostrum.

An orator of the old school, the kind who cries "Geh-rate Nayshun" with arms spread wide, Reece declared that the American people had been led astray back in 1932.

He didn't mention Franklin D. Roosevelt. He did, however, assail the "false leaders" of that period, and he said that the voters had been lured away by "the most persuasive demagoguery of modern times."

Despite Reece's effort at eloquence, however, the delegates listened with only one ear. The other ear was aimed at a neighbor, and doubtless was taking in talk about real business of the convention—the presidential nomination.

Reece finally broke off his oration and got down to the routine business of selecting committees and officers of the convention.

The earlier selection of Green of Illinois as keynoter was ratified. He would be on hand tonight to operate on the Democrats and rend them limb from limb.

Crowds Jam Elevators Which Jam

By a Post Reporter

Philadelphia, June 21.—Everything that goes up doesn't come down. Not in Philadelphia. The elevators seem to run only one way. Crowds jam the lobbies at the elevators in every hotel. A few venturesome souls manage to locate freight elevators. At the Bellevue-Stratford many ride eighteenth-floor express cars to the top—walk down to their floor levels below.

Hazards of vertical transportation have been increased by painters at the Bellevue-Stratford. The staircases are being painted. Delegates aren't superstitious. They crawl in and out beneath painters' ladders. . . . But they can't slide down banisters loaded with wet paint.

One elevator at the Warwick dropped past the main floor with an overload, half way to basement level. One occupant wailed at an apparently left-wing delegate, "You're always going too far." The passengers had to be helped up from the stuck car. Another jammed elevator, in another hotel, stuck for 35 minutes with perspiring delegates inside.

The hottest man at the Republican convention today was a Sioux chief—with an international touch.

It was hot here for the Republican opening, so hot that many a delegate and nearly all the newsmen peeled to their shirts—and wished they could peel further.

But Chief William Spotted Crew, an alternate delegate from Pine Ridge, S. Dak., showed up in full Indian dress.

The chief also wore some beads. A heritage from his ancestors, eh?

"No," said our honest Injun. "They come from Czechoslovakia."

"Have you heard?" is an opener that is whispered in every lobby corner.

One candidate, confronted with reports of some of his affairs of yesteryear, cut off an inquiring delegate sharply: "I am proud of all my youthful indiscretions."

D. C. Home Rule to Be Urged in Platform

er ranked as a Republican Party measure.

Representative Everett M. Dirkson (R., Ill.), who led the fight for passage of the Auchincloss bill as chairman of the House District Committee, said earlier in the day he was anxious to see the home rule plank go into the platform.

Consulted with Lodge

He said he had drafted a plank for discussion with Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, jr., (R., Mass.) chairman of the resolution committee.

Dirksen said his own version of the necessary home rule plank took this form: "We shall support legislation providing for the development of practical home rule for the District of Columbia."

The Auchincloss bill providing for reorganization of the District government and a limited type of home rule, wound up as unfinished business of the Eightith Congress.

It weathered two days of stormy debate in the House in May, then was set aside under the pressure of adjournment business, and of a determined filibuster threat by opponents. It would give the District an elected council, elected school board, and an elected non-voting District delegate in the House.

Major District legislation, as now, would have to be approved by Congress and the President.

First indications were that the District convention delegates would be content to let the home rule plank ride. While they considered the national representation plank of greater importance, one member of the group said that the home rule plank might advance their cause in the long run.

Tokyo Bettors Take MacArthur 100 to 1

Tokyo, June 21 (U.P.).—Supporters of Gen. Douglas MacArthur for the Republican Presidential nomination declared today the know a sure candidate when they see one. They said they would take St. Louis oddsmaker James J. Carroll's 100 to 1 longshot odds on the general.

"At those odds, we would be fools not to bet," one MacArthur fan said.

Convention fever swept Tokyo, and MacArthur's boosters tried to find places where they could bet on him.

Vermonters to Name Austin as Starter

Post Reporter

Philadelphia, June 21.—A new "favorite son" candidate entered the picture here yesterday when Vermont's uninstructed delegation decided to nominate Warren R. Austin, this Nation's delegate to the United Nations, on the first ballot.

Austin is a native of Vermont, the only State in the Union which has never gone anything but Republican. Although uninstructed, Vermont's delegates favor Dewey. James F. Dewey, national committeeman from Vermont, is a distant relative of the New York Governor.

Rep. Bloom Asks Truman to Call Special Session

Representative Bloom (D., N. Y.) said yesterday he has asked President Truman to call a special session of Congress to approve the 65-million-dollar United Nations loan and pass housing legislation.

He told a reporter the President did not indicate whether he would call the session, but he said Mr. Truman "is very much disappointed" that Congress did not authorize the U. N. loan for the building of U. N. headquarters in New York.

Dewey Beats Taft for Ga.

sincerest belief that it will succeed because of its deserts."

McCormick, one of the leaders of Illinois delegation, issued a statement here saying:

"I am for Taft and I have no second choice. Vandenberg can't even carry Michigan. He only got back in the Senate by making a deal with Roosevelt, backing the Roosevelt foreign policy."

As for Dewey, said McCormick, he ran "250,000 votes behind the ticket in Illinois and dragged a great many State and county candidates down with him. He can't do any better this year."

Commenting on McCormick's suggestion of a Taft-Stassen ticket, Herbert Brownell, Dewey manager, quipped:

"I am glad the Chicago Tribune ticket is out in the open at last."

At Stassen's headquarters, Gov. Luther Youngdahl of Minnesota flatly denied Stassen had made any deals for second place on a ticket.

Youngdahl, who said he spoke for Stassen, told reporters "no deal has been made. There is no indication that it is going to be anything but a fight for the first place."

At his press conference today, Taft was asked about McCormick's statement that he and Stassen would be "an unbeatable ticket."

"Any ticket headed by Taft would be an unbeatable ticket," smiled Taft.

Then Taft told reporters that any candidate selected by the Republican convention as a running mate for him would be acceptable.

The text of McCormick statement:

"I am for Taft and I have no second choice. Vandenberg can't even carry Michigan. He only got back in the Senate by making a deal with Roosevelt, backing the Roosevelt foreign policy, in return for which a stooge was put up against him who really campaigned for Vandenberg and the logical candidate who stepped out of the way for the stooge was rewarded for his treachery to the Democratic Party by being appointed Governor of Austria.

"Dewey ran 250,000 votes behind the ticket in Illinois and dragged a great many State and county candidates down with him. He wouldn't be any better this year. I don't think he can carry more that 12 States again this year.

"Stassen is strong with the young people but mature people think he lacks maturity. In 1900, McKinley was nominated for his prestige and Theodore Roosevelt for his personal popularity. Therefore, it seems reasonable to nominate Taft and Stassen for the same reasons."

Brownell Glad It's Out

Herbert Brownell, Dewey's campaign manager, said McCormick's statement shows the publisher thinks Dewey will be nominated.

"I'm glad the Taft-Stassen ticket is out in the open at last," he told a news conference. "I think all the facts disprove any statement that Governor Dewey could not be elected if nominated."

Stassen commented later that he had read "the friendly statement of Colonel McCormick" with interest—but still was out for No. 1 spot on the ticket.

"Our position in the campaign is unchanged," Stassen said in a statement. "We are leading a hard, clean fight for the presidential nomination and will continue to do so until the final ballot which, I believe, will result in victory for me."

Taft's comment was that he would accept "any vice-presidential candidate the convention nominates."

Of McCormick's statement that a Taft-Stassen ticket could not be beaten, the Ohio Senator said:

"Any ticket with Taft at the head could not be beaten."

Four places on the official program it says in black type:

"Because of radio commitments, all sessions of convention must start on time."

So? So the opening session got under way exactly 27 minutes late.

Dewey Backers Lose Move for First Call

Philadelphia, June 21 (AP).—Supporters of Thomas E. Dewey of New York lost an attempt today to make sure his name will be the first placed before the Republican National Convention.

Alabama's 14-vote delegation refused by a 7-7 tie vote to yield to New York on the first roll call for the nomination of Presidential candidates. Alabama will merely "pass" on the rollcall.

Next comes Arizona and Arkansas, both with uncommitted delegations, followed by California, committed to Governor Earl Warren.

An impromptu quartet, which included one semi-soprano, started to yodel in the halls. Each wore a large Taft button as a breastplate, and the opening number was, "I'm Looking Over a Four-Leaf Clover," Taft's theme song.

The next selection was that old Yale favorite, "The Whiffenpoof Song." Whereupon the quartet was promptly hushed by the ushers, who, presumably, are Princeton men.

Democrats Ribbed By Glamorous Clare

By Christine Sadler Coe
Post Reporter

Philadelphia, Pa., June 21.—In the brilliant and brittle language which has made her the love of her party, GOP's glamorous Clare Boothe Luce tonight urged honest liberals who have been seeking progress in the Democratic Party to face up this year and take a look at the Republicans.

"We won't promise you a heaven on earth," she said, "but we will do our level, honest commonsensical best to keep you out of those hells on earth: constant domestic crises and a third world war."

An old-fashioned political speaker would have said "commonsense rather than "commonsensical," but the latter typifies Mrs. Luce's use of words and phrases that are different or a bit unusual. She used them in 1944 when she became the first woman to make a major speech at a Republican National Convention—and she threw handfuls of them in tonight, when she became the second.

'Went After Democrats'

This year, and then, she was at her best when she "went after the Democrats" which she did for three-fourths of her speech and to the delight of her enormous, jam-packed audience. She called the Democrats a hodge podge rather than a party, a "mish-mash of die-hard, warring factions," and she lumped "red Hank Wallace" right in among them.

She divided them into two main wings: the extreme Right, or Jim Crow wing, and the Left, "or Moscow wing." The former, she declared, is led by "lynch-loving bourbons," whiteshirted race-supremists who are usually waging a "last ditch fight on some progressive issues—of national health, housing, education or labor."

"At its worst," she declared, "this wing is the most reactionary and intolerant element in American life; it is anti-Semitic, anti-Catholic, anti-foreign. In short, antediluvian."

"You could promise Heaven to the Jim Crow wing of the Democratic Party. They'd refuse to go along: Heaven isn't 100 per cent American."

Mrs. Luce Arrives Early

Mrs. Luce, who served two terms in Congress from Connecticut and did not run for a third term, arrived at the convention early and in a triple capacity. She is covering it for a feature service, is a delegate and a speech-maker. In addition, she's a drawing card as a colorful celebrity.

The women have noted that she's wearing her blond hair in a short bob, usually caught up with a gay ribbon which matches one worn around her neck to hold her huge, flat gold-rimmed glasses. The dress she wore to a lunch given by Mrs. Worthington Scranton for newspaper women on Saturday was a simple shantung in a color somewhere between vermillion and cerise—and she looked no older than a college freshman.

Her combination of youthful good looks, brilliant mind and sharp words are unbeatable, and there is no doubt that the Republicans consider her a valuable asset.

Speculation on Plans

The general belief here seems to be that she would like to come back to Congress, next time as a Senator, or that she expects a place in the cabinet. When it comes to which place, however, no one has an answer—and it could be that the many-talented charmer prefers freedom from political office.

She slashed at the Democratic Party tonight for having infested politics with "the moral disease of expediency," and maintained that the New Deal never trusted the masses. "Public confusion on vital issues was—and is—Democratic weather," she said. "A Democratic President is doomed to proceed to his goals like a squid, squirting darkness all about him."

Both Democrats and Republicans claim to be for the same ends, she said, and interpreted that to be "the greatest possible increase of physical well-being, economic security and political liberty for the American citizen, regardless of color, creed or condition." The funny thing is, she continued, that "these same goals are paraded in the propaganda of the Kremlin." The important difference, she said, is in the way taken to reach these ends.

Foreign Policy Criticized

"We, the people, have always believed that means should correspond to ends; that honest, legal, democratic means were the only safe and proper way to reach good democratic goals."

"The philosophy that lofty ends justify underhanded means always goes hand in hand with a contempt for the wisdom of the plain people. And many New Dealers do honestly feel that they cannot trust Americans with the truth, because of their laziness, or indifference, or stupidity."

"We, Republicans, have never ceased, for 16 long years, to warn that bad methods never do, in the end, produce good results. Fortunately Republicans have never minded being political expendables in our country's cause."

"We now see the cost of a foreign policy which did not meet the Russian challenge on a moral plane—the plane of honesty with our people. This policy is going to cost the American taxpayer dearly," she said, "and the people now want a constitution-minded President."

The old adage that politics sometimes makes strange bedfellows found unusual confirmation today in the Oregon delegation to the convention.

The Dewey-pledged group turned up with Ted Gamble of Portland, Harold E. Stassen's convention floor manager, as an alternate delegate.

Thomas C. Luke of Portland made the designation so Gamble could get floor credentials.

Gamble thus became the second Stasse n political manager to get on the Oregon delegation. The other is Robert Elliott, who directed Stassen's unsuccessful Oregon campaign and was elected as a delegate-at-large.

Both, however, are bound to Dewey as a result of the State's preferential primary.

Among today's visitors: Harry Byrd, jr., son of the Virginia Democratic Senator . . . Two Congressmen are working their way in to see the GOP elephant. Representatives McGregor (R., Ohio) and Arends (R., Ill.) are helping to keep the delegates in tow by serving as assistant sergeant at arms. "I like it," beamed McGregor. "I like to mingle." And he kept right on mingling madly.

The first piece played on the organ today was "Hello," a tune recognized by practically nobody. I found out what it was by going down into the basement to interview the organist, who sits 30 feet below the stage.

He keeps in touch with the convention by telephone. The organist, Harry W. MacMillan, plays for a local Baptist church on Sundays.

Republican National Committee. A moment later the committee unanimously ratified the choice by electing Colladay chairman.

Colladay quickly called attention to the demand that District delegates planned to make for doubling the size of their delegation to the next nominating convention.

Hawaii Seeks Increase

Joseph R. Farrington, Hawaii's Republican delegate in the House of Representatives, and a member of the convention's rules committee, said Hawaii, too, wanted its representation in the convention increased from three to six delegates at large.

Hawaii also gets two delegates more because its elected spokesman in Congress is a Republican.

Representative George Bender (R., Ohio), then formally moved that the District and Hawaii each be given three more delegates to the next convention.

Carl A. Marshall of Fairfax, Va., also a member of the Rules Committee, strongly indorsed the idea of increasing the District's representation in the convention. Such an increase, he said, would be "a service to the party."

Proposal Is Adopted

Bender's proposal was adopted by a voice vote. It was written as an amendment to the rules proposed by the Rules Committee of the Republican National Committee.

Colladay later said the three additional District Republican delegates would "give us reasonable representation in the Republican convention, with the same number of delegates the District has had in the Democratic National Convention for years."

"It will permit us to give adequate representation to all the elements of the Republican organization in the District," Colladay said.

Colladay has been the District's Republican national committeeman for 32 years. This is the first time he has served as delegate to the nominating convention. He said a reason for the assignment is that he is now retiring from the national committee.

He has been a lawyer in Washington for 50 years. He is counsel for the Second National Bank of Washington, for the Washington Board of Trade and for American University. He is a former president of the Washington Board of Trade and of the Federation of Citizens Associations. He lives at 1615 Holly st. nw. He is 71.

Samuel F. B. Morse, the hotel impresario who's a California delegate, made a large hit with the Vermont delegation.

"Come and see me at Del Monte," he urged them. "I'll take care of you. I own the place."

The Vermonters accepted, to a man. Then, too late, Morse had a second thought.

"What am I saying?" he muttered. "I sold the place last week."

Convention Wide Open

over for of the 1094 accredited delegates more than 500 are either uninstructed, partially instructed, or committed to favorite sons on the first ballot.

In other words, this convention is wide open.

As it stands today, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York has about 330 votes, Senator Robert A. Taft has about 225 and Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota has 160. The remainder include the favorite son delegations of the important States of California, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Massachusetts and Michigan. The fight for the votes of these States in the next 48 hours, and on the floor when balloting starts, will detemine the selection.

While Gov. Dewey is the top-heavy favorite to win the nomination the outcome pretty much depends on what transpires in the next two days in the camp of Senator Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan.

50 or 60 on First Ballot

Senator Vandenberg has only the 51 votes of Michigan and a few other scattered votes which were pleged to him without any effort on his part. He will not poll more than 50 or 60 votes on the first ballot. But at least 40 or the 73 Pennsylvania delegation will vote for Vandenberg after the first ballot. Senator Saltsonstall of Massachussetts, the favorite son of his State, is very friendly to Vandenberg. If anything like a stalemate develops, Gov. Earl Warren of California may decide to turn over the bulk of his 53 votes to Vandenberg. Vandenberg is the only candidate, in the opinion of leading Republican politicians, who holds out the possibility of potential strength to beat Governor Dewey or Senator Taft in this convention.

Vandenberg would also be an acceptable man for Harold Stassen to turn to if the hard-fighting Minnesotan should decide at some point that he did not have a chance to win.

Does He Really Want It?

The big question mark in the Vandenberg picture is whether the able Michigan Senator really wants to be President. Many well informed Republican leaders believe firmly that he is only in the race, at the last moment, to insure the nomination of Governor Dewey. If Vandenberg acquired a sizeable block of votes and then announced for Dewey, it would assure the nomination of the New York Governor. It would enhance Vandenberg's power in the Senate, in the administration, if the Republicans win, and guarantee continuation of the present foreign policy, which is very close to the Senator's heart. These observers point out that Senator Vandenberg is 65 years old and not too robust in health.

Can Be Man Who Decides

In any event, Vandenberg can be the man who decides who the nominee will be.

Most of the talk about a vice-presidential nominee centers around Gov. Earl Warren of California and Gov. Dwight Green of Illinois.

It is pointed out that if Dewey is the top man on the ticket, he will need a Western running mate and that Warren fits the picture perfectly. He would not only insure California for the Republican ticket, but would be a big influence in other Pacific Coast States. Warren has said repeatedly, the last time only yesterday, that he is not interested in the Vice Presidency. But experienced politicians believe his viewpoint is subjject to change. Warren is making a very good impression here in Philadelphia.

The strength of Governor Green of Illinois is the fact that he controls the Illinois delegation, with its 56 votes; that he has strong backing in the Midwest, and that he is keynoter of this convention. Politically, he is out of step with many of Dewey's beliefs. He is an out-and-out isolationist, and, as Vice President, would be in Vandenberg's hair the day he walked into the Senate and picked up the gavel.

Warren is the logical choice, although it is well to remember that logic has nothing whatever in common with politics.

By Thursday night or Friday many of these matters will be settled.

In the meantime, the bands will play, party orators will rule the airwaves, and the delegates will get sore feet and that slump that comes fro mhitting hour after hour on hard chairs.

There must be a more comfortable way of selecting party nominees!

Gov. Dwight H. Green of Illinois got an extra convention ticket today but he didn't try to use it.

The keynote speaker received the ticket by mail from J. A. Watts, farm manager of Nashville, Ill., but it was 52 years too late. It was a guest ticket to the 1896 GOP convention at St. Louis.

Watts said he sent the ticket just to "let you know the folks in Washington County are pulling for you."

4 Extra Md. Delegates Are Denied Seats

Philadelphia, June 21 (AP).—Maryland had four extra and voteless delegates on the floor of the Republican National Convention today.

Jacob France, the State's Republican national committeeman, got them into the hall with badges proclaiming they were "assistant sergeants at arms.

He also promised them seats—actual seats to sit in, but these were not immediately forthcoming. The delegation was faced with the problem of having 20 members and but 16 chairs.

The problem arose from action of the Republican State Central Committee in Baltimore last month when it named 20 delegates to the convention instead of the 16 allotted by the national committee.

Twelve delegates were named from the State's six congressional districts, plus eight delegates at large. The idea was that each of the delegates at large would have but half a vote. This would give Maryland its allotted 16 votes.

But the Republican National Committee turned thumbs down on the France plan for delegates with half a vote.

The delegation held a two-hour caucus on the problem today and there was some feeling that the matter was not settled.

This is the new line-up announced after the caucus:

Robert O. Bonnell, Baltimore lawyer, who was named delegation chairman, resigned as a voting delegate but was promptly re-elected chairman of the delegation—without a vote.

Charles A. Dorsey of Baltimore resigned as the regular Fourth District delegate and Arthur J. Payne, one of the half-a-vote delegates at large, was named in his place. Dorsey then became a delegate at large without a vote.

The four "at large" votes were given to Theodore R. McKeldin, former Mayor of Baltimore and unsuccessful candidate for Governor in 1946; Deeley K. Nice, Republican candidate for Mayor of Baltimore in the spring of 1947; D. Eldridge Rinehart of Hagerstown and E. Dale Adkins of Easton.

This left Bonnell, Dorsey, Mrs. Harvey D. Kline of Hagerstown and Thomas E. Latimer of Glendale as the four delegates-at-large without votes.

Virginia Delegation Is Still Undecided

Philadelphia, June 21 (AP).—Virginians at the Republican convention took it easy today.

Tomorrow they may go into a huddle to decide where to throw their unpledged votes on the first ballot for a Presidential nominee.

Some of the leaders of the delegation have estimated Dewey will get 15 or 16 of the Old Dominion State's 21 votes. One delegate challenged this prediction today.

"Taft may show a considerable strength in our ranks," Delegate Walter Johnson of Heathsville told a reporter.

"I'm supporting Taft, and I would not be at all surprised if he got 9 or 10 of our votes."

Delegation Chairman Robert H. Woods of Pearisburg said a meeting likely will be held in the morning to discuss routine matters and to settle the question of how Virginia's delegates will vote.

Johnson said he based his opinion on casual conversations he has had around the Penn-Sheraton Hotel lobby with members of the Virginia delegation.

"One thing that I have observed," he said, "is that everyone seems to be making up his own mind. That is the way it is with us, and I believe that holds true for most of the delegations."

New Deal Flayed By GOP Keynoter

Philadelphia, June 21: Following is an abstract of the keynote address of Gov. Dwight H. Green of Illinois before the Republican National Convention tonight:

We are here to nominate the thirty-fourth President of the United States.

Here in Philadelphia, the Declaration of Independence proclaimed the freedom of America. We in this convention reaffirm American freedom and independence.

Here in Philadelphia wise men shaped our Constitution of the United States. We in this convention hail once more that immortal charter as the keystone of our faith.

Our Republican Party challenges a further grant of power to the New Deal Party. It asserts that freedom, stability, justice and peace demand a new leader for a greater America.

The New Deal Party can have no real program, because it is no longer a real party. It mustered its majorities from a fantastic partnership of reaction and radicalism. For years, this strange alliance was held together by bosses, boodle, buncome and blarney.

Broken Promises

Such a party is all things to all men. The New Deal was just that. Its offspring was the sorriest series of broken promises in the history of our Nation.

It promised economy and gave us unproductive spending, unbalanced budgets, oppressive taxes and massive debt. It promised jobs. It gave us bureaucracy. It promised prosperity. It paid in the regimentation of agriculture, labor management and business, large and small.

It promised efficiency. Its Grecian gift was a Trojan donkey filled with swarming bureaucrats turned loose within our citadel.

It promised peace, again and again and again, when it knew war was inevitable.

Apparently, the only promises that were really kept were those it gave to Joe Stalin.

And now it promises to promise again and again.

As its boat sinks, the skipper's piano still pounds out "Meet Me Next Year in Dreamland."

The New Deal Party invited the lunatic fringe to share its feast of power. The New Deal lived with those radicals in unholy intimacy for many years.

Out For 16 Years

For 16 years the Republican Party was out of the control of Congress. It earned the right to return to that control.

For 16 years it has been excluded from the executive branch of the Government. The Republican Party has earned the right to return to the Presidency.

Republican Congressmen promised to free American economy from regimentation, and they did it. Republican Congressmen promised to balance the budget, and they did it. They promised to reduce Federal spending, and they did it. They promised to reduce Federal income taxes, and they did it.

In 1946 the Republican Party promised to correct the chaotic conditions in labor relations which were paralyzing American production and recovery. They did that, too.

The Republican Congress has exposed waste, inefficiency and corruption in the Federal Administration, its investigations uncovered the scandals of the Meyers aviation contracts and the Pauley grain deals.

The American people owe a great debt to the Eightieth Congress. It has restored faith in representative government.

America Losing Peace

Today, tonight, America is losing the peace. The blood and treasure which we so willingly gave are being wasted by confused and incompetent foreign policy.

We fought for justice and freedom, but almost a dozen nations have lost their freedom. We fought to end dictatorship, but despairing peoples are bowing to tyranny. We fought to make America safe from attack in the Pacific. Russia holds the Kuriles and northern Korea, dominates Manchuria and literally has the power and position to endanger Alaska and the Pacific Coast.

New Deal diplomacy threw away victory long before our fighters had won it. It permitted the Russians to take Berlin. At Tehran and Yalta one New Deal President agreed to Russia's domination of Poland and much of China. At Potsdam, another New Deal President confirmed the Soviet's domination of the satellite countries, and their sole right to occupy eastern Germany and eastern Austria.

'Rendezvous With Reds'

The cold war is the lusty child of the New Deal's rendezvous with communism. That rendezvous began with recognition of the Soviets in 1933. It reached its tragic climax in those years when we supinely suffered communism to master half Europe.

The New Deal cannot escape this indictment by doubletalk about bipartisan foreign policy. The Republican Party was not present at Tehran, Yalta or Potsdam. On the rare occasions when Republicans have been consulted, blunder and disaster have been avoided.

The Republican Party has a very definite program for an American foreign policy. We accepted the Atlantic Charter.

Republican Principles

The Republican Party in Congress has supported its own principles of international cooperation, helped to create the United Nations, voted funds for foreign relief and recovery.

Our next step to save the peace and to achieve the goals of Republican foreign policy is to elect a Republican President of the United States.

It is an old and tried Republican tradition that American influence shall be felt wherever America has a legitimate duty in the world outside our gates. (Policies of Secretary of State William Seward, James G. Blaine, John Hay, Elihu Root, Charles Evans Hughes and Frank B. Kellogg were cited).

These (policies) are not the marks of a timid foreign policy. They are the wise tradition of a nation growing in world influence.

With our best will and our best skill we must meet the challenge of communism. Our best answer to communism will be a sound America, in which all the people shall enjoy the prosperity produced by our free economy.

The Congress has voted a European recovery program because it believes that the free nations of the world can grow in strength and unity—so that they can defend and support themselves. Such a plan requires sound principles in its administration. It should be no refuge for fugitive payrollers from New Deal bureaus which have been abolished by Republican economy.

Leadership Needed

Above the administrator of that plan and above the Secretary of State, there is crying need of a Chief Executive who has administered something more than a county board of supervisors under the shadow of a corrupt political machine.

Our task is to put the world on its feet, and not on our back. The New Deal administration has neglected the fundamentals of defense, surrendered supremacy in the air, neglected acquisition of sea and air bases, disbanded an army in being.

The New Deal Administration has been a tragic failure in labor relations. Again and again it has blundered to the very edge of national paralysis, and then has had no solution except Government control.

The present Republican Congress has made a real start toward labor peace by enacting the Labor Management Relations Act of 1947. The door is open to the full consideration of every criticism of this law and every proposal for its change which may come from labor from management, or from the public.

This act will stand as a proof of the courage of its sponsors and the willingness of the Republican Party to deal fearlessly with every vital problem.

The Republican President and the Republican Congress will deal realistically with the problems of housing, of the strengthening of Social Security, and of the full protection of public health without resort to the dreary and inadequate regimentation of State medicine.

Debt to Veterans

Republican leadership will discharge as fully as a great Nation can, our tremendous obligation to veterans.

Republican leadership will carry out the mandate of the people to end the pampering of Communists in America. We shall ferret out and drive out every Red and Pink on the Federal payrolls. We shall guard carefully the freedom of speech and thought of every American, but we shall expose every subversive individual and organization. We shall change the social climate which has permitted foreign exponents of Marxism to bask in the profitable sunshine of publicity while they abuse our American hospitality.

Our Republican leadership will strengthen the character of America; its program will give new meaning to the Bill of Rights, it will replace the New Deal's shadow-boxing on the issue of civil liberties with sound measures to make America more truly than ever before the happy land of opportunity.

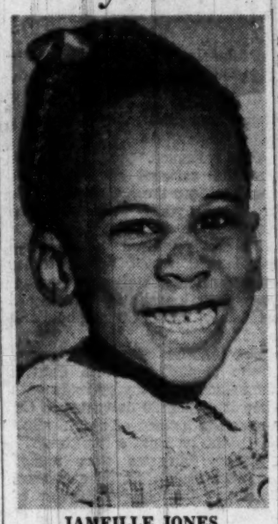
Two generations have been asked to give their youth to the grime and blood of conflict. The happiness of another generation hangs in the balance. Those boys and girls who gave their chance of life and happiness are our reminder of our duty to build a better peace:

"To what avail, alas; to what avail!
"If we resume the old futilities!
"Have mercy on our souls if we should fail."

Peace cannot be kept without government. Upon those chosen by this convention must rest that awful responsibility.

May God grant that this convention meet this challenge with truth and courage and vision. By God's grace, may we choose wisely and well.

Two-Year-Old Girl Charms Weary Members of House



JAMEILLE JONES
Song and Tears Applauded

Little Jameille Winfield had something to tell the kids on the block about yesterday.

Probably she didn't say much, though, for she's only 2, and winning the affection and plaudits of a chamberful of Congressmen is pretty small potatoes to a little girl of 2.

But for the record, this is what happened to Jameille, daughter of Mrs. Helen Winfield, 3318 Sherman ave. nw.

It was shortly after midnight Saturday and the House of Representatives was going into the final wearying hours of its last session. The galleries were jammed.

Mrs. Winfield, who's been serving sandwiches and coffee to Congressmen in the Republican cloakroom, House side, for 12 years, welcomed her vivacious daughter—who'd arrived with her grandmother for her first visit to the Capitol. So did several Congressmen. They'd been hearing about Jameille since her baby days.

The little girl, not one to be impressed by leaders of Government, began to sing and to chatter and Jameille is good at both.

Some one suggested she be taken out on the floor—the House was then in recess. Jameille, a good sport, went.

Up behind the mike, way too tall for the 50-pound mite, the little girl began to sing . . . "frere jacque, frere jacque" . . . and there she stopped, scared into silence for the first time in her young life.

"I want to go back to my mother," she cried. And the men of affairs smiled and applauded.

250,000 Belgians End Metal Workers' Strike

Brussels, June 21 (AP).—Labor Minister Leon E. Troclet announced tonight the end of the Belgian metal workers' strike.

About 250,000 metal workers quit throughout the nation last Wednesday, demanding a 5 per cent pay increase. Their pay has ranged from 100 to 200 francs $2.50 to $4.50) a day.

White House Strategy Meeting

While Republicans were converging upon Philadelphia Sunday, a strategy meeting of about 15 top Democrats was held at the White House, Presidential Secretary Charles G. Ross disclosed yesterday.

Among them were Senator Scott Lucas (Ill.), Representative Sam Reyburn (Tex.), House minority leader; Senator J. Howard McGrath (R. I.), Democratic national chairman; Oscar Ewing, Federal Security Administrator; John M. Redding, Democratic committee publicity chief, and several Cabinet members.

President Truman reviewed his recent 9000-mile speech-making trip, Ross said.

The United Press reported that Mr. Truman recently listed possible Republican candidates in the order in which they would be "hardest to beat." Gov. Thomas E. Dewey was No. 1 on the list. He chose House Speaker Joseph E. Martin as the easiest, it reported.

The order in which he is supposed to have named them at the White House "bull session" with his aides, was given as: Dewey, Gov. Harold E. Stassen, Gov. Earl Warren of California, Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.), Senator Robert A. Taft, Senator John W. Bricker and Martin.

Paralyzed Veterans May Get Home Grants

Associated Press Science Editor

The Veterans Administration estimated yesterday about 1800 paralyzed war veterans may qualify for new Federal grants of up to $10,000 for homes designed for wheel-chair living.

The agency will tell eligible veterans where and how to apply as soon as details are worked out. Va officials said it would be unnecessary for the veterans themselves to inquire.

Taft Faces 2 Election Campaigns

Age, i. e. experience, may be a good talking point for Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) at the Republican National Convention. Not so at his alma mater, Yale University.

For there, even as at Philadelphia this week, Senator Taft is a candidate for office. He is up for reelection as a fellow on the Yale Corporation, and some sons of old Eli believe Taft might well step down for a younger man.

With this in mind, they have submitteed, by petition, the nomination of Jonathan Brewster Bingham, New York attorney.

Age Is Election Point

Difference between Taft and Bingham is that Taft, 60, is class of 1910, and Bingham, 34, is class of 1936. The younger Yale contingent would like to see some one on the corporation who has graduated since 1930, and many are backing Bingham for this reason.

Even the most fervent Bingham backers hasten to add, however, that there is nothing political in their sponsorship. They aren't anti-Taft, they are just pro-youth.

The Yale Corporation is made up of two groups of men. One is a self-perpetuating group of alumni, who may nominate their own successors. The other is a body elected by the alumni, and it is to this latter body that Taft now seeks reelection.

Alumni here in Washington point out that never in the history of the corporation has a fellow failed of reelection to the corporation. They don't expect Taft to set any new precedent.

But they hope that by sponsoring Bingham, they may convince the Yale powers-that-be that the next vacancy on the corporation should be filled by not quite so old a blue.

Bingham, native of New Haven, is the son of former Senator Hiram Bingham (R., Conn.). After receiving his law degree from Yale in 1939, he went into law practice and was attorney with the NLRB

Alexandria delegates to the State Democratic convention in Richmond July 2 organized last night but remained uncommitted on the much-talked-of anti-Truman revolt.

The 28 delegates agreed to caucus in Richmond on the morning of the convention to decide whether they will vote to support Mr. Truman, if he is nominated in Philadelphia, or some other candidate.

A bill passed by the General Assembly last winter would allow the convention to reconvene if the nominee of the national party is unacceptable to the Virginia Democrats.

The delegation chose as chairman Gardner L. Boothe, present chairman of the Eighth Congressional District Democratic Committee; as vice charman, Gilbert J. Cox, jr., and as secretary, Albert A. Smoot.

Truck Driver Indicted in Nurses' Death

Gordon Mumford, 20, of 1526 Good Hope rd. se., was indicted on a charge of manslaughter by the District grand jury yesterday for the traffic death January 1 of a St. Elizabeths Hospital nurse.

The victim, Betty Lou Parcell, 21, was riding with Dr. Arnold Nomrow, 24, of the St. Elizabeths staff, when his car and Mumford's truck collided at 11:45 p. m. on New Year's Eve, according to police. Mumford, Dr. Namrow and Miss Parcell all were hospitalized.

Police originally charged Mumford with driving while under the influence of intoxicants and with failing to yield the right of way. A coroner's jury held him on the manslaughter charge.

In another indictment, George M. Brown, 26, of 1312 Corbin pl. ne. was charged with rape. The indictment said he had relations with a 30-year-old woman who was incapable of giving consent legally because she is mentally retarded.

According to a physician's affidavit, she is of very small stature and has the mental capacity of a 4-year-old.

Truman Signs 2 Minor Bills

President Truman yesterday signed two minor bills, bringing himself abreast of the tide of legislation reaching his desk from the Eightieth Congress.

Still circulating among Government agencies for recommendations to assist his decisions are about 65 measures. A "considerable number" passed in the hectic closing period are still on their way from Capitol Hill.

One of the bills approved yesterday provided for a special postage stamp in connection with dedication of the Palomar Mountain, Calif., observatory. The other is a private bill benefiting Mrs. Myrtle Hovde.

Presidential Press Secretary Charles G. Ross told reporters that Mr. Truman plans to make a number of interim appointments. They would serve until the Senate meets again to confirm or disapprove their nominations.

Attorney Horne Cleared of Charges In Fairfax Court

Richard C. Horne, jr., 201 N West st., Falls Church, a Washington attorney, has been cleared of the charges he practiced law before the Fairfax County Circuit Court without a license or without being admitted to the Virginia bar.

Judge Paul E. Brown of Fairfax County Circuit Court granted a motion Saturday to quash the indictment returned by the Fairfax grand jury last month. The judge ruled two offenses were charged in the same indictment and the time allotted in the statute of limitations for prosecution had expired.

Horne said he had been called in for advice on a case before the Fairfax Court.

Woman Fire Siren Warden, 73, Routs Assailant With Alarm

Princess Anne, Md., June 21 (AP). Carl V. Johnson, 21-year-old Negro, was held in an unidentified jail today after being charged with an attempted criminal attack on a 73-year-old widow in Somerset County. Officials said Johnson admitted the attack.

Mrs. Addie Coulbourne, principal victim, said only the fact she was able to turn on the village fire siren from the bedroom of her home at nearby Marion prevented the assailant from slaying her and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Carrie Whittington, 70.

The siren is near Mrs. Coulbourne's home. In case of fire, she takes the call on her telephone and switches on the alarm.

Mrs. Coulbourne, whose husband was cashier at the Marion Bank until his death last December, said she was awakened about 3 a. m., Sunday, by some one choking her.

The made enough noise to awaken Mrs. Whittington in another bedroom. Mrs. Whittington tried to help her beat off the assailant. He turned on Mrs. Whittington, giving Mrs. Coulbourne a chance to turn on the fire siren. The intruder fled.

Men attracted by the alarm formed a posse and started looking for the intruder. Sheriff Jackson and Deputy Frank Ward took the suspect into custody on the road between Marion and Crisfield.

New Housing Bill Studied by U. S. Home Financing Agency

By The Associated Press

The housing bill passed by Congress in its closing hours does only two things to promote residential building, the Housing and Home Financing Agency said yesterday.

This Federal office said the bill:

1. Permits the Government to buy mortgages guaranteed by the Veterans Administration and the Federal Housing Administration from banks and other lenders, so that they will not become overloaded and shut down on credit.

2. Permits the FHA to insure up to 95 per cent of loans for nonprofit veterans' cooperative housing projects.

The measure does not revive the wartime "Title VI" mortgage insurance, under which about one-third of all housing was financed until it expired on April 30.

Neither does it contain the provision for Title VI insurance of large-scale rental housing projects, which also expired April 30.

None of the other provisions of the Taft-Ellender-Wagner bill are to be found in the legislation now on its way to the White House. The Senate passed the TEW measure, and the House voted a somewhat similar bill, minus public housing, but both got lost in the session-end scramble. Critics of the TEW bill said private enterprise can do the job.

Until Congress meets again, therefore, there will be no Federal stimulus to slum clearance, public low-rent housing, farm housing, residential building research, or "yield insurance." The last was a TEW proposal to insure low-rent apartment builders minimum earnings on their investments.

Under the defunct Title VI, FHA insured mortgages on dwellings and rental projects up to 90 per cent of the current cost of construction. The word "current" was important, because it took into account present-day building costs.

Title VI not only aided prospective home owners; it also helped builders obtain financing to start new houses. A builder could get an advance promise that FHA would insure the mortgage on the dwelling. The builder then could get a bank to lend him money on the strength of that commitment.

What remains is "Title II." This also provides 90 per cent insurance, but only on the long-term, economic value of the dwelling.

Ford Offers Raise Of 11-14 Cents Hour

Detroit, June 21 (AP).—The CIO United Auto Workers received without comment today an offer by the Ford Motor Co. to raise wages of its 110,000 employes by 11 to 14 cents an hour.

At the same time, Chrysler Corp., which recently granted its 90,000 employes a 13-cent increase, raised its passenger car prices.

Ford already had raised the prices of its cars. So had Hudson, Packard, Studebaker and Nash.

Chrysler did not disclose the exact amount of the price boost. It indicated Plymouth prices would go up from $40 to $50, and Dodge prices by 6½ per cent.

Ford told the UAW (CIO) it was ready to add 14 cents to the wages of all employes making $1.50 or more an hour. Those making less would get an 11-cent boost. The average production wage now is estimated at about $1.50½ an hour.

A few weeks ago Ford asked the UAW (CIO) to forgo a wage increase this year, suggesting that a cut in wages even might be advisable. The union had asked 30 cents an hour increase.

However, the company said in today's statement:

"Since that time, however, our principal competitors have granted wage increases, and it is no longer possible for us to say as we could before these increases that our average hourly rate is higher, by at least 6 cents, than theirs."

General Motors was the first auto firm to grant a third round of postwar wage increases. It gave 225,000 employes an 11 cent boost, tied to the cost of living. It said it would try to keep car prices at today's levels.

Then Chrysler ended a UAW (CIO) strike with a 13-cent raise.

Most other firms followed the Chrysler pattern, leaving Ford a technical holdout. Ford's contract runs until July 15, and it began negotiations with the UAW (CIO) only last week.

Ford told the union its wage offer was a "maximum package." It explained that union demands for pensions, medical insurance, guaranteed weekly wage, night shift bonus, paid lunch period and the like must either be shelved or paid for out of the 11-14 cents.

Negotiations were recessed today until Wednesday.

Striking an average of Ford's 11-14 cent offer at 12½ cents and assuming the union would accept it, here is how average wages in the auto industry's big three would compare:

General Motors—$1.53 an hour in all plants ($1.61 in auto plants).
Chrysler—$1.56½.
Ford—$1.62½.

Supreme Court Won't Look At West Coast Nudist Case

The Supreme Court yesterday refused to consider an attack on a Los Angeles ordinance barring nudist camps.

The law bans operation of any place "where three or more persons not all of the same sex are permitted to commingle in the nude."

The ordinance was attacked by Lura D. Glassey, who was sentenced to 180 days in the city jail. She said the premises where she was arrested were run by the Fraternity Elysia, an organization which believes in nudism.

She asked a ruling whether "in our society, as today constituted, persons who are sincere in their belief in nudism and who commit no antisocial or immoral acts may be completely prohibited by a municipality from practicing their belief."

Counsel for the city said:

"We think it within the power of a legislative body to require that when persons of opposite sex commingle in camps they should be clothed in something less revealing than a smile and a cloak of innocence, and that they wear at least the eqivalent of the fig leaf with which Adam and Eve are said to have clothed themselves."

The Supreme Court last October refused to consider a similar appeal by Lura Glassey.

Bendix Aviation Offers 11-Cent Hour Pay Rise

New York, June 21 (AP).—The Bendix Aviation Corp. has offered a general wage increase of 11 cents an hour to about 12,000 hourly workers in five plants.

M. A. Heidt, vice president of the corporation, disclosed the action today.

The plants are the Eclipse-Machine Division of Elmira, N. Y.; the Eclipse-Pioneer Division, Teterboro, N. J.; the Zenith Carburetor Division, Detroit; the Bendix Products Division, South Bend, Ind.; and the Pacific Division, North Hollywood, Calif.

Heidt said the offer was made to the United Automobile Workers (CIO), bargaining agent for the employes, during negotiations here on a new labor contract.

Operators Predict Coal Contract if Lewis Will Negotiate

By the United Press

An industry spokesman told Presidential fact-finders yesterday that a new soft coal contract could be written in 48 hours if John L. Lewis would "sit down and talk about it."

Charles O'Neill, chief negotiator for the soft coal operators, gave that testimony as the board appointed by President Truman under the Taft-Hartley law began hearings that may lead to an 80-day court injunction against a strike.

Lewis did not show up for the hearing. But Board Chairman David L. Cole said the United Mine Workers president had notified the board he would be out of town yesterday.

"The union has not wilfully ignored the invitation of this board," Cole said. "We expect Mr. Lewis to be here tomorrow."

O'Neill said Lewis had refused flatly, during 10 days of negotiations, to state his demands for a new contract to replace the one expiring June 30. He said the UMW chief insisted instead on settling differences over the 1947 welfare and retirement fund.

"We could reach agreement in 48 hours if there was a will to do it on both sides," he said. "The coal operators are anxious to sign a new contract.

U. S. Pay Hike Still Issue

the so-called executive order pay schedule are not included in the bill. Scatterings of these employes are in Reconstruction Finance, Commodity Credit, Federal Housing and other such agencies. However, the heads of these agencies have the right to give executive order employes the $330 boost on their own motions. They are sure to do just that when the President signs the pay bill into law.

All Classification Act employes who are paid hourly and daily rates will have their hourly pay lifted by 20 cents an hour.

No District government employes, classified or otherwise, will get an increase.

Doubt exists as to whether employes in the Foreign Service are included in the bill. Lawyers yesterday were arguing it both ways. The Foreign Service employes were not specifically excluded from the legislation. Civil Service experts say the matter must be taken to the Comptroller General for a decision.

No official whose salary is fixed by Congress will get the raise;

Heads of bureaus and other such employes who are CAF-15s and P-8s will get the raise even though they are not under Civil Service;

Fourth-class postmasters will get a raise of 25 per cent on their present salaries;

Postal employes who are paid an hourly wage will get an increase of 25 cents an hour;

All classified employes, with the exception of those mentioned above, will get the flat $330 increase on their present salaries. And the increase is to be permanent in spite of contrary reports, and finally.

Postal employes will get a flat increase of $450 each.

DISTRICT employes are mad and hurt because they weren't given pay raises. Who can blame them? They got a dirty deal. This is the inside story on how the 8000 classified employes nearly got the $330 increase early Sunday morning.

The Cain amendment which excluded them from the bill unless adequate revenue became available was accepted by Senator Taft (R., Ohio) who handled the pay bill. At the time, Taft said the Senate would take up the sales tax for the District and he seemed sure it would be okayed.

In the long conference of Senate-House Civil Service leaders on the pay bill, the Cain amendment wasn't even mentioned. The original conference report did not carry the Cain amendment which meant the 8000 classified employes would get the $330 increases. Conferees confirmed this fact.

However, someone asked Senator Taft if the Cain amendment was in the conference report. Taft replied: "It has to be. I promised Senator Cain it would be."

A hurried poll was then taken of the conferees at about 3 a. m. Sunday morning and the Cain provision was inserted in the report a few minutes before the House and the Senate approved it.

APPROVAL: The President is sure to sign the pay bill. In doing it, however, it's a good bet he'll lash out at the Congress for the unjust and discriminatory bill. Don't expect the President to sign the bill for several days.

Classified employes yesterday were asking themselves these questions:

"What have postal employes got that we haven't got? How do they get $450 and we get only $330?"

I can answer that question in part. The postal employes have strong unions that didn't overlook a bet to push the pay campaign.

Federal officials who were ignored by Congress were also puzzled. They must get the answer why they were excluded from Senator Byrd who fought and won to strike out the provision to raise their salaries.

During the debate, Senator Taft reminded Byrd that his salary had been raised by $2500 plus a $2500 tax-free expense account. Taft said a Senator's salary is equivalent to about $16,500. Byrd was unimpressed. Apparently, he prefers an impossible salary scale for Federal officials which makes it almost impossible for a poor man to take a top-drawer job.

MONEY? Scores of Federal officials yesterday were wondering where they would get the money to meet the new pay raises which become effective the first pay period in July. The 1949 budgets have already been made up and approved.

There were rumors from Capitol Hill that the Appropriations Committee would warn the agencies to absorb as much money as possible from available funds to meet the higher wage costs.

Carl Marzani To Get Review In High Court

Carl Aldo Marzani, former employe of the State Department and the wartime Office of Strategic Services, yesterday was granted a Supreme Court review of his conviction on charges of making false statements concerning Communist Party activities.

The court will hear argument on the appeal in its next term beginning in October.

Marzani, in the two Government jobs, handled documents containing top military secrets. He was accused of falsely representing to a superior in the State Department that he had never been a member of the Communist Party.

Marzani was sentenced in United States District Court here to one to three years' imprisonment. The U. S. Court of Appeals here affirmed the conviction.

Marzani's attorney, Charles E. Ford, said yesterday that his client has been at liberty on $2500 bond pending Supreme Court action. Bond was granted after a month's imprisonment at Lorton, Va.

Ford said he would base part of his argument before the high court on the fact that nine counts of the 11-count indictment had been dismissed by the Appellate Court. These nine counts which were allowed in the District Court prejudiced Marzani's case and led to his conviction on the other two counts, Ford asserted.

Senator Capper In Good Condition

Condition of Senator Arthur Capper (R., Kans.), who was admitted to the Bethesda Naval Hospital Wednesday for a "checkup," was reported "quite good" yesterday.

Attaches announced he is "convalescing uneventfully following a mild, acute respiratory condition." This was later described as "just . . . a cold."

The 82-year-old dean of the Senate was putting in long hours during the session-end scramble when his aides noticed he appeared ill. His illness was attributed to exhaustion.

Court Upholds Deportation For German

By The Associated Press

A postwar order for Kurt G. W. Ludecke, former member of the Nazi Party, to leave the country was upheld yesterday by the Supreme Court, 5 to 4.

In a separate case, 129 other Germans fighting deportation as alien enemies were told in a 6 to 3 decision that they chose the wrong court when they sued in the District of Columbia.

The court said their habeas corpus action should have been filed where they were, which would be in New York. The Germans were picked up in various cities and placed in custody of the Immigration Service at Ellis Island, N. Y.

Similar Arguments Presented

Their argument presented similar aspects to that of Ludecke's. However, the court did not rule on the merits of the plea of the 129, deciding the case on jurisdictional grounds alone.

Ludecke was arrested the day after Pearl Harbor and held as a "potentially dangerous alien enemy." Attorney General Clark in 1946 ordered him deported, but the German native fought back and argued his own case before the Supreme Court on May 4.

Justice Frankfurter delivered the majority decision against Ludecke. Justice Douglas wrote a dissent in which Justices Murphy and Rutledge joined. Justice Black also wrote a dissent in which Justices Douglas, Murphy and Rutledge joined.

Ludecke argued that no government officer was authorized to order his removal under the 1798 Alien Enemy Act. He said that since Germany surrendered on May 3, 1945, there is no danger of espionage or sabotage.

Government counsel replied that the war is not yet officially ended and ordered the case be decided "just as if the Battle of the Bulge" were still raging in Europe."

Justice Frankfurter for the majority struck down arguments that the President's power under the Alien Enemy Act does not survive the cessation of actual fighting.

"This claim," Frankfurter said, "in effect nullifies the power to deport alien enemies, for such deportations are hardly practicable during . . . the shooting war. . . ." Frankfurter also objected to the use of the court to "retry" hearings given aliens by deportation officials.

Dissenting Black asserted that because of the majority opinion, "individual liberty will be less secure tomorow than it was yesterday."

Treasury Surplus Near All-Time High

The Treasury surplus hit a near-record 7738 million dollars yesterday and officials expect it to zoom even higher.

The total was only 118 million dollars short of the April 5 alltime high of 7856 million dollars, officials said quarterly income tax payments due June 15 are still being counted and should shove the surplus well beyond the April figure.

High Court Says Union Papers May Voice Political Opinions

that the union had not met the two requirements of the Taft-Hartley law.

Since the financial statement provision of the Taft-Hartley law precedes the one on the non-Communist affidavits, the high court said it was possible to rule the NMU off the ballots on that ground alone.

Law Deliberately Tested

At issue in the political expenditure case was the action of the CIO in publishing in the weekly CIO News an indorsement of Edward Garmatz of Baltimore as Democratic candidate for Congress. A thousand extra copies of the paper were sent to Baltimore for distribution. Garmatz was elected.

The CIO and its president, Philip Murray, took their action deliverately to try the law. They were indicted under Taft-Hartley Act charges which upon conviction would have carried a maximum penalty of a year in jail and a $1000 fine for Murray, and a $5000 fine for the labor organization.

In U. S. District Court here, the CIO attacked the expenditures provision of the labor law, arguing that it violated the free speech, press and assembly guarantees of the Bill of Rights.

Judge Ben Moore of Charleston, W. Va., sitting in the District Court, agreed with that contention and threw out the indictment. The Government appealed direct to the Supreme Court, but lost on yesterday's ruling.

Justice Reed, in the main opinion, said it would take "explicit words" in a law to convince the court that Congress intended to bar "a trade journal, a house organ or a newspaper published by a corporation, from expressing views on candidates or political proposals in the regular course of its publication."

He applied the same yard stick to union publications.

The CIO issued a statement after the decision saying:

"We are pleased that the highest court of our land has sustained the right of labor to enjoy a free press.

"This case represents the successful beginning of our legal campaign against the Taft-Hartley law. . . . We are confident that this clause and many other provisions of this law violate basic constitutional rights."

Jap War Machine Buildup Is Denied

Tokyo (Tuesday), June 22. (AP).—A U. S. spokesman today described as "absurb falsification" unofficial Chinese charges that America is building a war machine or economic giant in Japan.

The Associated Press learned the official denial is included in a firm note to the U. S. consulate general in Changhai from William Sebald, chief of General MacArthur's diplomatic section and acting U. S. political advisor for Japan.

The 1600-word note marks the first official recognition by U. S. authorities in Japan of the anti-American and anti-Japanese attitude in China—as expressed by Chinese student demonstrations (in which faculty members have joined) and Chinese newspaper editorials.

Crack Greek Force Nears Rebel Base

Athens, June 21 (AP).—The crack Greek ninth division was reported tonight only 8 miles from a main rebel base at Lykorrachi in the heart of the towering Grammos Mountains. Greek air force planes backed up the swift advance.

[A press dispatch, neither confirmed nor denied at Greek army headquarters, said a radio message from Rebel Chieftain Markas Vafiades to Marshall Tito of Yugoslavia asking for help had been intercepted.]

The ninth jumped off last night from Konitsa and began a steady drive toward the core of guerilla forces as six divisions—about 70,000 troops—began an all-out campaign to break the Communist rebellion.

The division was said to be inflicting heavy punishment on the guerillas, and to have captured heights within 3 miles of the town of Pyrsoyani. The ninth is being advised by American Lieut. Col. Joseph D. Iseman of Pittsburgh.

Method Open To Avoid Draft

there would be a decision on the point today.

Army officials, however, are known to oppose any such delay as this. They are agreeable to a sizeable expansion of the reserve components by this means, but don't want them to receive too large a proportion of untrained men. Other provisions of the draft act will force some veterans and men finishing Regular Army "hitches" into the Guard and Reserves later.

However, officials said that purely mechanical matters would put off final enactment until tonight at the earliest. The bill still lacks the signatures of Senate President Arthur Vandenberg and House Speaker Joe Martin. It is expected to be flown to Philadelphia today for them to act, and may not reach the White House before Wednesday.

250,000 Now in Guard

The National Guard now has an enrollment of 250,000. Its immediate goal is 271,000 by June 30, 1948 and 341,000 by June 30, 1949. Should this year's goal be reached while the "escape hatch" is still open, recruiters still could sign up men, officers said, as no one accepted now would be processed to receive any drill pay before the new fiscal year begins.

Navy officials also reported many inquiries about enlistment in its organized drilling reserve. Approximately 50,000 vacancies exist, which give draft exemption.

Meanwhile, both at the Office of Selective Service Records and the Pentagon, officials were working overtime on plans to put the draft into effect. Maj. Gen. Lewis Hershey, OSSR chief and wartime draft director, is expected to be named head of the new selective service system.

There will be no "goldfish bowl" lottery as before. Men will be registered and called by age groups in accordance with a new "sequence of birthday dates" system now being worked out. There has been no decision as to what age groups will be called first.

Draft Questions and Answers

Following are the answers to some of the questions on the draft which have been received by The Washington Post:

Q: My son served 14 months in the Navy, all since VJ-Day. Will he be drafted?

A: Not if he had at least 12 months of active service; Annapolis, West Point, Navy V-12 and Army specialized training plan school service does not count.

Q: I will be 26 years old in August of this year. Am I subject to draft?

A: No. The act provides that no one will be inducted without his consent after he reaches his twenty-sixth birthday.

Q: My son just finished his junior year in college and wants to finish next year if not drafted. Can he be deferred until his graduation?

A.—The act provides that anyone ordered to report for induction "while satisfactorily pursuing a full time course" in college shall be deferred until the end of the academic year or until "he ceases to satisfactorily pursue such course." Deferment would therefore appear to depend upon whether your son receives draft orders before he actually starts college this fall. No one can be inducted, under the act until 90 days after the President signs it.

Q.—Will men drafted under the new law get GI Bill of Rights educational benefits?

A.—No.

Q.—I am 19 and eligible for the draft. Can I get into naval aviation, where my brother served during the war?

A.—Probably only by volunteering for a regular enlistment in the Navy or winning an aviation cadet appointment. Navy and Air Force chiefs testified that it is likely that volunteers will fill up all vacancies in the Navy, Marine Corps and Air Force. This would mean all drafted men going into the Army.

Q.—My son finished his junior year in college last week, where he was a member of the ROTC. Can he be drafted while in the ROTC?

A.—Members of the advanced course, senior division of the ROTC, if selected to continue therein, are deferred from the draft. They must serve two years on active duty as an officer after graduation, however.

Q: Will medical students be drafted?

A: That will depend upon selective service regulations to be issued by the President and upon action of local boards. However, it is probable that the regulations will provide some deferments for medical students, under the authority to defer "necessary" men in agriculture, industry, Government, research and study, due to the present Nation-wide shortage of medical men.

Q: I am a veteran, but with less than a year's active service since V-J Day. Will I be drafted?

A: You are subject to call, under the act, if you had more than 90 days but less than 12 months after September 2, 1945 (or less than 90 days between Pearl Harbor and V-J Day), but can avoid being drafted by entering the Reserve before receiving your induction orders. However, you must enter an active, drilling Reserve unit, such as the National Guard, provided such unit is "reasonably accessible" to you without "unduly interupting" your "normal pursuits and activities."

Six Herndon Boys Enlist in a Group Ahead of the Draft

The Washington Post

INTO THE NAVY—Six Herndon, Va., high school boys, all 18 or approaching it, entered the Navy at the Navy Recruiting station, 1400 Pennsylvania ave. nw., yesterday. Lieut. Comdr. R. T. Fahy (left) swore them in. The boys are Wilson D. Powell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul T. Powell; Eugene Mills, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Mills, Route No. 2; John Gilbert Mohler, son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Mohler; Isaac Thomas, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Thomas; Roy Farr, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Farr of Herndon, and Charles O. Costello, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar A. Costello of Herndon. The boys were recruited by J. F. X. O'Connor, recruiting officer for Arlington and Fairfax Counties

the Marine Corps recruiting office, 1400 Pennsylvania ave. nw. Coast Guard recruiters in Arlington reported a normal day.

Capt. W. L. Gates, in charge of local recruitment for the Navy's organized reserve, said he had more than 40 applicants up to 3 p. m. yesterday, as compared to an average of about two or three a day before Congress passed the draft. Telephones rang all day, bringing inquiries from young men falling in the 19-to-25 age group subject to call.

The Army had nine applicants for its reserve corps. Two weeks ago, the office averaged about one a day.

The Air Reserve office jammed through 55 up to 3:30 p. m. The Marine Corps, with no reserve group as such, took in more than 30 applicants by midafternoon, an increase of 300 per cent over last week.

The District's draft machinery, like that throughout the Nation, died with the end of Selective Service in March, 1947. But under the guidance of former District Selective Service Head William E. Leahy, some 450 draft board members agreed to "stand by," forming the Selective Service Association.

Only existing remnant of the World War II draft officially is the Office of Selective Service Records. It is headed locally by Frank Norton, who made the estimate of ten days two weeks in which the local boards could make ready for registering the District's eligible youth.

Norton said the District Commissioners presumably would nominate a Selective Service chief for the District when the bill becomes law. As in the last draft, the President would make the appointment. Then, when the boards are revived would come the registration of those 18 to 25 who fall under the act. They would register on days to be set by Presidential directive, with actual induction beginning late in September, pursuant to the law.

Every minute the draft bill went unsigned on the President's desk yesterday was a godsend for the National Guard, its officers admitted. In previous weeks, the recruiters had to push advertising drives to attract members for the one-night-a-week training. Yesterday, according to Maj. Paul Bailey, in charge of recruiting, lines stood outside the office as clerks hurried to process as many applicants as possible.

Most of the applicants confessed freely they preferred the weekly drill and instruction at $1.25 an hour to 21 months in the service.

Many were students, who under the law would be deferred only to the end of the year.

One of the first to sign up in the National Guard's 380th Anti-Aircraft Battalion was 19-year-old Howard W. Flieger, a copy boy for The Washington Post. Flieger, who lives at 4607 27th st., Mount Rainier, said he hopes to complete his education at George Washington University, where he is majoring in chemistry.

U. S. to Begin Military Talks

By John M. Hightower
Associated Press Staff Writer

Representatives of the western European countries soon will begin military talks with United States defense chiefs. These talks, probably to be held in Washington, will open a new phase in the development of American policy toward Europe.

Officials said today the conversations, in a sense, would be based on the Senate-approved resolution drafted by Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) It put the Senate on record as favoring United States support of regional defense alliances when they serve this country's security interests.

One such regional alliance is the still developing union of Britain, France, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg.

The nations have laid plans for broad political, economic and military cooperation which the American Government hopes will provide the nucleus of a United States of Europe.

One agency of that group is a military committee functioning in London.

The Third Installment of that Thrilling Serial
"FROM $20 A DAY TO $2,000,000 A YEAR"

Chapter Three—"The War Years"
Previous installments told of our beginning in the tiny corner of a drug store, our growth to a store of our own.

JUST like the rest of the world, Plain Old Pearson's lived dangerously in the period immediately prior to World War II. The tension and anxiety of the times reached even unto the liquor industry—but there was humor mixed with the pathos, and of a certainty there was excitement aplenty here in Washington.

In the midst of this confusion, Congress raised the whiskey tax a whopping 50c a bottle, effective October 1, 1940. Chaotic world conditions overshadowed this tax increase for even the thirstiest taxpayers . . . at least until the day before it went into effect.

Suddenly aware that it was now or never, thousands of people lined up in front of Plain Old Pearson's before opening time . . . 8 a. m. in those days. Each had a foresighted gleam in his eye . . . and money clutched in his hot little hand.

Those who ordinarily bought single bottles came prepared to buy a case . . . the case-lot purchasers wanted 10 cases . . . and Mr. Big, the 5-or-10-case man who entertained a lot, brought a borrowed moving van to haul away his purchases!

What a rat race! Plain Old Pearson's was mobbed from dawn to dark. None of the staff took time out to eat that day; nourishment was forgotten as the customers piled up. When the bolt was slid across the door that night, the salesmen quietly dropped in their tracks.

The store looked just like a wheat field after the descent of the locusts . . . nothing remained save paper trash knee deep in the aisles, with a few limp bodies of salesmen lying here and there. Plain Old Pearson's was plain old pooped.

In retrospect, that busily fateful September 30 takes on a rosy glow of humor. Imagine stowing the long green American dollars in an old empty whiskey carton! We did. There simply wasn't room in the cash register for the $40,000 we took in that day . . . so when necessity reared its ugly head, we reared right back. An empty whiskey box, stuck back on the shelf, doubled as a safe that night. And safe it was.

Bright and early next morning we opened the store—and promptly closed it again. The store looked sick, the shelves looked sick, the help looked sick . . . so we declared a holiday.

That fevered surge of uncontrolled buying proved ridiculous in the long run. It always does. F'r'instance: Mr. X bought 50 cases, usually a year's supply for entertaining. He saved $300 on the tax increase. Three short months later an embarrassed Mr. X was in for a new supply. He had used the year's supply in 3 months! Moral: "If you buy more than you need, you may use more than you can buy."

By the time we regained our strength, Uncle Sam started calling up his nephews. Greetings—remember them? Out of the six salesmen in the store, 5 went marching off. Every time one of these bright-eyed, eager youths (?) left, Plain Old Pearson's threw the fanciest stag party ever seen in these parts.

Confusion increased as our staff and supplies diminished. Should we buy enough for a month or a year? Bourbon or Scotch? Should we restrict sales? That was settled for us by the shortage!

First we limited customers to 3 cases, then 1 case, and then 3 bottles. Those were the days when you saw a crowd, and got in line first . . . asked questions later. Like everything else, the liquor business took part in the drama of History in the Making.

Russians Snatch Prisoner From GI

Secret Parley

Cominform Is Reported In Session

By The Associated Press

Usually trustworthy sources in Europe said last night that a meeting of the Cominform is being held "somewhere in Poland."

Top Europeon Communists are attending, presumably from all nine countries of the postwar international Communist "information bureau" organized under Russian leadership last autumn

The meeting is presumed to be reviewing Communists tactics in Europe, in t he wake of the anti-Communist victory in Italy's April elections and the recent Western power decision on self government for the western zones of Germany.

Rumors of a meeting have been current in European capitals, based on absence of such Communist leaders as Palmiro Togliatti from Rome, and Jacques Duclos from Paris.

The meeting place is believed to be the same Polish town where the Cominform was organized under the leadership of A. A. Zhdanov, a member of Russia's Politburo. Establishment of the Cominform was announced last fall, but the town in Poland where the delegates met never was identified.

Togliatti and the top organizer of the Italian Communist Party, Pietri Secchia, made a quiet departure from Rome last Thursday. There was no information concerning the whereabouts of Communist leaders of other Coninform-member countries in Russian-domi nated eastern Europe.

Soviet Agrees To Parley

cal letters to the three western commanders warning them not to attempt to introduce the new currency here. He claimed Berlin is part of the Russian zone.

The news agency's announcement of Russia's acceptance of a currency conference came a few hours after the German economic conference for the Soviet zone placed a currency reform proposal before Sokolovsky. Terms of the proposal were designed to go into effect soon in Berlin and the Russian zone.

The commission said it was intended as an answer to western currency reform and "to protect the population and economy of the Soviet occupation zone."

The American military governor, Gen. Lucius D. Clay, yesterday suspended the movement of United States military freight trains to Berlin rather than allow inspection of their cargoes by the Russians.

He acted after the Russians refused to pass without inspection a train carrying supplies for the 10,000 Americans here. American authorities pulled that train back after it was halted at the Soviet check-point of Marienborn.

American personnel in Berlin will be supplied by air through increasing the number of cargo planes flying from Frankfurt, Clay said. The American military governor made it plain he was standing pat on the policy of not permitting the Russians to board United States Army trains.

Meanwhile spreading economic paralysis gripped Berlin and presumably the Soviet zone of Germany following the currency reform initiated by the United States, Britain and France in western Germany.

Business activity stagnated as the Germans expected the Russians to put through a currency reform of their own to match that carried out in the west.

In western Germany consumer goods were reported appearing in volume on store shelves. The change in money there and the limited amount of the new currency distributed thus far had produced a situation in which goods were more plentiful than money for the first time since the war.

Vienna, June 21 (AP).—Russian soldiers at gunpoint snatched a prisoner today from an American military policeman on patrol in Vienna's international zone.

Sergt. Merrill Allen of Stonington, Me., reported that he had picked up Fritz Nanseck, Austrian interpreter for the American criminal investigation division. Nanseck was said to have been causing a disturbance. With Allen at the time on early morning patrol were British, French and Russian military policemen.

As Allen was driving past the Russian headquarters, he said the Russian M. P. grabbed the wheel of the car in which they were riding and shouted for help. Two Russian officers and two soldiers took the prisoner away and held Allen for 15 minutes, he reported. Nanseck was released a few hours later.

Slavs Liberate Americans

Trieste, June 21 (AP).—The Yugoslavs have liberated two American privates absent without leave since June 9, an Army communique disclosed today.

They were Saverio C. Tremarki of Philadelphia and John R. Wright of Johnson City, Tenn. Their absence had not been announced previously.

They were escorted to a road post between the Yugoslav and Anglo-American Free Territory zones by a Yugoslav detachment Saturday evening, the communique said.

The Army said it had no further word about the expected release of five other soldiers taken captive last week during a pleasure cruise in an Army motorboat along the shore of Istria.

Austrian Inquiry Asked

Vienna, Austria, June 21 (U.P.)—The powerful People's Party asked the government tonight to hold an emergency session of Parliament tomorrow to consider Russian charges that Austrian officials had engaged in espionage.

A spokesman said that the People's and Socialist Party, which hold all but four seats in Parliament, might call for nation-wide protest against demonstrations against the Russian charges after the parliamentary session.

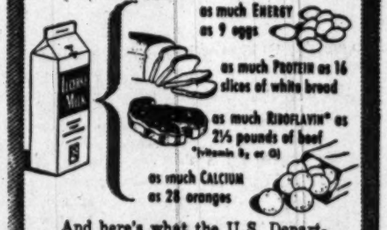
Penny for penny, a rich milk like Lucerne is today's standout value in food

As a source of some of the health values our bodies need most, Lucerne Milk is hard to equal among foods. For example, a single quart of Lucerne supplies:



as much ENERGY as 9 eggs
as much PROTEIN as 16 slices of white bread as much RIBOFLAVIN* as 2½ pounds of beef
*Vitamin B₂ or G as much CALCIUM as 28 oranges

And here's what the U.S. Department of Agriculture says about pure, rich milk like Lucerne: "Milk does more for the body than any other food and does it more cheaply."

Strange Byrd

That great champion of Federal economy and taxpayers' rights, Senator Byrd, has added another set of scalps to his collection. During the harried hours before the Eightieth Congress wound up, when the Federal pay raise was being debated, he successfully harpooned the efforts to extend the increase to high Government officials and Cabinet members. The result of this eagle-eyed economy is to "save" the taxpayers all of one million dollars in legislation that will cost about 530 millions.

Since he was so intent on saving money, presumably Senator Byrd was not much concerned with the incidental effects of this exclusion. The exclusion, however, is in many ways more significant than the raise that was voted. For the goats in the Byrd "economy" are the persons most intimately concerned with the carrying out of governmental policy. The heads of many Government agencies are now drawing salaries that were set by law 20 or more years ago. They have suffered from inflation no less than have classified workers. After much thoughtful consideration, an attempt was made in the Senate to win approval for raising the salaries of such officials and of Cabinet members an average of $5000 a year. In knocking this provision out, Senator Byrd helped confirm the fact that governmental service on a high plane is becoming something only rich men can afford.

An even worse result of the Byrd "economy" is the anomaly it creates with respect to subordinates. For example, a bureau head whose salary is set by law will continue to receive $10,000; but his assistant, who occupies a classified position, now may be paid up to $10,330. If that is good administrative practice, then the whole idea of remuneration in accordance with responsibility is topsy-turvy. Altogether the botch that emerged from Congress, to which Senator Byrd contributed in large measure, cannot help but augment the hemorrhage of talent from the Government. How can the Federal service hold on to its top personnel, much less attract able men from private life, when such ridiculous inconsistencies prevail? Thanks to Senator Byrd, the taxpayers are one million dollars richer—and poorer by many times that amount in the damage that has been wreaked on the caliber of their Government.

Strained Mercy

The displaced persons bill finally passed by Congress blends the worst features of the House and Senate versions. It embodies the senseless House restriction mortgaging the future quotas of countries from which the DPs come—as though immigration were a liability to this Nation which has been built by immigrants. And it retains the mischievous congeries of priorities devised by the Senate to make the measure more an act of exclusion than of liberation for Europe's refugees.

The people who most need admission to the United States will be denied it by this bill. Under its terms displaced persons can secure American visas only if they are assured of housing and jobs not displacing any Americans when they get here—a provision which we should think it impossible for the Displaced Persons Commission to administer unless its members are clairvoyant. The bill is rankly discriminatory. The preference it accords agricultural workers and DPs from the countries overrun by Soviet Russia discriminates transparently against Jews. And this discrimination is made even more manifest by use of the Senate's date, December 22, 1945, instead of the more liberal and realistic House provision of April 21, 1947, as the deadline by which refugees must have entered Germany, Austria or Italy in order to be classified as DPs. The 1945 date slams the door on all those Jews who sought sanctuary from postwar Polish pogroms.

The spirit in which Congress acted on this measure was reflected also in the harsh stipulation which Mr. Taber succeeded in jamming into the final version of the ECA appropriation—withholding 40 per cent of the American contribution to the International Refugee Organization unless diets in the DP camps are reduced to the level of the countries in which they are located. Thus we have the spectacle of Congress acting simultaneously to drive the refugees from their places of refuge and to deny them any hope of admission to the United States. We hope that the President will stifle his understandable revulsion over the DP bill and let it become law because it makes a slight start, however shoddy and inadequate, toward eventual resolution of the DP problem. Fortunately there are many in the House and Senate alike who will share his sense of regret over an act so devoid of generosity. They can be counted upon in the next Congress to press for adoption of a measure embracing traditional American concepts of justice and humanity.

President And Congress

Senator Barkley has raised the question of the relations between the President and Congress at an opportune time. Despite the commendable record of the Eightieth Congress in dealing wtih foreign affairs and some aspects of domestic affairs, it was often bedeviled by friction and frustrations. Certainly its experience has once more demonstrated the need for fresh examination of the flimsy harness in which these two units of the Nation's legislative team are expected to work together.

Those who feared disaster as a result of the division of responsibility between a Democratic President and a Republican Congress were altogether too pessimistic. The record of the Eightieth Congress definitely shows that bipartisan cooperation is possible when public opinion is strongly pushing both parties in the same direction. The record is good enough to indicate that our present system is not hopeless even when leadership is divided between the two parties and bad enough to suggest that substantial improvements in the system could be made. There must be an intimate relation between the President and Congress, as Senator Barkley notes, if the Government is to carry out the will of the people. Presidents who have maintained a friendly and cooperative relationship with Congress, he thinks, have in the main been able to work out their programs more successfully than others. The question is how this obviously desirable teamwork can be attained.

Senator Barkley would abolish the mid-term elections in which members of the House of Representatives are chosen in order to minimize the possibility of divided control. This would give every President, he points out, four years in which to develop his legislative program. So far as the President is concerned, the advantage of four-year congressional terms might be substantial, and the same may be said for the Representatives who would have fewer contests to fight. But for the country the change might be very unfortunate. Sometimes the people do not want the President's program to be carried out for four years. That happened in 1930. It happened again in 1946. In these days of rapidly moving events, sudden shifts in public opinion which could not be reflected in a change of policy during a four-year period might lead to violent fluctuation if not to explosions.

If legislative terms should be lengthened, some kind of safety valve would have to be introduced into our system. The device most commonly suggested is special elections to be ordered by the President if Congress should reject a major item in his program or by Congress through the device of voting no confidence in the President. These would seem to defeat the purpose of lengthening the congressional term. All such arrangements, morever, contemplate a virtual shift-over to the parliamentary system of government with which our people have had no experience. Before making any such drastic departure from the balance of powers formula, common sense seems to dictate experimentation with the substantial improvements that can be made within our constitutional structure.

The leadership device advocated by the La Follette-Monroney Committee and by many others has not yet been put into operation. As Senator Barkley points out, all Presidents in recent years have maintained close contacts with some congressional leaders. But none has had the advantage of a formal executive-legislative council to help shape a program which both branches would be eager to bring to fruition. This proposal, coupled with representative leadership within both the House and Senate through majority policy committees, is so promising as an aid to cooperation between Congress and the President that it certainly ought to be given a genuine trial before any major constitutional changes are seriously discussed.

Hiring Halls

Happily for the European Recovery Program as well as our own domestic economy, the Nation-wide maritime strike has been postponed at least until June 24. Court orders obtained simultaneously in New York, Cleveland and San Francisco at the behest of the Administration forbid company lockouts or strikes by the seven unions involved during a 10-day period. In that interval hearings will be held to determine whether the full 80-day enjoinder of the Taft-Hartley Act should be invoked. Though there is no particular reason to congratulate the unions for obeying the court order, it is encouraging that so far there have been no defections from the decision of union leaders not to flout the law.

But while a damaging work stoppage has been temporarily averted, the basic issue in the dispute remains unsolved. That issue is, simply, the applicability to the shipping industry of the anti-closed-shop provision of the Taft-Hartley law. It long has been the custom for companies to hire ship crews through the medium of union hiring halls. The unions want this practice continued under new contracts with employers. The shipping companies contend, on the other hand, that the use of hiring halls is prohibited by the provision of the law forbidding employers to discriminate in hiring because of union membership. Because of possible damage claims involved, the companies are understandably chary about acceding to the union requests to include the hiring hall clause as a basis for a court test.

Legal niceties of the case appear to be on the side of management; the prohibition on closed shops is now the law of the land. But an excellent case can be made that the use of hiring halls has actually stabilized labor relationships in the maritime industry and that it has tended to promote union responsibility. Certainly it has been preferable, from the standpoint of workers and management alike, to the old practice of hiring from many separate agencies, or even to the custom still followed in some areas of "shape-up" hiring on the spot. The argument of shipping companies that they should have more control over their own personnel has some merit, but it seems a pity that in order to achieve this a procedure which on the whole has worked smoothly must be junked.

Current unfair labor practice charges now being investigated by the National Labor Relations Board may throw some light on the status of hiring halls. Yet it is hard to see how the NLRB can reach a finding that would run contrary to the law, which is quite explicit. Nor is the answer to be found in compromises which merely evade the law, whatever such comprises may contribute to temporary harmony. Fundamentally the issue is one that must be decided by Congress itself. Whether the solution lies in special legislation for the shipping industry or in a general recasting of the closed shop ban in light of experience, the problem will remain an irritant until it is met squarely.

U. N. Loan

No amount of explanation can gloss over the slight to the United Nations entailed in the failure of Congress to approve the 65-million-dollar loan for construction of the permanent U. N. headquarters in New York. Foreigners will ask: is the United Nations really the keystone of American foreign policy? Even the plank on international cooperation in the Republican platform draft submitted by Senator Lodge is left with a worm in it.

The tragedy of the situation is that the one major blot on the foreign affairs record of the Eightieth Congress resulted as much from a bungle as from any intentional move to discredit the U. N. For this the State Department was to blame. The building loan was presented to Congress as a unilateral proposition, despite repeated warnings from Senator Vandenberg in the Budget Committee of the United Nations Assembly that unless other nations helped finance the U. N., at least on a token basis, congressional ill-will would result. On principle, at least, there was a sound basis for this argument. The United Nations can hardly succeed if it is to lean entirely on the United States for financial support. As it was presented to Congress, the appeal played directly into the hands of such admitted foes of the U. N. as Representative Halleck. Although the Senate finally pushed aside objections and passed the loan, in the House a direct vote almost certainly would have killed it. Hence the loan was camouflaged in the omnibus U. N. bill. Even this strategy did not work, for the whole omnibus measure was lost.

The important thing now is to learn the lesson and attempt to repair the damage before the U. N. Assembly meets in Paris in September. One possible course is to seek private financing for the headquarters—a move which, whatever its feasibility, would entail considerable loss of prestige for the international organization. The other, and preferable, way is for Delegate Austin to convince U. N. officials of the necessity for broadening participation in the loan in time for the matter to be considered anew if a special session of Congress is called later this summer. In any event, a determined effort must be made if the peace agency which this country was instrumental in forming is not to be left a foundling on our doorstep.

Atom Commission

Congress has set before the President a difficult and disagreeable choice in respect of the Atomic Energy Commission. If he vetoes the bill extending the present terms of the commissioners for a two-year period, he will be able to make only recess appointments valid for no more than the balance of this year. This would mean nothing less than a total demoralization of the commission and a virtual suspension of its activities until its composition can be definitely determined. If he signs the bill, he will be giving assent, under duress, to a shabby political act patently designed to make the Atomic Energy Commission a political plum. The country is bound to suffer either way.

Acceptance of the measure seems to us the lesser horn of this dilemma. The work of the Atomic Energy Commission is now at a peculiarly crucial stage. Urgent decisions must be made which in the course of the next year or two will set the pattern for future development of the great new force which science has unleashed. And it is in the immediate present, of course, that maintenance of American supremacy in the atomic field is of paramount importance to the Nation's security. It would be a grave misfortune if the experience and momentum of the incumbent commissioners should now be lost. The President, we hope, will draft them into remaining for the vital two years ahead. Perhaps at the end of that time the Republicans will have learned better than to play politics with the atom.

Frustrated Pay Raise

Senator Cain's contention that District employes should not benefit by the recent pay increase because the District sales tax was not approved, makes one erroneous assumption, namely, that District employes should absorb the cost of the sales tax while Federal employes, living here, should not.

As things now stand, the overwhelming number of Federal employes living in the Nation's Capital will enjoy the pay increase without a local penalty at the same time the much small number of District employes are being punished. If anything, Federal employes have everything to gain now if no one does anything about legislating a local sales tax.

With more time available to the legislators now that the congressional haste for adjournment is over, let us hope that the inequity to the District employes will be rectified. S. D.

Washington.

That one segment of Washington employes should be completely left out of the pay raise program certainly does not seem just. Since the District needs additional revenue, why not adopt some sale tax plan such as this: Exempt foods, medicines, and other necessities such as shoes (up to a certain price) and clothes (up to a certain price) from this tax?

This plan would place a tax on luxuries and on medium and high-priced commodities and would therefore place the tax burden not on the little man but on those in medium and high income tax brackets. It would also catch those parasites who are receiving District salaries but who are not paying District taxes.

I feel sure that persons who are not biased in their thinking hope some plan will be devised whereby District salaries can and will be be raised to the level of Federal salaries.

Perhaps, if the District had suffrage, such inequities would not exist. DISTRICT EMPLOYE.

Meaningful Platforms

The release of atomic energy since the national convention of 1944 has determined necessary national policies, and political parties planning continued existence under democratic processes cannot ignore those policies.

Political platforms can no longer be merely an alibi for exploiters and a lullaby for the exploited. Our domestic policies largely affect, when they do not actually determine, our foreign policies.

For nearly two decades America has had a deficiteering economy, and in 1939 war came to our rescue. Even today our alleged prosperity is largely based upon the use of war savings, huge expansion of installment buying, enormous Government expenditures, vast excess of exports over imports, and the anticipated profits and employment of a needless and wasteful rearmament program, which heads the Nation rapidly toward a 300-billion-dollar national debt. The minimum domestic program to meet our situation is:

1. Public ownership of natural resources, natural monopolies, and basic industries.

2. Paying costs of Government by taxation based on ability to pay and benefits received from Government.

3. Government direction of farm production, and control of processing and distribution of farm products, with direct payments where needed to marginal farmers.

To prevent war, the Government must initiate and participate in international arrangements, such as the control of atomic energy, money, credit, trade, natural resources and cartels, to prevent depressions and wars.

About four million people are on relief at a cost to Government of about 1.7 billion dollars a year: three million families during the past year have used up wartime savings; about half of the farmers account for around 85 per cent of farm production; price increases have wiped out the wage increases of low-paid workers; and millions of families, on small fixed incomes, cannot maintain a decent standard of living.

Makeshift policies and makeshift platforms can no longer meet America's needs.

"Theater for Washington"

Here we go again, down another shortcut on the road to socialization. This time it's a Government subsidy for a theater in Washington. If that isn't what the last paragraph of your editorial of June 19 calls for, then I don't understand modern English. In plain words, the taxpayer in What Cheer, Iowa, will help to pay part of the cost of my ticket to see a show in Washington, no matter whether he likes either the idea or the show.

Just another example of how what is now called "liberalism" always seems to wind up in somebody getting some Government money, with the taxpayer footing the bill, of course. In the doubletalk that passes for English in these parts, that is called "democracy in action," or "nondiscrimination" or "the American way," or some other fancy-sounding phrase. Who cares what the taxpayer calls it?

"You All"

I have watched breathlessly the battle of "you all" and am no longer able to remain silent. I believe with a perfect faith that "you all" used in the second person singular is correct. When a Southerner asks a friend "how are you all" he wishes to convey to him the feeling that he is interested in all of him, from his head to his toes, including his corns and bunions. RAE SAMIT.

Wealth Concentration

Among the economic forces which have long been rocking the none-too-steady boat called "western civilization," the concentration of wealth—and consequently of economic and political power—in the hands of a relatively few individuals and privately owned corporations has played a leading part. A community whose members enjoy a considerable measure of economic equality is likely to be stable, perhaps even static, whereas one which permits its wealth to come largely under the control of a small group is bound to be recurrently disturbed by conflict between the "haves" and the "have-nots."

In every democratic western country, including our own, the private ownership of natural resources, patents and other legally created monopolies, and the industrialization of the national economy under private-corporation control, combined with financial manipulation and interlocking directorates, long since gave to the business - class minority virtual control over the institutions which mold public opinion and the agencies which make or modify public policy.

On the international scene, in the field of business, this concentration of wealth and power reached its ultimate form in the international cartels, or trusts. In the political field a small number of wealthy nations built their military organizations, acquired colonies and dependencies and fought wars of elimination.

As Toynbee writes in a recent article, "Within the span of a single lifetime, the number of great powers of the highest material caliber—if we measure this caliber in sheer war potential—has dwindled from eight to two." The course of this rapid concentration of wealth and power has been marked by economic upsets and mortal political combats.

Both domestically and internationally, those who have exploited the have-nots, subsidize them and dictate to them, while the have-nots, on their side, resent, distrust and learn to hate the dominant minority, and finally rise in rebellion against them.

The concentration of wealth results in social instability and insecurity. It should be dealt with in the same energetic manner as piracy, a typhoid-infected water supply or any other menace to the public well-being.

Veterans And The Housing Defeat

Your June 18 editorial on the arbitrary and undemocratic tactics which have been used by the House Republican leadership, under the direction of Speaker Martin, to defeat adequate housing legislation was an outstanding analysis of what veterans believe to be the most shameful demonstration of crass disregard of their desperate housing plight since the end of the war. If the editorial erred, it erred on the side of restrained understatement.

It is doubtful, indeed, that anyone except those of us who are in daily communication with World War II veterans all over the country fully realizes the bitterness with which veterans have accepted this disillusioning blow at their housing hopes.

Poll after poll has demonstrated that veterans by overwhelming majorities regard housing as their number one problem. Poll after poll has shown that veterans are united by overwhelming majorities in support of the Taft-Ellender-Wagner long range housing bill.

After the bill had won support in the Joint Congressional Housing Committee, the Senate Banking Committee, the Senate, and finally in even the House Banking Committee, veterans had expected that their housing needs had been recognized. You can imagine the type of letters we are receiving now that the bill has been blocked by a few headstrong men who have chosen to heed the wishes of the same real estate lobby which President Truman has termed subversive.

Since veterans have been more than patient in their housing demands, it is probably difficult for the general public to appreciate their present indignation. A concrete and amazing demonstration of the united will of veterans on the housing issue was provided by the National Veterans Housing Conference held in Washington in early spring.

To the surprise of experienced observers who have seldom witnessed the major veterans organizations presenting a solid front, the 1500 delegates to the conference—representing every major veterans organization—voted unanimously in favor of the TEW bill, including the public housing features, which are controversial only in the sense that they are opposed by the real estate lobby.

Veterans rightly regard the totalitarian dictatorial attitude of Martin and his crew as a direct blow at every democratic concept. I venture to predict that when the full wrath of veterans makes itself felt the men responsible for killing the TEW bill—Martin, Halleck, Wolcott and Allen—will become the most hated men in public life. Loyalty Hallucination

It might be to the interest of every reader of The Washington Post to reread the letter of June 5 by B. C. B. concerning his questioning by a representative of the Federal Government about the loyalty of a fellow Government employe. The examining agent stated, "no proof or evidence is necessary, because even hallucinations of neurotics are evidence enough, for sometimes hallucinations are based on something tangible."

Even the most short-sighted person can foresee the outcome of such a practice, which will mean of course that no one, either in the Government or in private industry, will escape similar humiliation. Bringing the representative mentioned above before an open court would set a salutary example for others like-minded. But, what might happen to the individual who preferred the charge is anybody's guess. L. A.

Calling Washington

By Marquis Childs

GOP Compromise

PHILADELPHIA—Eight years ago another Republican convention met here in Philadelphia. So much has happened in that brief space of time, and yet the Republican Party has been remarkably sheltered from the winds of change.

The same men are in key positions of control. In many instances they have the same ideas they held in 1940. They are a little grayer, a little heavier, but otherwise they are miraculously unchanged.

The candidates, with the addition of Harold Stassen, are the same. Governor Dewey, Senators Taft and Vandenberg were contending in 1940 as they are in 1948.

Two men are missing this time. One is Wendell Willkie, the dynamic figure who charged that earlier convention with an intense kind of excitement that left the cautious managers powerless.

The other is Franklin D. Roosevelt, whose presence hung over the earlier gathering like a mocking cloud. Today the chances for victory seem so great that they could not possibly be thrown away. That is the something new that has been added.

As in 1940, two hostile wings of the party confront each other across the gulf of foreign policy. One, the nationalist wing, talks of keeping America strong and isolated, of keeping out foreigners and foreign influences. The other wing, which has grown greatly in eight years, is conscious of America's world position and world responsibility.

THERE WAS just a possibility that the issue between these two so widely separated factions might have been drawn in open battle here at the convention. It could have come if at the last minute Senator Vandenberg had been willing to lead the faction he speaks for in Congress.

The opportunity was put up to him on the eve of the convention. He was urged to issue a personal statement declaring for the principle of world cooperation and world reconstruction to bring peace and stability.

Headlined in the Sunday papers, such a statement would inevitably have made Vandenberg an active candidate for the nomination. He would have come to Philadelphia as the champion of the forces in the party and the convention that believe in the need for America's positive leadership.

After two soul-searching hours, in the midst of the turbulent last day of Congress, Vandenberg said no. History may have a great deal to say about the reasons for that decision— in terms of Vandenberg's temperament, his past, his approach to life. Instead of the statement read to Vandenberg on the telephone, it was agreed that Michigan's Governor Sigler should put out a release stating, as he had said several times before, that he knew Vandenberg was "available."

The result, it seems to me, is likely to be compromise. The convention will try to square the circle—to reconcile the irreconcilable—just as Congress did in the closing hours. Vital legislation—the draft, money for ERP—had the narrowest squeak.

GOVERNOR GREEN of Illinois will deliver a keynote address sounding the isolationist-nationalist theme. The foreign affairs plank in the platform will take the international line.

When it comes to candidates, the only possible compromise would seem to be Dewey. He has taken a stand for America's leadership and the acceptance of responsibility. Extreme nationalists such as Col. Robert R. McCormick have therefore put him under the same ban they impose on Vandenberg and Stassen.

But at the same time Dewey has not been in active combat with the Tabers and the Wherrys in his party. He has stood outside that battle, deliberately and cautiously. The outcome: Dewey accepted by the delegates with reluctance in all quarters.

Perhaps this is the only way the American party system can work. The end result tends to be not what the largest number are actively for, but the man and the policy meeting with the least resistance.

The hazards in this kind of compromise are very great. If the convention follows this course, as it seems likely to do, those hazards may not at once be apparent. But the Tabers in the Senate and the House are very likely to make themselves heard again. They will have accepted the compromise as merely a kind of truce essential to the larger victory of Republican over Democrat.

To have fought the issue out might have rended the party. The internationalists can point to definitive and positive gains over 1940. So the world does not stand still and all the blood, sweat, toil, tears and treasure spent in the intervening time may not have been entirely in vain.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Politics Of It

PHILADELPHIA. — Though the Republican convention is almost certainly choosing the next President, the leaders who will make the choice would be fooling themselves if they thought the Republican Party has a dependable majority among the people. The majority now in sight for the November election is no doubt enough to win.

LIPPMANN

But it is not as yet the kind of majority which they can count upon holding together even for two years, that is to say for the congressional and State elections of 1950, much less for four years.

The Republican majority today is made up of the minority of habitual Republicans plus all the people who want a change, who are tired of Truman and the 16 years of Democratic rule. There is certainly no majority which believes in salvation by the Republicans, no majority which knows what a Republican administration would be like. A majority of that sort can melt as fast as a cake of ice in the broiling sun. Mr. Hoover was elected in 1928 by an electoral vote of 444 to 87. Two years later he had lost control of Congress. Two years after that Roosevelt defeated him by 472 to 59. In the popular vote during those four years, counting only the major party votes, the Republican percentage fell from nearly 59 per cent to less than 41 per cent. There must be at least a hundred Republican Congressmen who could not survive such a shift in the popular vote.

THEREFORE unless the candidates and leaders are not thinking much beyond the November election and the January inauguration, their main concern will not be how to beat Truman but how to make it reasonably certain that they have not only a big majority but a durable one. The practical question, not only for the country and the world, of course, but also for the professional politicians, is not whether they win but how they win. Their real problem is how to consolidate their provisional majority into a stable majority over a period of at least eight years.

Now it must be evident that to nominate Martin or Bricker would mean that at the best they would have the smallest majority which any Republican could get. Large numbers of voters who are ready now to vote Republican would not vote at all. Considerable numbers would return reluctantly to Truman. It is not at all improbable that many would be so outraged that they would bolt, turn to the anti-Truman Democrats, and resort to some desperate expedient like the drafting of General Eisenhower. The Republicans, even if they had a majority in November, would not only have a relatively small one but it would also be highly unreliable.

Less acutely the same results would follow the nomination of Senator Taft. While he would be personally acceptable to many who could never put up with Martin or Bricker, it is quite certain that a Taft administration would have a very weak popular foundation. It might be that Taft, who has character and brains and genuine public spirit, could win over many who would begin by opposing him. But though he might grow strong in office, his position at the outset would be weak. Considering the enormous difficulties which the incoming Administration will have to meet, it would be very serious to have as President a man who was not firmly and solidly established.

A TICKET—for the Vice Presidency is of critical importance in the present situation—drawn from the Vandenberg-Dewey - Stassen - Warren-Duff-Lodge combination would obviously have the widest, the most representative, and therefore the most durable popular base. This combination covers the whole Republican constituency except the irreconcilable diehards—the total reactionaries and the new isolationists who are rather aggressive expansionists and imperialists.

But it extends much further than that. It reaches into the new generation of voters, of whom the great majority have been Roosevelt Democrats, and into that very considerable mass of independents who had to vote for a third term and a fourth because the Martins and the Tabers left them no alternative.

IN THIS combination Vandenberg, with Dewey or Stassen or Warren as his running mate, would most certainly and convincingly solidify the popular vote. The vulnerable figure is Dewey. That is because he may be tempted to get the nomination by making a deal which would leave the diehards with so much power in the new Administration that, later on, he would have either to yield to them or to fight them. But for that very serious contingency, a strong case can be made that Dewey, all in all, though not the most popular, would be the most effective President of the lot.

It is, however, a very big but. Dewey, if he got the nomination after refusing to compromise on the essentials of party control, would be a quite different President from a Dewey who got a synthetic nomination, flnagled together if not in a smoke-filled room, then on a spacious country estate.

Caribbean Threat

By Sumner Welles

Cause For Alarm In Costa Rica

THE BELIEF expressed in this column two weeks ago that recent developments in the Caribbean afford ground for legitimate concern to the entire continent has called forth vehement protests from several of those now in authority in Central America.

As was to be expected, I am accused of being misinformed, of bias or of partiality.

I have of course no bias against any political movement, provided it is of hemispheric origin and inspiration. But the experience gained during more than 30 years has convinced me that any political organization in this continent which is subject to foreign direction is a menace to the true interests of every American nation.

From the time when Constantin Oumanski was sent as Soviet Ambassador to Mexico the Communist parties in the Western Hemisphere have sought to disrupt the inter-American system in order to further the Kremlin's objectives. The tactics are the same as those the Axis employed in earlier years.

They are, however, more effective. They are calculated to undermine democratic government, to create dissension between the American republics, and in particular to arouse popular hostility against the United States. The American states cannot under these conditions dismiss lightly the threat to their safety that is inherent in any inter-American dispute or in any overthrow of constitutional government within the hemisphere.

WE ARE witnessing in many parts of the Caribbean a progressive breakdown of constitutional processes, increasing violations by governments of the mitment to refrain from interfering "directly or indirectly" in the internal affairs of their neighbors, and, because of economic depression the likelihood of further political and social unrest.

At a time when the world horizon is darkened by the crisis in the relations between Russia and the West the vital interests of all of the peoples of the Americas, as well as the security of the United States, demand, just as they did at the time of Pearl Harbor, Pan-American solidarity, cooperation in hemispheric defense, and stability within each American republic.

The dangers to be seen in Costa Rica as a result of the recent revolution are internal as well as external.

In postwar Europe we have repeatedly seen former Nazi and Fascist leaders join the Communists. In the dictatorship established in Costa Rica by the Figueres junta, not only are individuals known to have been Communist Party members now exercising a potent influence, but notorious Nazi agents, deported during the war to the United States and confined in our own concentration camps, are presently occupying key positions in the government.

The external danger lies in the fact that some American governments are vigorously backing the Figueres regime while others are combating its activities because they regard them as a menace to their own security. So long as these conditions persist, the danger of an inter-American conflict cannot be discarded.

IN A protest against my column, published by Dr. Munoz Meany, Guatemalan Foreign Minister, Dr. Munoz Meany asserts that the interest shown by his government in Costa Rica is "nothing strange" since "Guatemala must always be interested in all the occurences in Central America."

I would be the first to maintain that every American nation has a right to be interested. The question is, what kind of interest?

It is now an established fact that the larger part of the munitions used in the Figueres revolution came from Guatemala in airplanes that landed at the airfield of San Isidro del General near the Figueres plantation, where the revolt started. Can it be seriously maintained that this would indicate a wholly legitimate interest on the part of the Guatemalan government or one that was in harmony with the principle of nonintervention?

Dr. Munoz Meany also makes the peculiar charge that I support Latin-American dictatorships. It is precisely because of my support for democracy, international as well as national, that I have consistently fought for the principle of nonintervention, and for the right of the people of every American republic, so long as their national policies do not endanger the legitimate rights of their neighbors, to determine their own form of government free from outside interference.

Interference in Costa Rica by Guatemala, quite as much as by Nicaragua, would corrode the foundation of the inter-American system and, particularly at this moment, endanger the safety of the hemisphere.

THE GRAVITY of the problems created by the present situation in Costa Rica is accentuated by the signs of disintegration that are apparent in other parts of the Caribbean.

The charter of the organization of the American states was the great achievement of the Bogota conference. The mechanisms for which it provides afford an effective means through which the American republics can jointly take precautionary measures to guard against immediate dangers.

The basic remedy for the ills with which the peoples of the Caribbean are now afflicted will only be found in inter-American policies which will encourage agricultural diversification, promote industrialization, and raise living standards which are in many instances a disgrace to the New World.

In any such enlightened policies the assistance of the United States is indispensable. Such help and constructive cooperation on our part today might well preclude the need for a far greater national effort tomorrow.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph and Stewart Alsop

The Basket Of Eels

Philadelphia.—The central figure of the opening phase of the Republican convention is the brisk, competent, ambitious Governor of New York. Thomas E. Dewey wants the Presidency so badly he can taste it. He is so close to getting the Republican nomination that he must already imagine he hears the deafening, delicious roar of the ovation for the victor. He is pressing so hard that irreverant gossips say he has already promised a single, unhappily indivisible collectorship of the internal revenue to no less than three of the hungry faithful. And he would have the thing in the bag if a few people liked him just a little bit better.

The leaders whose dislike threatens Governor Dewey are Harold Stassen, Gov. Earl Warren of California and Gov. James Duff of Pennsylvania. If these three should combine with Governor Driscoll of New Jersey to start a boom for Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, Dewey's chance of being nominated would be drastically reduced. Or if Harold Stassen should agree to support Senator Robert A. Taft in return for second place on the ticket, Taft would become a very real challenge to his New York rival.

A Taft-Stassen ticket has been a secret Taft objective for some time, although Taft was reading Stassen out of the Republican Party only a few weeks ago. In the squalid closing hours of the Congress, Taft's Philadelphia floor manager Congressman George Bender, was talking a Taft-Stassen deal to every Stassenite in sight. Now the idea of the deal has been publicly endorsed by no less a titan than Col. Robert R. McCormick, whose eagerness to get Taft into the presidency seems to have overcome his detestation for Stassen. The story behind all this mystifying maneuvering casts a rather sharp, unlovely light, both on the character of this convention, and on Governor Dewey's problem.

DEWEY'S PROBLEM, essentially, is to capture one of the big State delegations which added to his present strength, should carry his bandwagon across the finish line. All things considered, Illinois has long been about his best bet. The Illinois favorite son is Gov. Dwight Green, who is just the sort of politician who could be expected to make his way as Colonel McCormick's creature. Under McCormick's influence, Illinois is committed to Taft. But there are already at least eight Dewey men in the group, and over 40 of the Illinois delegates are State office-holders. If Green could be induced to break away from McCormick, the office-holders would follow. Taft would lose Illinois.

Accordingly, some time ago, it began to be known that Dewey was tryign to tempt Governor Green, who longs to ascend to the empyrean of national politics. What must coarsely be called a deal seems to have been offered. Green was to defy the terrifying lightnings of the colonel's wrath. He was to lead his officeholders into the Dewey camp at the right moment. And Dewey was to reward Green with the Vice Presidency, the secretaryship of national defense or some other plum.

Since Oregon, Harold Stassen has been almost more eager to defeat Dewey than to be nominated himself. He evidently got wind of the temptations being spread before Green. He happened to see Colonel McCormick shortly before the convention, and took the remarkable step of rwarning the colonel that Dewey and Green were plotting behind his august back. At that time the colonel made no visible sign. Since then, reports have continuously circulated, both that Green would yield to Dewey's temptations, and that Stassen would join with Taft. The colonel's endorsement of a Taft-Stassen ticket suggest that Dewey is to be denied his hoped-for Illinois support (although, of course, Green is still perfectly cable of giving a good sharp bite to the hand that fed him, if only he dares). The question remains whether Stassen will accept McCormick's suggestion of a deal with Taft.

ON THIS POINT, two facts can be stated authoritatively. In the first place, Stassen himself has explained to several callers that his cooperation with Taft against Dewy, in such matters as the seating of the Georgia delegation, is aimed exclusively at Dewey, the purpose, Stassen says, is to hurt Dewey greatly without helping Taft much. In the second place, a leading pro-Taft businessman from Stassen's native Twin-Cities went to Stassen last night, and offered him the vice presidency, cold turkey, if he would back Taft for first place. Without hesitation, Stassen turned the offer down flat. But will he change his mind now?

Stassen is intensely ambitious, and has sometimes made grave concessions to expediency. He has never yet shown himself, however, to be as totally unprincipled as supporting Taft (whose views are the exact opposite of his own) would prove him. Although the vagaries of the human heart are difficult to predict, it is still an odds-on bet that Stassen will not go with Taft.

But if Dewey is not to be menaced by a Taft-Stassen deal, he has still to deal with the possible combination of Governors Warren, Duff, Driscoll and Stassen in favor of Vandenberg. The formation of such a combination will be an immensely complex operation, involving the interaction of all sorts of factors of vanity and ambition. The Vandenberg underground, which includes some very shrewd operators, is working on the project. If Illinois is really beyond Dewey's reach, the tasks of the Vandenberg underground will be rendered far easier. But the combination is not formed yet. Furthermore, if the underground looks like being able to put Vandenberg over, there is always the last minute possibility that Dewey will benefit by switches of Taft strength. Such a political basket of eels is this convention, which is to settle the fate of the United States and the world.

Special Master Ordered in Tidal Oil Case

By The Associated Press

The Supreme Court yesterday agreed that a special master should be appointed to take evidence on conflicting claims by California and the Justice Department to sections of oil-rich coastal lands.

The court in a 8-0 order directed the Chief Justice to make such an appointment. Justice Jackson took no part in the action.

The court directed that the special master hold hearings if necessary and make recommendations to the high tribunal in its next term beginning in October.

The Supreme Court last October decreed that the United States has "paramount rights in, and full dominion and power over" lands lying seaward of the low-water mark off the California coast. It left for later determination the exact boundary lines between State and Federal judisdiction.

The Government recently asked the court to issue a supplemental decree establishing boundary lines for coastal areas claimed by the United States in which more than 300 wells are now producing oil.

California in a reply petition attacked the Government's suggested boundaries. The State said they would not enable the Federal Government to accurately identify the location of one well.

The State recommended that a special master hear testimony on questions of fact and of law. The master's findings and recommendations then would be reviewed by the Supreme Court, California added.

Meat Supply Promises to Be Even Shorter

By John Ball
Post Reporter

America's meat supply, already short, promises to be even less next winter and spring, the Department of Agriculture indicated yesterday.

The June report of this spring's pig crop shows that there are 1,381,000 heads less than a year ago—the smallest since 1941.

The number of spring pigs, on which our pork supply for the winter and next year depends, is 3 per cent, or 1,381,000 head, less than a year ago.

Smallest Since 1940

The total crop for the year, both spring and fall pigs, is expected to be the smallest since 1940. Since 1940 the Census Bureau estimates the population has increased by almost 10 million persons.

Nearly all the decrease was reported from one State, Iowa. Iowa this year will produce 22 per cent of all the pigs raised in the country—more than any three other States. Last year it produced almost one quarter of the crop.

States near Washington have more pigs than last year.

Virginia's spring pigs are estimated at 572,000 compared with 538,000 last year; Maryland has 198,000—the same as a year ago; West Virginia 182,000 compared with 163,000 in 1947, and Delaware 23,000 compared with 20,000 last year. With cattle numbering the lowest in eight years and sheep and lambs fewer than in any year since 1868, Agriculture officials had hoped for a larger pig crop.

Americans this year will get only 143 pounds of meat per person compared with 156 pounds a year ago, the Bureau of Agriculture Economics estimates. This figure is expected to drop below 140 pounds next year in view of yesterday's report.

Rebel Chief Surrenders in Philippines

Manila, June 21 (AP).—Luis Taruc surrendered personally tonight to President Elpidio Guirino, who immediately decreed amnesty for Taruc's 50,000 peasant followers in an effort to end two years of bloody warfare.

Necessary congressional approval is expected Tuesday. Then the Hukbalahap and National Peasant Union members will have 20 days to yield up their weapons.

Taruc and five lieutenants who surrendered with him handed over token arms in their quietly dramatic meeting with the president of the Philippines.

They were taken to the home of the president's brother and go-between, Judge Antonio Quirino.

Ex-Convict's Story Gains Him Leniency

A youthful ex-convict won judicial leniency in Montgomery County Circuit Court yesterday after telling of the troubles he has had since his family was wiped out in a train wreck when he was 3 years old.

Judge Charles W. Woodward, noted for his usually still sentences, suspended a 2-year jail term of John A. Williams, 25, after hearing Willams' story of his life. The men was convicted of stealing a car from a Chevy Chase home.

The court's liency does not write a happy ending to the Williams case. He is held at Rockville jail for authorities of four States, Pennsylvania, Missouri, Wisconsin and North Dakota, in connection with housebreaking and lorcenies.

Williams, a 230-pound six-footer, told the court how he was reared in a foster home, and was "duped" at the age of 21 into assisting innocently in ahousebreaking. He claimed an acquaintance in Ohio induced him to enter what Williams thought to be the friend's house, to get a radio. However, neither home nor radio, it turned out, belonged to the friend.

"I took the rap, though, because he was married and I wasn't," Williams told the court. After serving one year in Ohio, he was paroled in the custody of a "a former convict," Williams said.

Williams reported that his "guardian" prevented him from going straight, by informing a series of employers that Williams was an "ex-con," causing him to be fired.

"So I figured I had to leave town—jump parole—and that's where I made my mistake," Williams said. Unable to stay long in any community for fear authorities would catch up with him, Williams said he roved the country, taking odd jobs and stealing occasionally—"just small sums to live on."

Chevy Chase police said the victim of the ear theft, Mrs. Frederick M. Kirby, 114 Hesketh st., asked the court to be lenient.

11 Ministers Paid Less Than $3500

Eleven churches in the Presbytery of Washington City are paying minister less than $3500 plus manse per year, it was revealed yesterday.

Dr. John Bailey Kelly, pastor of Georgetown Presbyterian Church, presented the report on salaries at a meeting of the Presbytery of Washington City of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A. in Darnestown Presbyterian Church near Rockville.

He said some of the churches paying less than the $3500 plus manse minimum recommended by the Presbytery are new or rural churches. Conferences with church officers and ministers have led to "encouraging results" in some cases, he said.

The Washington City Presbytery includes 42 churches and four missions in Washington and nearby Maryland and Virginia communities.

At the meeting, the Presbytery also voted not to accept the resignation of Vice Moderator Dr. John D. Hayes. Dr. Hayes, who will soon return to missionary work in the Far East, will retain his title and a substitute will be appointed to handle his duties in his absence.

The Reverend Ralph K. Merker, stated clerk, reported that the Presbytery has pledged $347,017.76 for a world-wide restoration fund of the Church. Of this, $324,784.08 has bee pledged, he said, and argued that the Presbytery pledge the remainder immediately.

The following were appointed to serve as moderators until their churches get pastors: Irwin Memorial, the Rev. Horace Lukens; Manassas, the Rev. Emery C. Fritz; Odell; Hermon, the Rev. Willis Berg; Clifton, the Rev. George T. Lidgen.

launched the present gambling probe, court attaches received the news with lifted eyebrows.

It is known that the gambling profession as a whole had special interest in the sentencing of the persons called in the grand jury gambling probe, as a clew to their own course of action, if subpenaed.

Justice Holtzoff has repeatedly declared from the bench that police should get the "big gamblers," not the small operators, and in the past, lawyers have made special efforts to have their gambling defendants tried in his court.

In several cases yesterday, he told defendants indicted both for operating a lottery (a felony) and possession of lottery slips (a misdemeanor), their offenses were of a "minor character."

He said in the case of Edna Harris, 32, of 1032 Lamont st. nw., who pled guilty to both the above charges, and then stated she was a Government employe:

"The court is inclined to extend leniency. She would be in a better position to receive leniency if she had cooperated with the authorities."

Her attorney, Denny Hughes, said Mrs. Harris, who was called for testimony ... the grand jury probe, "never received a cent from numbers writing." She was given a 30-90 day suspended sentence and two years' probation.

Of Theodore A. Dorsey, 29, of 2606 Georgia ave. nw., the court stated:

"This defendant is more than just the ordinary numbers writer . . . (he operated) headquarters for a numbers game, and in addition to that he has been very uncooperative . . . He declined to give any information to the authorities when he was given the opportunity."

Dorsey was given 30 to 90 days' straight jail time. The maximum penalty for operating a lottery, rarely invoked, is $1000 fine, or three years in jail, or both. The maximum for possession of lottery slips is six months in jail or a $500 fine, or both.

A one-armed man, Conway Chappelle, 41, of 3749 Foote pl. ne., and Ida M. Powell, 43, of 1122 7th st. ne., each was sentenced to $50 fine, 30-90 day suspended sentence, and two years' probation. Justice Holtzoff said he was giving both another chance, and termed the charges against Chappelle "of a minor nature."

Justice Holtzoff said that Glen Newell, 29, of 1330 10th st. nw., has "a record of (previous) minor offenses . . . however, in view of his cooperative attitude the court will give him another chance." He was given a $50 fine, a two-to-six-months suspended sentence, and two years' probation.

Mattie Thomas, 36, of 30 N st. se., who appeared in the grand jury probe, was asked by Justice Holtzoff, "to whom did you turn over the money you received or the bets you wrote?"

"Just the boys," she replied.

"What were their names?" "Different ones," came the answer.

Also termed a "minor offender" by the court, she was fined $75 and given a 30-to-90 day suspended sentence and two years' probation.

Heaviest penalty was meted out to Burnie O. Love, 37, of 1208 Eastern ave. ne., described as having "a considerable record of various offenses."

"In view of the fact that he failed to cooperate with the authorities, he is not entitled to any consideration," said Holtzoff.

Love, charged with operating a lottery and possession of numbers slips, was given two to six months in jail.

There was no mention of "cooperation" or the lack of it, in other sentences for:

Bettie E. Cook, 22, of 724 G st. ne., $50 fine, suspended 30-90-day sentence, and two years' probation; Altha Jackson, 60, of 1737 Kalorama rd. nw., known to have been called in the jury probe, $75 fine, suspended two-to-six-month sentence and two years' probation.

Shooting Figure

Leake Mum In Gambling Jury Probe

One of the two defendants in the double shooting which figures prominently in the District's gambling investigation, yesterday refused to testify in that probe.

Acting on advice of his attorney, Henry M. Leake, 39, of 104 R st. ne., declined to answer any questions asked by the special grand jury which is probing gambling.

Leake and Charles Henry Nelson, 39, of 1803 H st. ne., shot each other January 8 at the Brass Rail, 1739 7th st. nw., according to police. Both have been indicted for assault with intent to kill, assault with a dangerous weapon, and carrying a dangerous weapon. Their trial, set for yesterday, was put over to July 7 at the request of the Government.

Calls Subpena Illegal

Curtis P. Mitchell, attorney for Leake, told reporters yesterday he advised Leake not to testify before the grand jury on grounds that he had been served with an "illegal" subpena while in court on another matter—the postponed trial.

"He cannot be subpenaed while he's under directive of the court," declared Mitchell. Asked what he would advise his client if he is given another subpena later, outside of the court, Mitchell said he probably will again advise Leake not to testify, relying on constitutional grounds to prevent self-incrimination.

Leake, who has a gambling record dating back to 1935, yesterday appeared to show no ill effects of the back wound he received in the shooting affray, which is said to have gambling aspects.

The special grand jury yesterday began its session with testimony from Inspector Floyd A. Truscott, assistant superintendent and executive officer of the Police Department.

Cashier, Bartender Questioned

Truscott, who participated in a 1937 gambling probe which brought more than 100 indictments—most of which failed when the Supreme Court ruled out wire-tapping evidence—declined to discuss his testimony.

After Leake made his brief trip into the grand jury room, the jury continued its inquiry into the Nelson-Leake shooting by calling Mrs. Willie Granger, 31, of 1113 21st st. ne., cashier at the Brass Rail, and Louis Queen, 27, of 641 Acker st. ne., bartender there.

Two final witnesses of the day were an unidentified Negro doctor, presumably one who treated Nelson or Leake in the shooting, and an unidentified young Negro woman, possibly a nurse.

Yesterday was the second day the special jury spent on the Brass Rail case. At least three other witnesses, including two detectives, already have been heard in this portion of the probe.

Bolivia Sees Plot To Overthrow Regime

La Paz, Bolivia, June 21 (U.P.)—One alleged rightwing plotter was killed today and three others were driven off by Army bullets when they attempted to seize the military powder magazine here.

The dead man was identified as Jorge Viscarra. He and his three companions, who escaped, were believed to be members of the national revolutionary movement (MNR), founded by the late President Gualberto Villaroel.

The Interior Ministry declared the attempt was proof that members of the MNR are plotting to overthrow the government.

Republicans Get NAM Plea For Gold Standard, but Why?

By J. A. Livingston

PHILADELPHIA, June 21.—You can understand why the National Fisheries Institute, Inc., wants the Republican Party's Resolutions Committee to put something in the platform to foster the "exploration and research" of America's fishing resources; or why the American Tariff League wants a plank to protect the "standard of living of all our people"; or why the Friends' Committee on National Legislation should oppose conscription.

Livingston

You can figure out why the National Associated Businessmen of Washington, D. C., wants taxes imposed on cooperatives. But you won't find it quite so easy to see what's behind the request of the National Association of Manufacturers for restoration of the gold standard in the United States. The NAM feels that anybody who has $5 in his pocket should be able to take it to a bank and get gold coin in exchange. Whereupon he's free to mistake it for a nickel and put it in a juke box.

Question: Why is that important to the "16,000 different companies" the NAM represents? Manufacturers never get paid for goods in gold; they never demand gold when they sell. Their chief interest is to get a dollar which will command goods and services in the open market, which will make it possible for them to buy raw materials, transportation, and manhours of work.

THE NAM uses an international argument: "One of the greatest handicaps to the recovery of war-torn countries has been the absence of local currencies in which there was confidence. There will be no real world recovery and sound international prosperity until this situation is corrected. In our judgment, the order of priority is not economic recovery and then stabilization of currencies, but, rather, stabilization of currencies as a prerequisite of economic recovery."

The holder of a dollar, or pound, or drachma, or franc, or belga wants to be able to swap it at the stores for bread, or butter, or shirts, socks, or kitchen utensils. If the shops are empty, or nearly empty—as they are in France, or Germany—then the currency is disprized. In such a case if a central bank paid out gold on request it wouldn't have gold for long. Great Britain discovered that in 1931 and quit the gold standard. The United States learned it in 1933, and the first act of incoming President Franklin D. Roosevelt was to close the banks to stop the run on gold.

The NAM argues that if foreign nations are to stabilize their currencies, "it is necessary that there be some currency of unquestionable stability." Therefore, the NAM recommends that the Republican Party "accept, as the world's greatest creditor nation, the responsibility of establishing free convertibility of United States dollars into gold."

FOR INTERNATIONAL purposes, the dollar today already is convertible into gold. Any central bank can claim gold for its dollars. The problem of Great Britain, France, western Germany, the Netherlands and other countries is to raise dollars so as to buy United States food, fuel, fertilizer, fibers and machinery. The Marshall Plan was devised to provide them with the dollars they need.

The NAM falls into a familiar fallacy. The manufacturers assume that if the dollar is convertible into gold the currency will automatically manage itself. Actually the convertible gold standard makes the central bank a fall-guy for a panic. Consider this: Today the United States possesses 23 billions of gold. Against that, and convertible into gold if the NAM had its way, would be:

1. Twenty-six billions of currency in the hands of the public.
2. Eighty-two billions in demand deposits.
3. Fifty-seven billions of time deposits.
4. All told 165 billion dollars.

And if everyone were to demand gold at once, one person in seven would get left.

Karl R. Bopp, vice president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia, has pointed out that the gold standard is a fair-weather standard. It functions superbly when all is well in the economic affairs of a nation. But in time of crisis, it exaggerates and accelerates the crisis—as in '31 in Britain and '33 here.

The gold standard has to be managed. What the Federal Government does on taxes and on debt retirement, what management and labor do on wages, and what businessmen do on prices are far more important to current stability than having the dollar rigged to gold. Which brings me back to where I started: Wonder why the NAM brought the subject up?

Maryland Tobacco

Upper Marlboro, Md., June 21 (AP).—Prices on southern Maryland's tobacco auction markets were firm to slightly higher today, the United State Department of Agriculture and Maryland's Department of Markets reported.

The agencies said heavy crop and seconds scored the biggest increases with most gains ranging between $1 and $2 a hundred. A few grades suffered losses, chiefly offerings of red color.

Sales volume was reported as heavy and marketings were made up of a greater ratio of fair to fine grades, the agencies said.

Some of today's grade averages:

Heavy-Crop—Fine cherry-red, $63, up $1; good cherry-red, $61, up $2; fair cherry-red, $51, up $1.

Tips—Fair cherry-red, $37, down $1; low green, 11; up 50 cents.

Seconds—Fine cherry-red, $62, up $1; fair cherry red, $51, up $1; low red, $22, down $2.

Nondescript—Best crude, $10.25, up 25 cents.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, June 21 (AP).—Weakness in corn finally got the better of other grains on the Board of Trade today. Wheat, which had shown some firmness early, slipped below its previous close. Oats also were down for small losses after early steadiness.

Selling of corn resulted from receipts of rains in a wide area of the corn belt. Some of these were of the steady, soaking variety which the new plant admittedly needed. The rains also were expected to be of benefit to the oats.

Wheat ended ½-¾ lower, July 2.31; corn was ½-2⅛ lower, July 2.20⅛@2.20¾, and oats were unchanged to ¾ lower, July 94⅛@94½. There was no activity in soybeans.

Cash feed grains also were lower, particularly oats. Oats dropped as much as 4 cents in the spot market. Premiums over the July future were reduced. No. 2 white oats sold at 1.12 to 1.13 or around 18½ cents above the July contract. The premium was well over 20 cents last week.

Key Securities Slump 1 to 2 In Brisk Deals

New York, June 21 (AP).—The stock market dropped today for the sharpest over-all decline in more than a month.

Losses of 1 to more than 2 points were numerous among key issues and only a small proportion of stocks managed to end with gains.

A small group of oils climbed steeply in early dealings and for a while the railroad section tried to get ahead. Gains among the rails were practically all wiped out and advances running to more than 6 points among the oils were chopped down.

Volume tended to increase as quotations slipped but slackened in the last few minutes of trading when the market showed signs of leveling off. Sales for the day totaled 1,750,000 shares, which compared with 1,250,000 Friday.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks dropped .7 of one point to 70.5 a low since June 7. Not since prices broke .9 of one point on May 18 has the price level receded so abruptly.

New lows for the year were posted for Pepsi-Cola at 13⅝ and Transcontinental & Western Air at 13½, both off more than a point.

Central Railroad of N. J. provided a little in the way of fireworks with a plunge of around 9 points at one time. A minor rally left the issue 7 lower at 293¼.

Richfield Oil was a one-day sensation on the other side of the price fence. The stock soared 9½ points in rapid-fire trading before dropping back for a final 4⅜ point gain at 43⅞. Maracaibo Oil also took off at high speed ahead and wound up with a 2-point gain at 12½.

United States Government issues were marked down rather sharply in the over-the-counter market. The bank-eligible 2½s of September, 1967-72, showed the widest loss, off 6/32 of a point at 102 15/32 bid. Dealers reported no selling of any importance but added that buying interest was practically nonexistent.

New York Cotton

New York, June 21 (AP).—Cotton futures closed 13 to 80 cents a bale higher today. Passage of legislation by Congress, which traders considered favorable to cotton, stimulated active commission house buying and short covering in early dealings with gains extending to $1.35 a bale. Most deliveries later lost a good part of the advance on profittaking and hedging which found only scale down trade support.

One on the Aisle—

Lillian Gish Also Upset Uncle Alec

By Richard L. Coe

PEOPLE OF THE THITTAH: Lillian Gish, who couldn't hide the fact even if she wanted to, makes no bones about referring to her 30-odd years on celluloid and the stage . . . gazing at her (for one gazes at Miss Gish), one marvels at her eternal dewy quality . . . One doesn't speak of this to Miss Gish (anymore than her associates at Olney would dream of calling her Lillian), but one gradually gleans that her successful quest for eternal youth comes from physical care and mental alertness . . . Years of make-up have played havoc with the skin of many an actress, but even make-up has that peculiar respect all have for Miss Gish; her skin is as lovely as a young girl's and her rule of nine hours' sleep a night is structly followed . . . Mentally she's a quiet wow, which those who heard her recent broadcast for the Women's National Press Club know . . . She took on any number of questions, some highly controversial, and answered all with a quiet diplomacy that was the expressed envy of Frances Starr, who can be diplomatic herself . . . Miss Gish, who talks brilliantly of the movies, is looking forward to tonight's opening in "The Marquise" . . . She points out that whether he knew it or not, the 25-year-old Noel Coward wrote himself into the play as he then was and as he was to become . . . "Noel, whom I've known for 30 years, has one character who is as he was then; another character is the man he is today" . . . "The Marquise" has never been published, which is why you may not be as familiar with it as his other comedies . . . Later this summer Miss Gish is going out to the University of Washington's drama school in Seattle, where Glenn Hughes has written a play for her . . . Whether it means a New York vehicle, Miss Gish doesn't vouchsafe . . . "Those things one never knows until an audience has received it, but did you know that Seattle has four legitimate theaters? . . . In brief, Miss Gish is utterly enchanting, but finding words to fit her has escaped everyone . . . After calling her, among other things, "a pressed flower," Alexander Woollcott gave up trying to define her and Albert Bigelow Paine devoted an entire book to the project, "Life and Lillian Gish." . . . What's a man to do with only one paragraph at his disposal?

CLARE BOOTH LUCE confides in Philadelphia, where she's got her mind on other things, that plans for the production of her comedy, "The Happy Marriage," at Catholic University are off. . . . She wrote this comedy a long time ago with Helen Hull and its theme was divorce. . . . Now, Mrs. Luce feels, this is hardly a tonic the public would expect from her in view of her conversion to Roman Catholicism. . . . Perhaps she may yet write a play of happy married life.

LEO BRADY, whose byline once graced this page, again will play the role of the resourceful priest in Jean Kerr's comedy, "Jenny Kissed Me," which will open Catholic University's summer drama season Sunday night. . . . The comedy was done during the winter. . . . Since then Mrs. Kerr has evolved several changes and the set has been remounted to fit the drama department's new, larger stage. . . . The revival run will be for a single week. . . . The new productions will be offered by the group during July and August.

THE NEWSREEL folk are running ragged . . . The Trans-Lux . . . promises something unique in the way of convention coverage . . . "Yesterday's convention sessions on our screen today," boasts the Trans-Luxers of their Telenews . . . But one wishes the newsreel folk would get hep to the meaning of the word "exclusive." . . . Of the Graziano-Zale fight last week, you may remember, both the Trans-Lux and Keith's were shouting that they had the fight pictures "exclusive" and now they're using the same word, both of them, about the double Joe fight Wednesday night . . . Both theaters will show them soon as possible Thursday, but what about this "exclusive" business?

SAM CUMMINS and his Pix Theater folk are in a tizzy . . . Not only about remodeling plans for the Pix, which has a mighty familiar sound, but also about those buildings they're tearing down between 1302 and 1314 Connecticut ave. . . . There'll be a theater there some day, but until the underpass is completed, they're going to use the ground as a parking lot.

THE DUPONT THEATER folk are considerably braver about their battle with constructionitis . . . Despite all, the Dupont reports an up in attendance for "Farrebique," that unusual, beautiful film about a French farm during the four seasons . . . For which reason, "Farrabique" (that's the name of the farm) will hold over for a second week.

SOL SCHULMAN writes in questioning our remark that Mickey Rooney in "Summer Holiday" is playing the same role he did when it was a non-musical Eugene O'Neill comedy, "Ah, Wilderness!" . . . Mr. Schulman is exactly right, this department exactly wrong . . . Mickey was in that 1935 version, but then he did the part now played by Butch Jenkins. . . . Our only excuse—and others made the blunder, too—is that Mickey's been playing that part for so long 13 years didn't seem preposterous in the least between two versions of the same Hardyesque Mr. S.

DEANNA AND DICK: The Durbin lass and Singer Haymes team for the leads of "Up in Central Park," the film from the popular musical comedy opening Wednesday morning at Keith's

First Native Governor of India Sworn

New Delhi, June 21 (AP).—India's first native governor general was sworn into office today, completing the last step to self-rule in this British dominion.

Amid Oriental pomp 69-year-old Chakravarthi Rajago - Palachari, Hindu lawyer and politician, assumed the governor generalship.

He succeeded Britain's Lord Mountbatten, to whom some 100,000 Indians bade farewell publicly and with affection yesterday.

The new governor general, known affectionately as "C. R.," was a confidante and close friend of the late Mohandas K. Gandhi, India's assassinated religious leader. His daughter married Ghandi's son, Devadas.

Rajago-Palachari was premier of Madras from 1937 to 1939, and proved himself an able administrator. Once during the war he said in a public address calling for unity:

"Let's not be afraid of Britain or anyone else. Let's live in the hope there will be a new order in India which will be worth fighting and dying for. It is impossible that we in India can maintain freedom unless we create a new order."

Rajago-Palachari has advocated Hindu-Moslem accord, and has declared publicly that the Moslem state of Pakistan should be recognized in principle.

In a message after his induction today he said that "what disturbs the peace of India is internecine discord, pure and simple, and it is utter folly."

Arlington Jury Indicts Evins In Shooting of Wife and Baby

Herman David Evins, 32, of 4100 N. 37th st., Arlington, was indicted by the Arlington grand jury yesterday in the shooting and wounding of his wife and year-old son May 12.

Evins, who pleaded innocent, was one of 10 men indicted. Both his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Evins, and his son, Robert, have been released from the hospital since the shooting.

Evins had told Arlington police the shooting resulted from "in-law trouble."

Among other indictments was one against Phillip Clifton Lover, 22, of 406 N. Kensington st., on a charge of attempting to rape a 12-year-old Arlington girl. Charles Ellis, 17, of 3014 S. 22d st., was accused of attacking a 15-year-old county girl May 22.

Three men were indicted for grand larceny of $85 worth of sewer pipe from a construction job at 13th and S. Highland sts. They were George W. Moorman, 28, of 1407 S. Highland st., Arlington, and his brother, Herbert A. Moorman, 19, of 627 I st. sw. The third, 17-year-old Joseph F. Wright, serving a sentence in Hyattsville, Md., jail, was not present for his arraignment, which was then set for August 6.

William A. Mahoney, 36, of 29 Seaton place nw., was indicted in grand larceny of a truckload of bricks from a Maryland company, while Grand Faggin, 32, of 1925 S. Langle st., Arlington, was indicted in a similar theft from an Arlington contractor.

Bus Employes To Consider Offer

Union employes of the Alexandria, Barcroft and Washington Transit Co. will meet today to reconsider a company contract offer which they turned down ten days ago.

Purpose of the meeting will be to gauge reaction to an address to the union last week by company General Manager Beverly C. May, in which he said that the company's offer of a 10-cents-an-hour pay raise was the best offer it can make.

POMPTON LAKES, N. J., June 21.—The Joe Louis of Pompton Lakes is a mear, purposeful man this week, no longer the cheery fellow who used to let up on sparring partners and wave gaily to his newspaper friends at the ringside in his training camp.

POVICH

It's not a Joe Louis unmasked. He always was, natively, a good fellow and until the last few days he was still smiling. But Joe Louis isn't smiling any more. That doesn't fit in with his present mood. Nor does shaving either. He had a two-day growth of whiskers and eyes for nothing but the business at hand when he crawled through the ropes for a four-round workout today.

"Hi-ya, Joe, I'll be rootin' fer ya Wednesday night," yelled Izzy Kaplan, the Mirror's little gnome-like man who has been covering Joe Louis training camps for ten years, knows him well and is just like that with the champion. Louis did turn to look at his well-wisher, but you couldn't quite call it the courtesy of a look. He turned a fierce pair of eyes on Izzy and didn't speak. If you can brush a man off or knock him out with a look, that's what Louis did.

AROUND LOUIS' CAMP there's a well-defined feeling that Joe is fighting for more than the retention of his world heavyweight title when he meets Jersey Joe Walcott on Wednesday evening. Joe Louis is a proud man. He wants to retire undefeated. He has powerful incentives for wanting to beat Walcott. He never took a fight so seriously, unless it was the second fight with Max Schmeling, the only man who knocked him out.

Louis wants to be champion when he walks out of the ring Wednesday night, but there's a tie-in there. Because he is fighting another colored man there's an extra penalty to defeat. Joe likes the idea of being the No. 1 man of his race. He's proud of what he has done to better the lot of Negroes and the esteem in which he has been held by white and colored alike.

He takes his championship of the colored race seriously, and is aware that his regime as world's heavyweight champion has done much to counter-act the blot of Jack Johnson, the only previous Negro champion. He feels it some kind of a duty that he keep the title and continue to dignify the Negro athlete. Winning a fight for those reasons is a new motive with him.

THERE'S ANOTHER FACTOR. His best friends, colored and white, tell you about it. Louis has begun to feel that his place as champion of his race has been challenged somewhat. The tremendous enthusiasm, among both whites and Negroes, for the gallant showing of Jackie Robinson of the Brooklyn Dodgers, is regarded as a threat to Louis' top-hole rating among Negro athletes.

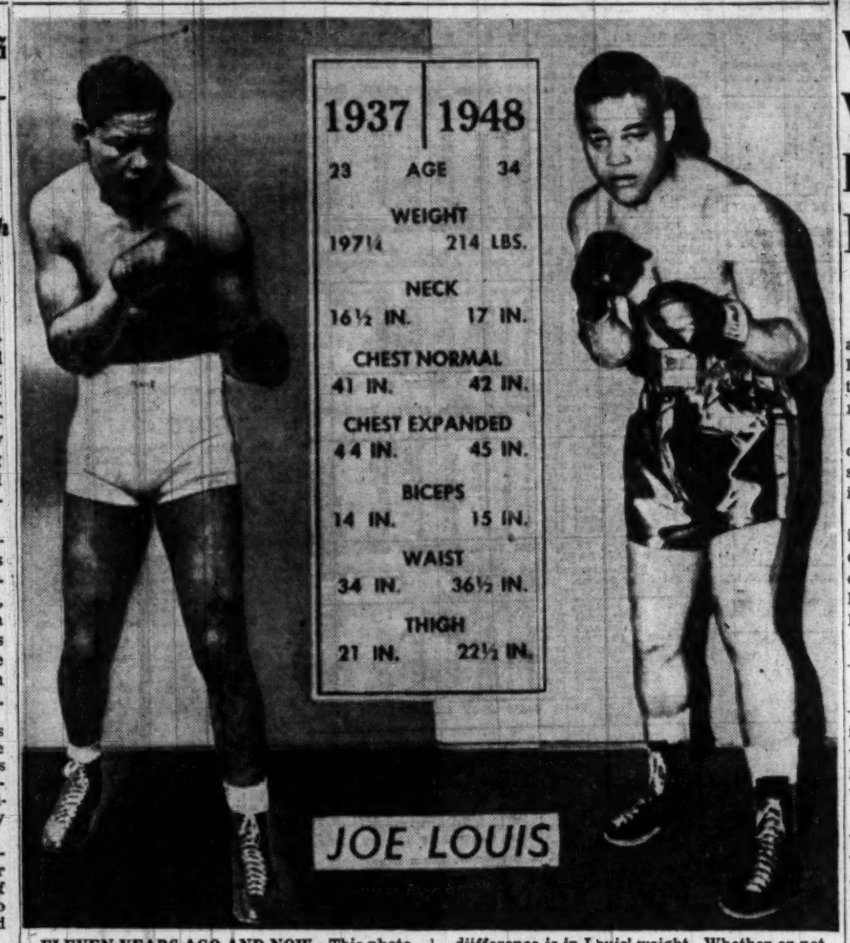
Robinson has had no greater rooter than Louis himself who is a baseball fan and friend of Jackie. Robinson was the first to crash the racial barriers of the big leagues and like Louis has worn his success with dignity. But Joe would still like to be kingpin. It's not empty talk that he makes of retiring undefeated. He wants out with grace and dignity, his title yielded but not lost.

And so his sparring partners have been catching it in recent days. The man who used to be content to pull his punches in training now sees Walcott before him. He says freely that he doesn't aim to outbox Walcott. He concedes that at 34, after 11 years as champion, he has slipped but he says he's still a good puncher.

TIGER ROY TAYLOR, the Louis sparring partner who most nearly resembles Walcott with his footwork and fancy boxing, has been catching it in particular in recent workouts. Louis has even been resorting to clubbing him in the clinches. His handlers tell you they've seen nothing like it since the training camp of his second Schemling fight.

That's why it could be a different fight from the first Walcott fight when a somewhat over-confident Louis wasn't mad at anybody. He unloosed such fury against Schmeling that even hitting Max in the back he broke a couple of valuable vertebrae, ended the fight in one round and sent Schmeling to the hospital. It was a Joe Louis with neither caution nor mercy.

And so on Wednesday night Louis will be aiming for a quick knockout. His own estimate is that he's lost 20 per cent of his speed. He always has been honest that way and he says now he can punch as well as ever, and you have to believe that, too. He's angry at the thought of losing to Walcott. Leaving the Louis camp you find yourself thinking Walcott will be fighting Joe Louis again, but he won't be fighting the same Joe Louis.



ELEVEN YEARS AGO AND NOW—This photo chart of Joe Louis shows differences in the physical makeup of the heavyweight champion since his long reign began in 1937. Aside from the change in facial expression, most noticeable diifference is in Louis' weight. Whether or not Joe Walcott is facing the same fighter that dethroned Jimmy Braddock more than a decade ago will be decided tomorrow night

Wingate Wins Four Races, Takes Inaugural

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

Laurel, Md. June 21.—Horse and buggy days returned at the Laurel Raceway opening last night to the streamlined whirl of mutuel machines.

An estimated crowd of 12,000, obviously new to harness racing, soon caught the fever and poured in $167,096 for the eight-race card.

The amount, a tremendous one in harness circles, was the largest ever waged at a night opening, including those of mighty Roosevelt Raceway and Chicago's Maylwood Park.

Only first-day total ever to top it was at Santa Anita, a mile oval which conducts a day-time meeting.

ENTRIES, RESULTS, PAGE 16

Wingate Star of Card

Real star of the racing program was the veteran Tom Wingate who wheeled acrossed four winners, including Watson E. Direct in the feature race, the $1000 inaugural.

In his only other start, the 50-year old Rehoboth Beach, Del., pilot took a second.

The Inaugural figured to be the best race and it was Watson E. Direct pacing the mile in 2:08 2-5. The 11-year-old chestnut horse finished with a burst that carried him home one length in front of Mr. Morris Scott, owned and driven by William E. Miller, Washington furniture man.

Miller had his charge in front nearly all the way in the 8-year-old gelding's first effort of the year but couldn't withstand the stretch challenge of the winner.

Prince James Last

The big disappointment was Prince James, 7-5 favorite, who wound up a dismal last.

Harry Stout brought Edgar Hanover in the third spot, just edging La Tosca, only mare in the race. La Tosca, handled by Ed Kelly, made a break at the start and again went off her gait during the race but displayed some brilliant speed when she settled down to pacing.

"Win with Wingate" became the track slogan as early as the first race when he won with Vonian Harvester the $18 winner teamed with 19-year-old Hanover Express to pay a $54 daily double.

Wingate was second in that one with Miss Stuck Up. After that, he held the reins on winners—Carola Hanover ($4.40), Bold Salute ($13.20) and Watson E. Direct ($9.80).

Yanks Rout Cleveland Behind Reynolds, 13-2

Stirnweiss, Allie, Di Mag Top Attack

Cleveland, June 21 (AP).—Allie Reynolds batted in four runs tonight as he hurled the New York Yankees to a 13-2 trouncing of the league-leading Cleveland Indians before 49,837 stadium fans.

Reynolds notched his eighth win against three losses, while Rookie Gene Bearden was blasted for his second setback, compared with six victories.

Snuffy Stirnweiss led the second-place Yankees' 18-hit attack on Bearden and Steve Gromek with a home run, two doubles and a single in four trips, scoring four runs and driving in two.

New York sewed up the verdict with a four-run blast in the fifth frame, touched off by Joe DiMaggio's fifteenth homer over the 380-foot mark on the right centerfield fence.

Browns Beat A's, 9-8, With 4 Runs in 9th

BULLETIN

The Browns beat the Athletics, 9-8.

St. Louis, June 21.—The Philadelphia Athletics were leading the St. Louis Browns, 6-5, at the end of eight innings tonight.

Outfielder Sam Chapman and Catcher Buddy Rosar, two of the Athletics most consistent performers, were forced out of action by injuries.

Chapman twisted his right knee in the first inning when he tried a quick return to third base after Ferris Fain missed the ball on an attempted squeeze play. Barney McCosky replaced him in the outfield.

Rosar was shaken up when he collided with the grandstand after catching a foul fly in the fourth. He was replaced by Herman Franks.

Harvard Beats Yale, 2 to 0

New Haven, Conn., June 21 (AP). Chick Gannon's home run with a teammate aboard in the ninth inning enabled Harvard to beat Yale, 2 to 0, today in an Eastern Intercollegiate League baseball tussle.

Gannon's 405-yard drive, which saddened the crowd of 9000 Yale's here for commencement activities, broke up a brilliant pitching battle between Frank Quinn, the Blue's ace, and Ira Godin, Harvard star.

Betting Shifts As High as 14-5 In Louis' Favor

By Jack Cuddy

New York, June 21 (U.P.).—Heavy support for Joe Louis was reflected by bookmakers and sports writers today as the champion completed training for his title defense against Jersey Joe Walcott Wednesday night.

While workmen began erecting the ring and seating layouts at Yankee Stadium, the betting price favoring Louis rose from 12-5 to 13-5 in New York, and to 14-5 in Newark, N. J., a fight-betting center.

This wagering trend contradicted yesterday's predictions by bookies, who forecast that increased support for Walcott would hammer down the odds to 2-1 by Wednesday.

An informal poll of 27 sports writers at Twentieth Century headquarters disclosed they favored Louis, 21 to 6. The writers were from New York and other cities as distant as Miami Beach, Fla., and San Francisco.

Most Louis pickers admitted their selections were based upon the champ's past record, rather than upon anything he showed in his December fight with Walcott or in training.

Straus reported the ticket sale as "perfectly wonderful." He declined to reveal the amount of the advance sale or to forecast the gate. Box-office men predicted a gate of "about $900,000."

Although the weather bureau would issue no official forecast for Wednesday, it did give the following "outlook" for that day: "cloudy with showers, followed by partial clearing. Continued warm.

In case of postponement, the bout could be staged Thursday, Friday or Saturday nights.

Louis weighed 213 pounds today after four rounds of sparring at Pompton Lakes, N. J., before 1500 fans. He expects to fight at 215. He will break camp Wednesday morning and motor into New York in time for the noon weigh-in at Madison Square Garden.

Walcott, who finished sparring yesterday at Grenloch, N. J., did five miles of running and walking on the road this morning. He will break camp tomorrow night and come to New York.

Tom Brown Extended in Net Marathon

By Gayle Talbot

London, June 21 (AP).—Tom Brown almost toppled out of the Wimbledon championships today. He was the only one of the seeded players to have any difficulty in the first round of the All-England tennis tournament.

The San Francisco star, a finalist last year and fourth-seeded in the present championships, was once within two points of defeat before he pulled out his match with Don Butler of England, by the marathon scores of 5—7, 6—1, 4—6, 6—2, 9—7.

Theirs was the opening match in the center court, and the crowd got its money's worth for an hour and 40 minutes.

Brown was the only one of the eight seeded stars to drop a set as the men's field was reduced from 128 to 64 players. Tomorrow the women will begin whaling one another. The doubles also will get under way.

Frankie Parker of Los Angeles, the favorite and No. 1 seeded, breezed by Dennis Coombe of New Zealand, 6—2, 6—0, 6—2. Coombe, a rather stout individual, complained that he "wasn't out there long enough to lose any weight."

Gardner Mulloy, Miami, showing little trace of the foot trouble which caused him to default at Queen's Club last week, eliminated Alejo Russell of the Argentine in a polished performance on the center court, 6—2, 6—4, 6—3.

Budge Patty of Los Angeles, seeded sixth, was given a rousing workout by Torben Ulrich, a 19-year-old Danish Davis Cup player, before he finally subdued the youngster, 6—4, 6—4, 7—5.

Bob Falkenburg of Hollywood dusted off Jackie Brichant of Belgium, 6—1, 6—2, 6—3.

John Bromwich, the Australian, who is expected to reach the final against Parker, eliminated J. van-Rynde of Belgium, 6—2, 6—4, 6—6, and was disgusted with his game.

Brazle Blanks Braves for Cardinals, 1-0

Boston, June 21 (AP).—Left-Hander Al Brazle was "right" tonight as he pitched the third-place St. Louis Cardinals to a 1-0 decision over the National League's leading Braves before 30,398 disappointed fans.

Brazle, who had been defeated earlier in the season by the Tribe, had his sidearm sinker working so well that he, himself, threw out six Boston batters.

Ahearn wired the offer to Sam Pian, manager of Zale, in Chicago. If the offer is accepted, the 10-round over-the-weight bout between Zale and the winner of Monday night's battle will be held at the ball park July 26.

Hudson will train before the public today at the Liberty Athletic Club, 419 9th st. nw., at 1 p. m. while Hursey is scheduled to work there at 2:30 o'clock.

Griffith Predicts Walcott Will Take Joe Louis' Title

Clark Griffith, the Old Fox of baseball, poked his head out of his 7th st. and Florida ave. den yesterday and predicted that Jersey Joe Walcott will usurp Joe Louis' heavyweight boxing crown Wednesday night in New York.

The Nats' owner made his forecast on the "Breakfast in Washington" broadcast over WOL.

Sugar Ray, Docusen Bout Put Off Again

By Charles Dunkley

Chicago, June 21 (AP).—The Ray (Sugar) Robinson-Bernie Docusin fight for the world's welterweight championship today was postponed again, until next Monday night. Threatening rain and Robinson's failure to make the regulation 147 pounds forced the postponement.

The 15-round battle had been set for Comiskey Park, home of the Chicago White Sox, tonight.

Robinson, the champion, showing up half an hour late for the weighing in, pleaded that he did not have sufficient time to regain the 147-pound notch. He said he weighed 151½, but unofficially it was said he was four pounds over that figure. He refused to get on the scales, while Docusen, the boxing wizard from New Orleans, tipped an even 147.

George Gainford, Robinson's manager, agreed to post an additional $4000 as a guarantee that the titleholder will make the prescribed weight by noon Monday. He said Robinson was 147 pounds last Thursday, when the bout was first postponed by rain. He insisted his fighter should not be required to step on the scales again.

Sheldon Clark, chairman of the Illinois State Athletic Commission, said the National Boxing Association rules require a boxer to weigh in a second time if the bout has been delayed more than 24 hours.

Robinson now has $15,000 posted with the commission. He previously posted $10,000 for appearance and $1000 to make weight.

In the 15-and-over team handicap department, Bass also came home a winner. His mate was Dick Pullen, and between them, they carded 66.

Nats Rained Out; Pitchers Get Leg Work

By Morris Siegel,
Post Reporter

Detroit, June 21.—Bored over the monotonous spectacle of his pitchers being belted out and determined to do something about it if he can, Manager Joe Kuhel today ordered a daily 30-minute pre-game running session for every member of his mound staff.

The return to spring training routine became effective today, an hour after Kuhel learned that the Nat-Detroit opener had been postponed because of wet grounds.

Reviewing events of the last two weeks, when only three pitchers were able to start and finish a ball game, Kuhel feels that his twirlers become tired in the late innings and he knows that a weary pitcher isn't a winning pitcher.

"They'll Run, Run, Run . . ."

"Their arms are only as good as their legs," he said. "Beginning today, every pitcher except the day's starting pitcher will run for 30 minutes. That goes for the relief pitchers, too. It's going to be rough on a few who will run for a half hour and then go to the bullpen, but that's the way it's going to be.

"Postponements have set our pitching schedule back a few days, and until I'm convinced that the pitchers are in shape again they'll run, run, run."

Little Mickey Haefner was exempted from the first day's running and he'll be excused tomorrow night also because he's docketed to start. His opponent will be Art Houtteman, Detroit's right-handed Hal Newhouser, who's won two in a row since dropping his first eight.

That 4-to-1 victory over the White Sox buoyed the Nats considerably. They were happy to see Sid Hudson return to pitching form and pick up a victory for a change. And the Griffs were also cheered by Gil Coan's rousing offensive performance.

Coan, benched in the first game in respect to the left-handed offerings of Bill Wight, bounced back in the nightcap with two hits, drove in two runs and scored one himself.

Kuhel said he doesn't plan to alternate Coan and Tom McBride against right and left handed pitching. "Gil was in a slump," Joe said, "and I figured a little rest would do him good."

Sauer's No. 20 Beats Phils, 4-3

Philadelphia, June 21 (AP).—Hank Sauer's 20th home run of the season provided the Cincinnati Reds with the winning margin tonight as they defeated the Philadelphia Phillies, 4-3.

The Reds took a 1-0 lead in the first inning when Grady Hatton walked and Sauer doubled to drive in his fifty-second run. They added two more in the fourth on Sauer's walk, Danny Litwhiler's single and Babe Young's triple.

Sauer's circuit drive in the sixth gave Cincinnati a 4-0 lead.

Manager Ben Chapman was ejected from the field for the first time this season during an argument with Umpire Art Gore in the eighth.

Early Arrivals Get in Free at Laurel; Harness Track Wins Race Against Time

It was a photo finish, all right, last night at the new Laurel Raceway. In fact, early arrivals merely walked through the main gate while the admission boys were getting organized. That was about 6:30 and a couple of hundred got in free.

This oversight quickly was corrected, but even an hour later workmen still were installing the last stairway to the grandstand.

Parking, as ever, was the real problem. Two parking lots, supposed to accommodate 3800 cars, were filled to capacity 15 minutes before the first race. Hundreds of others overflowed the grounds and were parked on the other side of the highway.

Congestion extended to the mutuel windows. They weren't opened until 7:50 and the first race was pushed back to 8:25. Things improved as the night went on. For example, amount bet on the first race was $8838. On the second it leaped to $16,117.

The crowd, estimated at 12,000, was surprisingly good-natured. Circulating through it, little griping was heard. On the whole, it seemed new to harness racing.

Most startling thing was the silence throughout the first race. An old hand explained that people don't yell until they get the hang of it.

Things were so confused that Jockey (No Boy) Jacobs, familiar flat track character, arrived shortly before the third race muttering that he had to pay to get in.

The grand opening was just another working day for President Dick Hutchison, jr., the harried head of the $800,000 plant was clad in khaki and boondockers, giving the electricians a hand.

Palumbo Up As Winner Pays $4.40

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, West Va., June 21. James E. Crider's Comedy Player, a consistent second in his three previous starts, ceased to be a joke horse today and ran off with the Sagamore Purse, featuring the Monday program.

With Jockey Sammy (Booed Win or Lose) Palumbo aboard, the 7-year-old son of Strolling Player got home four lengths ahead of the closest opposition in a field of seven.

Frosty River, owned by Wayne Kendrick of Washington, was second and five lengths in advance of R. N. Boener's Breakable Miss. Among the also rans was the oft-disappointing Virginia Beach which finished last.

Returns $4.40 Mutuel

Comedy Player was installed the favorite and returned a $4.40 mutuel. The veteran gelding was clocked in 1.26 3/5 over a track that was drying out rapidly and approaching a fast stage at the time of the feature.

Frosty River went to the front at the break and drew well out along the back stretch. Virginia Beach was close up at this stage and followed by Comedy Player and Dr. Johnson.

At the far turn, Virginia Beach dropped out of contention. Comedy Player went to the inside and Dr. Johnson lost ground on the outside. This pair then closed in on Frosty River.

Wins Going Away

Palumbo then took Comedy Player to the center of the track and his mount wore down Frosty River to win going away with Palumbo keeping Comedy Player to light pressure to the end. Frosty River was an easy second as Dr. Johnson dropped back, losing the show money to Breakable Miss.

Jockie A. Martinez, was suspended for the remainder of the meeting for an unsatisfactory ride aboard Pack Saddle in last Saturday's fourth race in which the horse was second.

Jockey Freddie Kratz, leading rider at the meeting, was forced to take the day off. He is suffering from boils.

Thirty-six boys who are sons of members of District Golf Association country clubs and have not yet reached their nineteenth birthday, are eligible to play in the tournament.

Frank Emmet, codirector of the affair, together with Frank McArdle, chairman of the Congressional Club's golf committee, announced last night that post entries will be accepted.

On hand to defend the title that he has held for the last two years will be Eddie Reagh of Manor Club, a student at the Kiski Prep School.

Tars Face Tough Field On Hudson

By Ted Smits

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 21 (AP).—Navy's defending champions, and Cornell, Washington and California are favored today to battle it out for varsity honors tomorrow in the forty-sixth annual Poughkeepsie Regatta.

The regatta is the last tuneup for the crews before the Olympic tryouts. An estimated crowd of around 100,000 nonpaying spectators is expected to line both shores of the Hudson River for the colorful show.

The weather forecast wasn't too good. Showers were expected about the time the freshmen shells glide out for the first race at 4:30 p. m. (EST).

Eleven colleges have sent 29 eight-oared crews for the three races—freshman, junior varsity, and varsity.

Outside Lanes Tough

If rain and thunderstorms develop as promised, Cornell will have a decided advantage. The Big Red varsity shell is in lane one, sheltered by the towering west bank of the Hudson River. Navy is in lane three, not too far out.

But California in lane nine, and Washington in lane eleven, the last lane next to the low eastern bank, would receive the brunt of any storm. Many have been the Poughkeepsie races in which favored crews sunk.

In good weather the crews with the higher numbered lanes have a slight advantage due to the tide.

Immediately following the Poughkeepsie race the college crews will start training down for the Olympic distance of 2000 meters, or approximately 1¼ miles. The Poughkeepsie varsity race is at 3 miles.

The tryouts, starting June 30 at Princeton, N. J., also drew Yale and Harvard. These two, both with top-notch crews, race each other at 4 miles Friday on the Thames at New London, Conn.

U. S. Undefeated

America has never lost an eight-oared Olympic race and the 1948 field looks as strong as ever.

Coach Ky Ebright of California summed up this year's race with "There's an awful lot of good boats on the river this year."

But the records speak more plainly. Cornell has been defeated this spring only by Navy. Washington has defeated California.

Navy, with virtually the same big oarsmen who won here last year, has won three races so far, and lost two. In the Eastern sprint regatta Navy finished third at 2000 meters behind Harvard and Yale—which gives a good index of the power of Friday's race at New London.

The other schools entered in addition to the favored four are: Pennsylvania, Syracuse, Princeton, Rutgers, Wisconsin, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Columbia.

California won the junior varsity race in 1947, with Navy second, and Washington won the freshman race with Syracuse second.

Miss Gunther Medalist in Western Golf

Chicago, June 21 (AP).—Margaret Gunther, pretty 25-year-old Tennessee State champion from Memphis, fired a two-over-par 76 over tricky Skycrest Country Club today to win the medal in the qualifying round of the nineteenth Women's Western Open tourney.

Babe Didrikson Zaharias, seeking her fourth Open title, and Beverly Hanson of Fargo, N. Dak., were a stroke behind with 77's, as a starting field of 154 found the 6434-yard rolling course easy to start, but hard to finish.

The qualifying test, held under murky skies and intermittent showers, sent the top 32 scorers into tomorrow's first round of match play. The tournament ends Saturday with a 36-hole title match.

Miss Gunther was the only shooter to match par 37 on the outgoing nine and, like the rest of the field, found the back nine, also a par 37, pocked with snares.

Mrs. Zaharias, heavily favored to grab Louis Suggs' undefended title, was booming her drives in customary style, but her putter was cold for 38, 39.

Postlude

2 Operas Canceled at Watergate

By Paul Hume

Poor Butterfly! Rained out once, postponed once, and finally canceled because of financial entanglements.

Last night's scheduled performance of Puccini's tear-jerker never reached the new stage of the Watergate barge. It was stopped at 5 p. m. yesterday when an attachment was slapped on any further ticket sales and revenue men moved in to check ticket sales to date.

The situation is unclear in general, but all too sharply etched in certain unhappy details. A New York angel advanced $5000 to help finance the three-night stand of the company here. All three nights were rained out, with two performances materializing on later dates.

But confusion in tickets due to the rain and the inevitable costs of holding over stars, orchestra, chorus and other necessaries, ate into the advance. The backer was advised to loan another $3000 to cover his original investment. He did.

Then his daughter sang with the company. Things didn't go so well, and it is not likely that she will be singing with them in the future. At that the backer demanded his money, all $8000, back. Who was to pay it?

As things stand now, the chorus, orchestra, and stage hands have been paid in full. Rent for the barge has been paid, and GSI, which rents the chairs, will be paid in full today.

The public has seen three operas, "Carmen," and the double bill of "Cavalleria" and "Pagliacci." But there has been a confusing item of the mixup in evenings for Carmen and Butterfly. Those holding unused tickets to either of these two events may secure refunds from the Snow Concert Bureau, 1108 G st. nw. by presenting themselves and their tickets to that agency before next Saturday, June 26.

One thing should be kept clearly in mind: none of this has any remote connection with the National Symphony series of concerts listed for the Watergate in July. For those concerts, the symphony management has engaged leading stars of the concert stage, and members of the National Symphony Orchestra will play under the direction of Howard Mitchell.

Seixas Advances At College Nets

Los Angeles, June 21 (AP).—Top-seeded Victor Seixas of the University of North Carolina led the way through the opening rounds of play today in the National Collegiate Tennis tournament.

Jet Motors Blanks McKee Pontiac, 9-0

Bob Browning pitched three-hit ball as Jet Motors shut out McKee Pontiac, 9-0, yesterday in an Anacostia Recreation League baseball game at Fairlawn. Ralph Fraser's three-run triple sparked the Jet attack.

Nitro Plants Blasts Kill at Least Five

Explosions in two nitro glycerine plants of the Hercules Powder Co.—one in California and the other in New Jersey—yesterday killed at least five people and destroyed sections of plants in both areas causing unknown damage.

In Pinole, Calif., the nitro glycerin plant of the Hercules Powder Co. was blown to bits in an explosion of undetermined origin.

Two men were believed killed. Three men were said to have walked away from the plant in a dazed condition and to have disappeared in the crowd which quickly gathered.

The blast was felt through all of Contra Costa County. Windows were broken in Pinole, 3 miles away.

The building disintegrated.

The plant was used in separating cases used in the manufacture of nitroglycerin. It was 500 yards from the main building.

The second blast occurred a short time after an explosion which ripped through a section of the huge Hercules Powder Co. plant near Kenvil, N. J., killing three men and injuring at least two other persons. There, too, the explosion centered in the nitroglycerin buildings.

U. S. Health Grant

Cancer Work Of Druggists Given $5268

The American Pharmaceutical Association, with headquarters here, has been awarded a Federal grant of $5268 for a year-long cancer education program, it was announced here.

The grant will supplement a comparable investment of the association in the special project, an association spokesman said.

Announcement of the grant was made by Oscar R. Ewing, Federal Security Administrator, in a list of nine cancer-control projects approved by Dr. Leonard A. Scheele, Surgeon General of Public Health Services. The grants totaled $162,073.

With the new awards, cancer control projects approved during the current fiscal year reached a total of 46, carrying Federal financial aid totaling $766,748.

The APA project, said an association spokesman, provides for circularizing the nation's druggists with counter cards for display in their establishments, and bimonthly mailings of special information bulletins to the pharmacists on cancer and detection of cancer symptoms. Some 12,000 pharmacies throughout the Nation are on the initial mailing lists, it was said.

Rheumatic Foundation To Ask Fund

The District Foundation for Rheumatic Diseases will attempt to raise funds next November to establish resident fellowships in rheumatic clinics at Georgetown, Howard and George Washington Universities.

This was revealed last night by Mrs. Joseph T. Elward, president of the foundation, which was incorporated several weeks ago. The amount of the fund to be sought has not been decided.

The foundation was created to obtain public support for clinical and research projects at local hospitals and universities.

Mrs. Elward, an arthritic, said plans for the fund-raising effort were agreed upon at a meeting at her home, 4441 Hawthorne st. nw.

The organization hopes eventually to establish a research center, with laboratories, at a hospital here.

Trustees, she said, include Senators Arthur Capper (R., Kans.), James P. Kem (R., Mo.) and Claude Pepper (D., Fla.) and their wives; Morris Cook, Mrs. Wiley Rutledge, Mrs. Louis Renfrow, Judge Frank Myers, Mrs. K. P. Landon, Henry Tetlow, Mrs. Earl Baldwin McKinley and James Councilor.

Chairman of the board is Harry Slattery, attorney.

Pilot 'Improved'

Lieut. (j. g.) Minter Y. Aldridge, USNR, who was stricken with pleurisy Sunday while piloting a PBY transport plane from Bermuda, was reported "improved" yesterday at Bethesda Naval Hospital.

Attaches said the 25-year-old pilot, who lives at 1337 21st st. nw., is "not on the serious list." The plane, with 15 persons aboard, was landed at the Anacostia Naval Air Base by Lieut. (j. g.) P. A. Hogue, USNR, 27, of Charlottesville, Va.

To Study Causes

FWA Plans Hospital Blast Curbs

The Federal Works Agency yesterday announced creation of a special investigating committee to determine causes and means of preventing explosions in hospital operating rooms.

Need of the special study was emphasized by the new committee chairman, Walton C. Clark, Public Buildings Administration engineer, who cited a survey showing 250 such explosions within a period of several years. The explosions, he said, resulted in 34 injuries and 27 deaths.

Initial use of investigation findings, Clark said, will be in designing safeguards for new hospitals now in planning stages by the Federal Government.

These will include the proposed District medical center on Naval Observatory grounds; the planned 500-bed hospital center for medical research at Bethesda, Md., and a new Marine Hospital, in San Francisco, Clark said.

Explosions in operating rooms, the committee chairman said, has been a growing problem since introduction of anesthetics gases, he pointed out, are heavier than air, placing the gas nearer floor levels where there is the greatest danger from sparks.

Electrical sparks which might ignite operating room gases generally result fro mstatic electricity or from electric machinery, he said. Chief concerns of the investigation, he said, will be to find means of thoroughly "grounding" operating room floors to prevent sparks of static electricity, and the setting up of specifications for ventilation, equipment and the safest type of clothing for operating rooms and personnel.

Serving on Clark's committee are: F. B. Silsbee, National Bureau of Standards; K. R. Nisbet, Army Engineers Corps; N. L. Griffin, Public Health Service; Lieut. A. W. Kenny, USN; A. T. Moore, Veterans Administration; J. R. McGibony, PHS; C. H. Hosmer and N. P. Thompson, both of PBA, and Dr. L. H. Mousel, George Washington University Hospital anesthetist, all of this area.

Also serving on the committee are George W. Jones and Paul G. Guest, both of the research department, Bureau of Mines, from Pittsburgh, and Roy Hudenburg.

U. S. Thanks Portugal for Azores Base

Appreciation for the continued use of the Lagens Field airbases in the Azores has been expresed by Defense Secretary Jams Forrestal to the Portuguese government, it was revealed in a letter released by the State Department yesterday.

The leter, delivered by United States Ambassador Lincoln MacVeagh to Dr. Antonio de Oliveira Salazar, said in part:

"The important military facilities on Santa Maria Island in the Azores, which your government permitted us to use during the recent war, proved to be an invaluable asset in the final victory of the United Nations. Since the war, our military aircraft have been permitted by your government to use transit facilities at Lagens Field in the Azores. These facilities have been of great value to us in maintaining safe and efficient lines of communication with the American forces of occupation in Germany and Japan . . ."

When the Santa Maria agreement expired nine months after the end of war, Portugal agreed to allow the United States use of the Lagens Field base for 18 months.

This agreement was renewed last February 2, additional time having been given pending conclusion of the negotiations.

Under the new agreement, use of the air base facilities has been extended for thre years, after the conclusion of which, it may be extended for another two years, making the agreement valid, in effect, for five years.

Rape Defendant 'Mentally Ill'

Joseph (Dupe) Ross, 54-year-old Takoma Park, Md., garbage collector charged with raping a nearly blind 72-year-old widow, yesterday was described as "feebleminded" by two Maryland psychiatrists.

The reference was contained in a report on Ross' sanity prepared by the State Board of Mental Hygiene. The suspect was also described as "an illiterate, very ignorant man."

Ross was arrested by Montgomery County Police and indicted by a grand jury called into special session after he was arrested for assaulting the aged woman on May 12.

The case was scheduled for trial in Montgomery Circuit Court yesterday, but a last-minute postponement was granted until June 29, at the request of Ross' attorney, Leon A. Ransom, who was retained by the Montgomery County branch, National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

The mental report on Ross made public yesterday by Dr. George H. Preston, State Mental Hygiene director, said Ross could count up to 29, but "he cannot add 2 and 2." The report revealed Ross has been sentenced to a total of 23 years for assault, housebreaking and robbery.

Court Voids Conviction In Rape Case

Justice Richmond B. Keech yesterday invalidated the rape conviction of Jesse B. James, 38, and ordered him freed.

James, a soda-fountain clerk, was convicted in April of having sexual relations with a 13-year-old girl. He resides at 1016 South Carolina ave. se.

Defense Attorney Saul Lichtenberg, in arguing that the conviction be set aside, said the court erred in refusing to allow into evidence the fact that the girl had accused another man of a similar offense.

Also testimony was allowed of a medical examination given the girl on November 5. This was a day after she said she was attacked by another man, who was acquitted by a jury.

Assistant United States Attorney Joseph Lawless, jr., agreed that in view of these facts, it would be useless to grant a new trial, and did not object to the dismissal of charges against Long.

Two County Press Units Protest on 'Gag' Rule

Proposed Closing Of Court, Police News Sources in Maryland Is Hit

Presidents of two nearby Maryland county press associations last night protested a proposed rule for State legal procedure they said would "gag" Maryland police and court news' sources.

The porposed regulation, as published in a legal journal, would be "in violation of the rights of free speech, a free press and the rights of defendants," they declared in a telegram of protest.

The telegram, sent last night to Frederick W. Invernizzi, court reporter, Maryland Court of Appeals, was signed by John W. Coffman, jr., president of the Montgomery County Press Association, and Phillip J. Austensen, president, Prince Georges County Press Association.

Opposed to Rule 9

The associations opposed acceptance of Rule 9, pertaining to contempt of court proceedings for publishing, photographing and broadcasting matter on pending cases, as proposed by a subcommittee of the Standing Committee on Rules and Practices and Procedure for the Maryland Court of Appeals.

Coffman, editor and publisher of the Takoma Journal, Takoma Park, Md., and Austensen, reporter for The Washington Post, said they had called a joint meeting of their executive committee for 7:30 p. m., Thursday, at Quonset Inn, Silver Hill, Md., to press the fight.

The proposed code of practices in criminal cases in the State prohibits, among other things, "issuance by the police or other duly constituted authorities, the State's attorney, counsel for the defense, or any other person having official connection with the case, any statement relative to the conduct of the accused, statements or admissions made by the accused, or other matter bearing upon the issues to be tried."

Another Prohibition

The rule would further prohibit, also under penalty of contempt of court citation, the "issuance of any statement or forecast as to the future course of action of either the prosecuting authorities or the defense relative to the conduct of the trial."

"These proposals would bar a State's Attorney from stating he intended to prosecute a crime, and a defense attorney from making any statement in defense of his client," said the joint statement.

"We do not share the evident belief of the Standing Committee that the works of the police and the courts should be shrouded in secrecy," it continued.

"We feel that only a police state could justify such restraints upon a free press, freedom of speech, and the right of a defense attorney to defend his client, and that such secrecy enjoined upon the police would give rise to many violations of civil rights."

Publication of the proposed code, specifically described as "preliminary drafts in order to secure comments and suggestions from the judges and lawyers of the State," was made in the Daily Record, Baltimore legal journal, in edition of May 21.

Invernizzi told The Washington Post later last night that the proposed rules for legal procedure in criminal cases was considered recently at a meeting of the full membership of the standing committee. No final action, he said, was taken on any of the proposed regulations.

Furthermore, said Invernizzi, he was advised to have the proposed regulations republished, along with another appeal for comments and suggestions. The matter, he said, would not come up for committee consideration again until September.

Senate Office Building Site Suit Planned

Condemnation Action Will Be Taken Before District Court Here

Condemnation proceedings to acquire title to the site of the proposed new Senate Office Building will be instituted in District Court, David Lynn, architect of the Capitol, said yesterday.

The legal action will be started after President Truman signs the second deficiency appropriations bill authorizing $20,600,000 for the project, Lynn stated. The new building will be constructed on 1st st. nw., between B and C sts.

In the meantime, Col. M. L. McDiarmid, superintendent of Columbia Hospital, echoed the feelings of officials of four others District hospitals when he expressed "great disappointment" over failure of Congress to pass the Dirksen amendment which would have provided 13 millions to aid the hospitals. The proposal failed to reach the floor before Congress recessed.

Besides Columbia, institutions designated to benefit under the amendment include Casualty, Children's, Homeopathic and Sibley.

McDiarmid said Columbia had made tentative plans for hospital expansion including the construction of a new nurses' home. A move for such funds failed in 1927, he said, when President Coolidge failed to sign the authorization.

Old Soldier Held Under New Sex Law

In the first case under the new District sex law, a 63-year-old Soldier's Home resident was charged in Municipal Court yesterday with taking indecent liberties with an 8-year-old girl.

The defendant is Amide Landry, 63. With consent of defense counsel, Landry was committed for 30 days' mental observation. The case was heard by Judge Walter J. Casey.

According to the charge, Landry paid the child $2 on June 17 to pull up her dress and expose herself to him in an alley in the rear of 4300 2d st. nw. There was no physical contact, according to the charge.

The section of the law involved makes possible a 10-year prison term for the offense. If the authorities should choose, they might after a court hearing order the defendant committed to St. Elizabeth's Hospital for an indefinite period of confinement and treatment as a sexual psychopath.

Armed Forces, VFW Delegates March in Alexandria Parade

More than 1100 Veterans of Foreign Wars delegates watched or marched in a mile-long parade yesterday along Alexandria's Washington st.

The parade, marshaled by Maj. Gen. Douglas A. Weart, new commandant of Fort Belvoir, Va., highlighted the VFW's Virginia Department encampment which ends Wednesday.

The parade included Army, Marine, Navy and Coast Guard units, the Alexandria Citizens Band, the Alexandria Fire Department, the Friendship, old-time fire truck, drawn by 50 Boy Scouts, and the groups of delegates from nine Virginia VFW districts.

At a general session of the encampment prior to the parade, Omar Ketchem, VFW national legislative officer, told the veterans the recently adjourned Congress had not been "entirely satisfactory" as fare as veterans were concerned.

He said the only major legislation advocated by the VFW that Congress had acted on was the resurgence of American air supremacy by providing for a 70-group air force. He said the VFW favored universal military training but when Congress "dodged and side-tracked this issue, in spite of public opinion" the VFW had backed temporary selective service as an alternative.

A torchlight parade was held last night by the Military Order of the Cootie, the VFW horseplay organization. The encampment will get down to election of officers today.

In connection with the encampment, a Navy rocket ship, the LMSR No. 412, has tied up at the dock at the foot of Jefferson st. and is open to visitors from 1 to 4:30 p. m.

Intensive War on Jap Beetle Opens in Montgomery County

An intensive Japanese beetle control program got under way yesterday in Montgomery County as County Agent O. W. Anderson warned that the pests would be twice as bad as last year.

At the same time, the annual Department of Agriculture quarantine for beetles began in Washington and nearby areas. The quarantine applies only to bulk shipment of fruit, vegetables and cut flowers.

In announcing details of the Montgomery control program, County Agent Anderson said spot checks of the beetle grub wintering in the soil showed twice the population over last year.

A stepped-up control program costing $15,7000, postponed a week due to late arrival of the beetles, will include use of five large spraying machines containing a stronger DDT solution than used last year. Every public thoroughfare in the county will be sprayed twice, Anderson said.

The public spraying will be supplemented by six more sprayers owned by the County Farm Bureau attacking beetles in the rural areas.

Supreme Court Upsets Voiding Of 1946 OPA Contempt Case

The United States Supreme Court yesterday upset a District Court ruling that freed a Washington used-car dealer from contempt charges leveled in 1946 by OPA in connection with alleged above-ceiling sales.

With four of the nine justices dissenting, the high court said that James Hoffman, then trading as Allen Motors, 316 Florida ave. ne., could not claim wrongful self-incrimination based on OPA's use of his own books to gather evidence against him.

In February, 1946, OPA sought to brave criminal contempt proceedings instituted against Hoffman because, the price agency charged, Hoffman had sold cars above ceiling in violation of an injunction issued earlier by the court. Later, however, the lower court threw out the case on Hoffman's plea that the Constitution grants him immunity from prosecution that is based on self-incrimination.

The Supreme Court's reasons for reversing this action were set forth in another case, Shapiro vs. U. S., heard together with the Hoffman case. oBth opinions with the same justices dissenting, were handed down together.

Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson, writing for the majority, said that within the meaning of the Emergency Price Control Act, Hoffman's records could be regarded as having a "public" aspect. The Government could thus rightly examine them to help in enforcing the price law.

D. C. Fireman Graduates From High School

They rang down the curtain last night on one of the most distinguished academic careers in Washington. Or maybe it was just the beginning.

After 12 long years of night classes—three hours to every session, three sessions a week—Charles James Huppmann, jr., was graduated last night from high school.

Huppmann, 32, is a District fireman, a private on Truck Company No. 1. He is married and the father of an 8-year-old boy. He lives at 24 Caton ave., Alexandria.

Story Is Typical

On February 1, 1936, Huppmann went back to school, which he had been forced to leave for work as a youngster. His story is fairly typical of the other 144 men and women, adults all, who received diplomas at McKinley High School commencement exercises.

Before handing them their sheepskins, Dr. James A. Gannon, member of the D. C. Board of Education, made a little speech. "It takes nerve and courage to do what you have done," he said. "I respect you for it."

Fire Fighter Huppman, a veteran of seven years with the department, emerged from his long tour of night school education as president of Roosevelt evening High School. He wants to become an accountant.

"I felt the need for more education," he said, somewhat embarrassedly. Then he patted his boy's head and smiled: "I'm going to enter George Washington University next fall."

Together with the 145 high school graduates were 90 other students who received certificates of proficiency in various trades. Sixteen other students were graduated from the eighth grade. Night schools represented at the commencement exercises were Bell, Central, Chamberlain, McKinley and Roosevelt.

TWELVE AND HALF YEARS AT NIGHT—Charles James Huppman, jr., 33, president of the Roosevelt Evening High School class, gets a big hug from his son, Charles J. Huppman 3d, after receiving his diploma last night at McKinley High School. Huppman is member of the Washington Fire Department Truck Co. No. 1. Due to his work, it took 12½ years to complete course in night school. The Huppmans live at 24 Canton ave., Alexandria, Va.

Dodd Renamed Treasurer in Takoma Park

Mayor, City Council Make Appointments At First Meeting

The mayor and city council of Takoma Park, sitting in its first public meeting since taking over office June 7, last night reappointed J. Wilson Dodd clerk and treasurer for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Dodd has been an employe for 16 years. Another appointment made by the council was that of superintendent of public works William F. Rischer, an employe for 20 years, who has agreed to stay on until the council obtains a successor. Fischer, under the new State retirement system adopted by the city, must retire by July 1, 1949. He is eligible to retire now, however. J. Douglas Bradshaw was named corporation counsel.

Also reappointed was Roy E. Frye as building inspector. The council deferred Police Department appointees and other employes until tonight when it will hold a special executive session.

Under the new setup of the Takoma Park Fire Department as a municipal responsibility, Mayor John C. Post named the following to serve on the fire board:

Norman C. Jones, Thomas Clark, Earl Thomas, jr., C. G. Fisk, E. F. Ryfsnyder, Herman Paul, J. J. Bruff, Henry Marschalk and Councilman John T. Parkerson.

For the first time in the history of the council, it will be represented on the Montgomery County Civic Federation. Following a recommendation of Councilman Walter McClenon, vice president of the federation, the council approved Mayor Post, Councilman H. C. Heffner and McClenon as the delegates and J. H. Nies and H. Brooks Perring as alternates.

Silver Spring Hospital Plan Is Approved

The Silver Spring Hospital Association, Inc., voted last night to build a hospital known as the Montgomery Memorial Medical Center or a site owned by the association in Silver Spring, Md.

The association's action, taken during a meeting of 25 members at the Maryland State Liquor Control Board's Building in Silver Spring, calls for a 200-bed hospital estimated to cost $2,500,000.

It will be built at Forest Glen rd. and Sligo Parkway, just east of Georgia ave. The association purchased the land some time ago for a hospital.

The association members expressed willingness to merge the hospital with Suburban Hospital, now in Bethesda, if Suburban officials and Bethesda residents would agree.

The association elected Ralph D. Boyd, former president of the Allied Civic Group of Silver Spring, as president to succeed Fred L. Lutz, president of the Suburban National Bank in Silver Spring, who declined reelection.

Bernard F. Burdick was elected vice president, Mrs. F. Klinge, secretary, and Morris Taylor, treasurer.

Hyattsville Votes to Adopt Civil Service

Hyattsville City Council last night enacted a town civil service system, effective July 1, providing that town employes may be fired for disloyalty to the United States.

The adopted merit system sets out qualifications for employment, methods of employment, working hours and pay, holidays and vacation and sick leave. It covers the police and fire departments, engineer's office, clerical employes and labor forces.

The plan allots annual leave at the rate of one day per month and sick leave at half day a month, but limits annual leave to 18 days. It also requires all employes to join the Maryland Retirement System.

The council set a special meeting for July 13 in the Hyattsville County Service Building to consider a possible business license tax or parking meters. John T. Norman, vice president of the Hyattsville Business and Professional Men's Association, told the council his group is opposed to the business tax.

A 17-year-old Jessup, Md., motorcyclist died early yesterday in a Baltimore Hospital a few hours after his 19-year-old girl friend was killed when their cycle went out of control near Laurel Sunday night.

The victims were Charles Golliday, a cashier in a Laurel market, and Miss Dorothy Fischer, daughter of Mrs. Blanche Mahan, of 28 Avondale st., Laurel. Miss Fischer was graduated from Laurel High School last week.

According to Maryland State police, Golliday was driving the cycle, with Miss Fischer riding tandem, when it went out of control on Route 1, about a mile north of Laurel. Both were hurled to the pavement.

The girl was pronounced dead upon arrival at St. Agnes Hospital, Baltimore. Golliday died there a few hours later.

Streptomycin Does Wonders In VD Cases

Streptomychin has been found effective here in the treatment of venereal diseases, it was reported yesterday by Dr. S. Ross Taggart, District Health Department director of venereal disease control.

The oft-termed wonder drug, Dr. Taggart reported, "has revolutionized" the treatment of granuloma inguinale, a relatively rare type of venereal disease, and "has proved effective" in treating gonorrhea and chancroid.

Dr. Taggart's findings, based on use of the drug at the venereal disease clinic of Gallinger Hospital, were reported in technical papers scheduled for his presentation yesterday to the American Association of Venereal Diseases convention, in Chicago.

He told of treatments of 63 patients here afflicted with granuloma inguinale, an ulcerating growth in the groin of either sex. The antibiotic, he said, successfully destroyed causative organisms of the disease, though other therapy was used to rid the patients of ulcers already formed by the disease before streptomycin treatment. He pointed out that "only a small number of patients were apparently cured" in the past by other forms of therapy for the disease reported more prevalent in the tropics.

Used against gonorrhea and chancroid, Dr. Taggart said, streptomycin was found especially effective among patients found toxic to the use of penicillin and sulfanomides.

In Traffic Cases

Tight Check Urged on Ticket Fixing

A report calling for tightening up on traffice ticket fixing and an increase in police personnel assigned to the traffic division was indorsed last night by the commissione s' Traffic Advisory Board.

The board also recommended continuance on a permanent basis of the traffic violators' school. Started last January on an experimental basis, the school would closeJuly 9 unless reauthorized.

The recommendations regarding ticket fixing were contained in a report submitted by Nathan Luba , chairman of the board's enforcement committee.

Accurate Check Urged

Some "precince commanders give preference to individuals without regard" to the general order regulating ticket adjustments, the report showed. Also, some precinct captains fail to follow th ough on proper check of books issued police for traffic violation notices, the report maintainedu.

It was suggested that a policeman at each precinct check each night on traffic violations shown on the police books for each day, initial each report and present a list of reports to the present commander, which should be forwarded to the board of license revocations.

Also urged was extension of the practice in some precincts of talks by senior officers at roll calls as to particular violations which should be more stringently enforced. The committee found that weekly reports published in some newspapers of adjusted tickets "has been of value in some respect."

Larger Traffic Force Urged

The committee recommended an increase in traffic department personnel, noting that Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett "indicates that additional men cannot be assigned to the traffic division until the authorized state of the police department as a whole is increased."

An analysis of Washington's traffic safety record in 1947 was presented by George E. Grotz, Eastern field representative of the National Safety Council. He admitted, under questioning, that the NSC report was based on figures, some of which "were under-reported." The report placed Washington third among 14 cities of over 500,000 population.

Denied License As Bondsman, Man Appeals

John W. Carter, 1223 Girard st. ne., has asked the United States Court of Appeals to review a District Court decision denying him a bondsman's license here, court records revealed yesterday.

Carter asserts he was not given a hearing in connection with the license refusal and accused the court of "publicly indicating the nature of the investigation" into his past life and "subsequently sealing and making unavailable" to him the secret report.

When earlier this year, Carter tried to get into the bonding business here, the courts asked for a secret investigation to determine his fitness. The business of bonding suspected criminals to insure their appearance before the court is at present exclusively in the hands of white persons. Carter is a Negro.

Four jurists of the District Court acted in refusing Carter's license. They gave no reason for the refusal other than to indicate it was based on the still-secret report of Investigators.

Carter avers the court had no right to order the investigation, and he should be granted the right to see and answer any charges in it.

In other cases yesterday involving bondsmen, Justice David A. Pine gave Meyer Weinstein, a bondsman, until July 21 to produce Miss DeJean Bacon, 24, who did not appear in court some months ago to answer charges of passing bad checks for almost $10,000. Miss Bacon, who is under $2000 bond, is no win custody of authorities in Mexico, the court was told.

Realty Tax Rate Seen Staying at $2 for Year

Failure to Obtain District Pay Hike Leaves '49 Budget Virtually Balanced

By James E. Ficken
Post Reporter

The District real estate tax rate of $2 per $100 assessed value appeared last night to be certain to continue for at least another year.

Budget Officer Walter L. Fowler said he would recommend no increase when the Commissioners set the rate July 1 for the 1949 fiscal year.

Failure of Congress to include District employes in the Federal Government pay raise bill leaves the city with its $99,729,483 budget for fiscal 1949 practically "balanced" against present income sources, he said.

Budget officials said they were confident that a "paper" deficit of between $300,000 and $600,000 could be "taken care of" without recourse to a real estate tax boost.

Possible Steps Outlined

Estimated revenue includes $84,060,283 from the general fund; $9,282,200 from highway fund, and $6,387,000 from water fund. A possible deficit in the general fund, they said, probably can be made up by reducing the reserve for supplemental and deficiency appropriations, use of cash balances, and an expected hike in the "take" from income tax returns.

Gloom continued among District employes over congressional failure to include them in the pay-raise bill.

Fowler predicted the city would have a difficult time filling approximately 1110 jobs, including 700 now vacant and 410 new positions provided in the 1949 budget.

"Those people aren't going to work for us when they can get more money in the Federal Government—obviously," added Deputy Budget Officer William G. Wilding.

Both Fowler and Commissioner Guy Mason said there appeared to be nothing that could be done to obtain a pay boost for District employes until Congress acts on the matter.

"It's quite apparent to me . . . that it was clearly the intention of the legislators to eliminate District of Columbia employes until such time as legislation is passed by Congress," Fowler said.

"It's always been our practice to take care of all, not just a group," he continued. "To raise the real estate tax to take care of all would be unconscionable."

Little Chance for Per Diems

Highway Director H. C. Whitehurst, chairman of the five-man wage board which considers pay rates for per diem employes, said there is little likelihood of boosting per diem pay.

He pointed out that the wage board does not initiate action for per diem pay raises but considers them only when instructed to do so by the Commissioners.

He said the lack of a pay increase, however, will hit per diem workers especially hard. He said he knew personally of several cases where young men with families were forced to work nights in gasoline stations—after working all day for the District—in order to make ends meet.

Per diem employes include such workers as welders, plumbers, carpenters, steamfitters, sheet-metal workers and other skilled and non-skilled laborers, Whitehurst said.

Last Cattle Sold At St. Elizabeths

Last of the Holstein cattle herd at St. Elizabeths Hospital's dairy farm on Fort Foot rd., Prince Georges County, Md.—which at one time supplied all the institution's milk needs—yesterday went to the highest bidders.

Disposal of the farm's bovine population, once consisting of almost 400 cows, began last fall when the cost of operating the diary became too high, according to David W. Bishop, hospital executive assistant.

Yesterday's sale of 34 heifers, through the War Assets Administration, brought the United States Treasury $4716.50. Most of the purchasers were war veteran farmers from Maryland and Virginia.

The 350-acre hospital farm will keep some 20 horses—it sold two yesterday—and a number of young hogs. The farm is worked largely by patients.

In recent years, milk for the hospital has been supplemented by purchases from dealers. The current milk consumption at the hospital is about 1040 gallons a day. From now on, all of it will be purchased.

No Action Taken Yet On Viers Project

No action by Federal or other agencies appears to be planned as a result of a House committee report that Viers Mill Village veterans' homes, being sold for $8700, are overpriced by $1000 to $1500.

Officials of the Veterans' Administration, which had agreed to guarantee home loans when the houses were completed according to specifications, said yesterday they had not seen the critical report of the House Committee on Expenditures in Executive Departments.

However, spokesmen from both regional and national offices of VA and FHA indicated no changes in policy or procedure were planned as a result of the committee's sharp words on the price-estimating methods of both agencies.

Report Follows Hearings

The report followed six weeks of hearings by a subcommittee.

More than 200 of 1400 projected Viers Mill Village homes have been completed. They are located in Montgomery County between Wheaton and Rockville, Md.

Warren J. Lockwood, assistant to the commissioner, FHA, said he could not see that the committee report called for changes in FHA procedure. He said defects in some of the Viers Mill houses were reported by an FHA inspector, who had been assigned to the project continuously.

At VA national office, a spokesman said the committee's criticism that the appraisal prices were too high was "practically unique," since "most builders say our appraisals are too low." He added he did not believe a change in national policies was called for.

Morgan B. Callahan, loan guaranty officer of the VA regional office, who declined comment on the committee criticisms because he had not seen the report, said a new inspection procedure has been in operation since April 1.

Inspected Three Times

Under this system, not in effect when the Viers Mill houses were appraised from plans and specifications, the VA makes three inspections during the construction and may call to the builder's attention any defects which might affect the VA's original appraisal.

This new procedure, which is used at the option of the builder, is to the latter's advantage, according to Callahan, as the builder then is assured of a firm valuation.

Figures in McLean Gardens Rent Hearing

The Washington Post

Towel Waved On McLean Rent Boost

Tenants threw in the towel at the McLean Gardens rent increase hearing yesterday, but it wasn't a signal of surrender.

Miss Virginia Morsey, occupant of one of the 1175 dormitory rooms at the Wisconsin ave. development, for which the Fairmac Corp. seeks a $5-a-month rent hike, waved the torn towel for emphasis.

Miss Morsey appeared near the end of the all-day hearing devoted to room rent hikes. In addition to the $5-a-month room boost, the Fairmac Corp. seeks a 10 per cent increase for 720 apartments. Testimony concerning apartments will be heard in the District Building board room beginning at 9:30 a. m. today.

Tattered Sheets, Towels

Sheets in threds and tattered towels, Miss Morsey told Rent Control Examiner Denis F. Lane, are symbolic of a decline in service at McLean Gardens and owners do not deserve higher rents for what they provide.

Only a handful of spectators was present, but tenants were well represented by a legal force, including Paul A. Porter, former OPA Administrator and Attorneys Benjamin Sigal and Reed Miller.

Fairmac testimony revealed that room rates—ranging from $30 to $42.50 per month, but with the majority at $34.50—originally were set lower than those for comparable accommodations elsewhere in the city.

'Expectancy of Profit'

Because the development was then Government-owned, it was brought out, no consideration was given to what a businessman's "expectancy of profit" would be. Higher taxes and water rents were cited as adding to the need for the raise.

Tenants gave a long list of "poor services," including lack of heat, inadequate recreation facilities, leaky faucets, insufficient cleaning, and absence of personnel to receive telephone messages, packages and special delivery letters

4-H Club Delegates Offer Ideas for World Betterment

A few ideas they believe will make the world a better place to live in were turned up yesterday by the Nation's top 4-H Club members, who are here for their eighteenth national encampment.

To create better homes the world over, a subject they pondered in group discussions Saturday, they decided the best place to begin was in their own back yards. Or, as they put it, "in our own community, State and Nation."

And the first step is putting a stop to "race prejudice within our own country," said Miss Marietta Trowbridge of Saratoga, Wyo., who presented a synthesis of their ideas yesterday at a general meeting in Departmental Auditorium:

"We should start when we return home by trying to cut down the discrimination between races and religions."

After beginning the movement in this country, the 4-H Club members want to aid 'world-wide understanding" by enlarging the intercountry youth exchange program.

They also called for establishment of 4-H Clubs or similar organizations in foreign countries, with an international camp or congress to be held annually. A "clear picture of the American way of life" would be given by use of movies "taken on average farms to get away from the glamorized Hollywod versions."

Miss Trowbridge reported the young delegates feel that the sending of food packages and clothing to other lands aids in creating good will.

Yesterday afternoon was "All States Day" for the 192 boys and girls from 16 to 21 who are attending the camp, which gave them the opportunity to see points of interest of their own choice in Washington. Tuesday afternoon, they will hear an address by Charles F. Brannan, Secretary of Agriculture. The camp extends through Wednesday.

Anti-Pollution Plans Outlined

The executive committee of the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin yesterday outlined a nine-point anti-pollution program to be submitted for the commission's approval at Hagerstown, Md., September 10-11.

Spokesmen for the committee declined to divulge details of the program, since it will not become official until approval by the entire commission, but said all the recommendations would center on further efforts to abate pollution in the Potomac watershed.

Man Kicked Boy, Is Charge

George H. Mitchell, sr., 52, of 15 E. Irving st., Chevy Chase, Md., was accused yesterday in a sworn Municipal Court information with hitting and kicking the 11-year-old son of a neighbor.

Richard G. Sinclair, 6021 Western ave., related in the information that his son, Ronald, suffered cuts about the mouth necessitating three stitches after the alleged assault by Mitchell. It occurred it was charged, after Ronald and Mitchell's son, Clifton, 9, were in an argument over "swapping" wagons.

As Convention Opens

G. O. P. Sartorial Honors Go to Illinois' Bertha Bauer, Sioux Indian Chieftain

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

PHILADELPHIA, PA., June 21.—The Republican National Convention opened to half filled seats, the National Anthem sung by a pretty miss done up in turquoise blue, incidental music by a barbershop quartet, and a flow of fancy oratory by Pennsylvania officials, outstanding among the mass of everyday delegates a Sioux Indian chief in eagle feather war bonnet and full regalia. Outside, Philadelphia newsboys in bright yellow jerseys peddled paper, and pickets paraded advertising the most modern of strikes—television technicians wanting more dough.

Snappy notes in convention hall were the State placards—navy blue background, white lettering rimmed with cyclamen plastic; the gladiola banked platform; the Pennsylvania Railroad's giant press lounge where crackers, assorted cheeses, soft drinks and beer were served free to ravening reporters. Deep down in the hall Western Union set up row after row of typewriters, giving each newspaper and syndicate its own beaverboard partitioned workroom. Tass, the Soviet official news agency, has its little nook, too, but inside it was bare as a billiard ball—not a chair, typewriter or shred of paper.

At the first session the press artists were more interesting than the politicians. Louis Bromfield, a registered Democrat, has a newspaper job "because it's the easiest way to get to a convention." Novelist Kay Brush, her red hair covered with a three-toned green crocheted beret, sat next to the New York Herald Tribune's Mrs. Ogden Reid and her son, Whitelaw. Randolph Churchill, over from London for the event, dripped with perspiration.

Sartorial Honors

SARTORIALLY we divided honors between Illinois National Committeewoman Bertha Bauer and the Sioux chieftain. The latter is a South Dakota delegate, so we queried Alternate Delegate G. Gill Warner about him.

He is Chief Spotted Crow of Pine Ridge Sioux, and the reservation's most influential Indian. Chief Spotted Crow wore a white buckskin suit trimmed with plaques of vivid beadwork. Removing his splendid war bonnet for the benefit of those sitting behind, he had his long hair tied up a la Elisabeth Arden beauty parlor in a black scarf.

Mrs. Bauer's opening session costume was a red silk dress with an all-over design of gray elephant. Her newest convention hat is a white straw cartwheel with three good sized gold kid elephants sitting up on their haunches.

Among the talented young delegates, Wendell Willkie's son, Philip, and Will Hays' nephew, John Hays, both are members of the Illinois delegation.

Washingtonians There

FAMILIAR WASHINGTONIANS glimpsed in Convention Hall were Senator Homer Ferguson on the speakers' platform and Representative Frances Bolton, who'll make an address tomorrow morning. "It's all for women," she smiled. Mrs. Bolton, still weary from her congressional stint, was in the Pennsylvania press lounge, wearing a navy blue printed silk suit, a huge Taft button, and with Ohio's first lady, Mrs. Herbert, in tow.

Most of Washington seems to be holed in in Philadelphia. Mrs. Robert Bacon, Mrs. Arthur Fowler, and Mrs. John M. Gross now of Bethlehem, Pa., are sharing an apartment at the Barclay. Mrs. Gross, the former Mrs. Jimmy Curtis and owner of the F Street Club, has been accorded a singular honor by the Pennsylvania delegation—she is proud possessor of a sergeant at arms badge which permits her to sit in any empty seat.

Little Eva and the Bellboy

YESTERDAY AFTERNOON this department, accompanied by Louis Bromfield, slid from Dewey to Taft press conferences. The Dewey affair was dignified—the only frivolous note injected by several females who insisted on holding aloft white cotton parasols stamped with Dewey slogans and clutching big plush elephants they'd acquired as giveaway souvenirs. The Taft conference was much more fun.

The Benjamin Franklin's lobby was sardined with Tafters snake dancing across the parquet and up to the hall. Over all the hubbub crescendoed the wild trumpetings of Little Eva, the Taft mascot. Half a dozen people, including the two-year-old elephant's Indian mahout, were trying to coax her into the service elevator. Little Eva would have none of it until she spotted a bellboy. His brass buttons must have appealed to her feminine love of frippery, for, ignoring her devoted mahout, she followed him into the elevator, then into the stuffy press conference room.

Bromfield, who has spent considerable time in India and profited from his visit by penning "The Rains Came," is an elephant expert, and explained that lady pachyderms often get crushes on humans.

As we left, Little Eva, her red, white and blue tophat slightly askew, was lapping up a bucket of milk, keeping her beady eye firmly fixed on the bellhop.

Likable Mrs. Stassen

BEFORE EMBARKING for the convention's opening we stopped in to see Mrs. Stassen. Riding up in the elevator was Clare Luce, blonder, lovelier than ever, and wearing a simple red and white striped dress. "I wish you'd ask Irene Dunne to dinner tonight. She's all alone," she called over her shoulder as she left the elevator.

We sat on Mrs. Stassen's bed and talked. Mrs. Stassen, a slim brunette, had on a plain navy blue dress, a choker of small china flowers. She has accompanied her husband on campaign tours about a third of the time, keeps in touch by telephone the rest. Interested in all his problems, she makes suggestions when asked, feels her job is to lighten his burden as much as possible. Fortunately she loves people of all kinds, never feels nervous except with movie stars—they give her a real inferiority complex.

When her husband was Governor of Minnesota, she toured all the State's institutions with him, became absorbed in children's hospital problems. Since then she's done as much work as possible helping with children's programs in hospitals. The two Stassen children—Glen, 12, and Kathleen, 6—are having a big time today. Visiting with friends in New Jersey, they're going to see the ocean for the first time.

The first day here Mr. Stassen was busy all day. When he got home his son asked "Daddy, were you nominated?"

Neither of the Stassens have any particular hobbies so they both concentrate on Glen's. He is an avid collector of foreign coins and stamps and on their travels they shop for him assiduously.

Mrs. Stassen is extremely likable and just about the ideal wife for a rising politician.

Miss Pryse, Lieut. Williamson Married at St. Alban's Church

MRS. CHARLES GURLEY WILLIAMSON, JR.
... former Gwenda Pryse

In the Cathedral Close at St. Alban's Church yesterday, Miss Gwenda Rollins Pryse became the bride of Lieut. Charles Gurley Williamson, jr., USA. The bride is the daughter of Col. and Mrs. E. Morgan Pryse of this city and Portland, Oreg., and the bridegroom is son of Mr. and Mrs. Williamson of Owosso, Mich.

Officiating at the ceremony was the Rev. Robert Evans Browning who married the bride's parents 24 years ago at the Church of the Ascension in Baltimore. The bride was attired in her mother's wedding dress, made of ivory satin crepe. Her veil of heirloom Belgian princess lace fell the length of her circular train and she carried a bouquet of roses and orchids.

Miss Barbara Jean Pryse, maid of honor for her cousin, wore yellow taffeta and carried white shasta daisies. Bridesmaids were Miss Monica Blodgett Gaillard, Miss Katherine Colean, Miss Mary Carolyn Martin, Miss Jeanne B. Stoeckle, Miss Elizabeth O. Bole and Miss Joan Fanciulli. They wore green taffeta frocks and carried yellow daisies. Claudia Morgan Pryse was flower girl.

Mr. Williamson was best man for his son and ushering were David Abell Williamson, Robert Coolidge, Jon T. Ball, Lieut. Benjamin T. Hill, jr., William Leland Muck and Charles F. Myers.

Following the ceremony a reception took place in the garden of the home of the bride's parents.

The newlyweds left later for a wedding trip to Cape Cod. In July Lieutenant Williamson will leave for Tokyo, Japan, where he is stationed, and his bride will follow as soon as shipping space is available.

The bride is a graduate of the Madeira School and Vassar College and made her debut at the Washington Club in 1947. Lieutenant Williamson attended Millard Preparatory School and is a graduate of the United States Military Academy.

James Landis, Dorothy Brown To Be Married

Of interest to Washington is the announcement of the engagement and approaching marriage of Mrs. Dorothy Brown to James M. Landis, former Chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board. The wedding will take place within a few weeks.

The bride-elect, who lives at the Dorchester House apartments, 2480 16th st. nw., is the daughter of Charles W. Purdy of Braintree, Mass., and the late Mrs. Purdy. When Mr. Landis was chairman of CAB, Mrs. Brown served as his assistant for two years.

Mr. Landis is now associated with Joseph P. Kennedy in New York City. He was formerly dean of Harvard Law School, director of the Office of Civilian Defense, and Director of American Economic Operations and Minister to the Middle East.

Mrs. Brown stayed on at CAB after Mr. Landis left the agency, until just a few weeks ago when she resigned. During the war Mrs. Brown was with the Department of State.

The couple plan to fly to Bermaster.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Woman In Fifties Starts to Drink, to Learn The Secret, She Says, of Why Her Husband And Son Have Taken That Road to Destruction

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am deeply concerned about an old friend of mine, I'll call her Belle, whom I have known since childhood. We are now in our 50s.

After we married and during the years of rearing our respective families, we lost close contact; but I have known indirectly all these years of the heavy responsibilities she carried.

She married quite young and her husband died shortly thereafter, leaving her with a son to rear and educate. Her life centered on him and he was surely a boy to be proud of. During her parents' last years, she endured endless hardships to care for them, and also looked after four brothers and sisters.

Devoted Friend Wishes to Help

THEN a few years ago she married a weak, irresponsible cad, whom she supported while he spent his money on fast living. Now they are separated. But worse and more, her son came back a physical wreck from Army service. He is drunk continuously, causing her great shame and heartache.

Recently a fraternal organization to which I belong had a meeting at a large hotel and there I saw Belle in the midst of a hard-drinking group. When we drew aside to talk together, she told me that this past month she is getting drunk every night—"taking lessons to understand why she lost her son, and why she couldn't hold her husband from the lure of liquor and fast women."

What can anyone do to stop this very fine person from destroying herself? She is so very bitter, feeling that her whole life has been sacrificed to others, whereas her reward has been zero, as her present existence is desolate. I want so much to help her, but I feel shocked and stymied, hence your good counsel is invited. P. N.

Life Has Given Her Dirty Deal

DEAR P. N.: Belle needs exactly what you have to give her, namely, warm friendly unselfish interest which stems from genuine affectionate appreciation of her essentially fine self.

Through no initial fault of her own, life has given her a consistently dirty deal, it seems, yielding no satisfactions of any kind, in terms of good abiding relationships with close associates of generous character, who really cared about her welfare.

She has been exploited, deprived, struggling against crushing odds, to the present time, which finds her with no defenses against despair—tired of living and afraid of dying, as the physical stamina and blind optimism which sustained her in younger years are dwindling out.

Sorely Deprived Of Love Nurture

IN ALL probability her grim saga had its origin in a demoralized childhood, with Belle emotionally rebuffed yet called upon by harried parents to make herself useful; and the tendency of sensitive loyal children who suffer thus is to construe themselves worthless as they grow up, and to make a burnt offering of themselves in every relationship, on the unconscious assumption that only by being a slave to others do they qualify for a smidgen of social tolerance.

The deeply self-respecting person—whose strength derives from positive love nurture—involuntarily accords himself the same measure of humane consideration he is disposed to give others; he stands up for his rights, as the saying goes. Moreover, he doesn't hold himself to blame if slack characters whom he tries to help don't profit by it; but obviously Belle is not so fair-minded toward herself.

In her present hopeless state, Belle's help must come from intrinsically excellent persons who refuse to indorse her embittered devaluation of her worth, and who, in a quiet way, act in unison to draw her into a circle of loving-kind friendship, and cause her to feel "a member in good standing" of abiding Christian fellowship. You should spearhead that campaign, drafting your pastor as chief consultant in planning ways and means to revive Belle's will-to-live.

COOL greens are favorite colors for summer costumes and this year they are being shown in a variety of fabrics. Miss Margaret Thors, left, lovely young daughter of the Icelandic Minister and Mme. Thors, wears a forest green linen suit for her debut as a professional model. Designed by Louise Armour, it features a slim skirt and fitted jacket with ruching trim of the same material.

Mrs. Joseph Wells, jr., right, models an emerald green shantung suit and straw colored accessories. Her baku hat with rippled brim is bound with a matching green chiffon band. Suit and hat are available at Lansburgh's Both Miss Thors and Mrs. Wells were recently graduated from the School of Fashion Modeling at Southeastern University

The telephone is always near—with a convenient extension.

Everyone in the family will appreciate the "extras" an extension telephone provides . . . the saving in steps and time . . . the privacy afforded on the telephone when you're entertaining guests . . . the assurance that the telephone is always at hand in case of an emergency.

The value is great—yet the cost is only a few pennies per day.

For complete information, simply call our Business Office.

Why You Can Get an Extension Telephone while some folks are still waiting for telephone service

Nobody is waiting for telephone service because of a lack of telephone instruments. It is the need for additional cable and central office equipment that is temporarily holding us back. We'll be able to fill new orders for service as rapidly as those facilities can be enlarged. It's a big job, but we're working harder than ever to complete it. We don't like to keep anyone waiting for telephone service.

About Seasons For Suede

What is the difference between summer and winter suede and what are the appropriate seasons for each? Also patent leather?
M. M.

Both suede and patent leather are made in two weights, a light one for summer and a heavier one for winter. Both are appropriate all year long, although women generally prefer to keep patent leather for spring and summer.

A white marquisette formal, carefully attached to a taffeta slip, developed yellow stains across the middle of the back by being folded for a few years. Only the marquisette is stained. No dry cleaning establishment would guarantee removal of the stains and none has succeeded. Lemon juice was used, too, without avail, besides endangering the taffeta. Cornstarch was rubbed in but did not lighten the marks. Can the whole dress be dipped in a chlorine bleach solution, or will it shrink terribly? And would that remove the stain? I prefer to leave the dress white? R. C.

Chlorine bleach is injurious to silk and likely to damage rayon, so I'd advise against using that on this dress. You might try sodium perborate, one of the safest bleaches for all types of materials. Mix ½ teaspoon of it (bought in powdered form at the drug store) with 1 cup hydrogen peroxide. Sponge on stains, leave a little while, then sponge off with clear water. If this lightens the streak, repeat the treatment. However, since a professional cleaner couldn't get the stain out, there's little hope that home methods will save the day.

What is the coolest material for a summer girdle? M. M.

Rayon lace fabrics make up into cool girdles, but new nylon ones are also cool and comfortable. Also in their favor is the fact that they can be washed nightly and dry in a few hours.

In regard to E. A. B.'s problem of underarm perspiration, discussed in her recent letter to you, I'd like to add my bit of advice. I had the same problem all my life. However, I have solved it by always bathing with a bit of baking soda every morning. I use a cream deodorant, also, but when I take my morning shower, I place a bit of soda in the palm of one hand and just a few drops of water, bathing the underarm therewith. It really helps and, so far as I know, it has never done any harm. In extremely hot weather, I used to throw a glass of warm soda water over my body just before rinsing with cold water. This, together with fresh clothes every day, has done away with that problem entirely, even when out playing in the sun on a picnic. Keeping the underarms hair-free is quite important, too, I have found. E. R.

Thank you so much, E. R., for your suggestions. We have also received a letter from R. M. on the same subject and it is being forwarded to E. A. B.

I am an old lady visiting Washington and my only source of pleasure is collecting old buttons. If any of your readers have State Seal buttons or any old buttons, I would be so happy to either buy them or exchange them for an old pair of eyeglasses over 100 years old. H. D. P.

Any old buttons, readers? If you'll drop us a card about them, we will forward the information to H. D. P.

I have a new dark brown alligator purse and platform shoes to match. I have been told that I should shellac these so they will retain their high gloss and not crack. If this is so, could you advise me how often the shellac should be applied, and whether or not there is a special preparation on the market? Should the leather be waxed before or after it has been shellacked, or not at all? Any and all suggestions will be heartily appreciated. J. O'N.

Applying a finish such as shellac to alligator shoes is not usually recommended because, with wear, the shellac or lacquer probably would crack. A better way to give the shoes and purse a protective coating which will wear well would be to apply a coat of special paste wax sold especially for reptile leather. A shoe store on F st. sells this product and can be reached by calling Executive 2100. Follow the directions which come with the product.

Several of us are interested in making sleeping bags. We should like to know where we can purchase good quality balloon cloth suitable for this purpose. Miss M.

I'm not sure just what material you have in mind as the the only balloon cloth I know of is very thin (though closely woven) cotton dress material. Perhaps, though, you plan to use it in lining the bags. It is sold in the yard goods sections of at least two local department stores.

'Protective Funds' Urged for Police

Chicago (U.P.). — Protective funds can make the policeman's lot a less unhappy one, according to the chief of Chicago's detectives.

Chief Walter J. Storms advised the Illinois State Police Association to follow a plan set up for his men of paying 25 cents a month to a voluntary organization which would defend them against suits for false arrest.

He said policemen frequently have to make split-second decisions when failure to make arrest can be a "penal offense," and doing their duty can subject them to suits for false imprisonment.

"Many officers have put their property in the names of other members of their family to protect their homes and savings," Storms said.

Blind Catfish Found In Artesian Wells

La Jolla, Calif. (U.P.).—An eyeless albino catfish living 1250 feet underground has been discovered in Texas' deep artesian wells.

Two of the odd fish were pumped from wells near San Antonio, Tex., and found to be "clearly members of the North American catfish family." They were completely devoid of external eyes and skin pigment, and measured 3½ inches in length.

Dr. Carl L. Hubbs of the University of California, who studied the strange fish, said their ancestors must have become trapped in the underground water system hundreds of years ago. Through the centuries they lost their eyes and skin pigment.

Have Porters Declared War on Reporters?

Porters who sweep downtown sidewalks are undoubtedly wonderful fellows in other respects, but when they heave the unsprinkled dust right at me as I pass, they make me very unhappy.

One of these days a pedestrian is going to revolt when he's hit by one of those dust bombs, and I hope I'm in the neighborhood to bear witness to what follows.

NEWSPAPER STORY

My friend Joe is personnel director of a New York newspaper. His managing editor recently read him the riot act.

"Don't waste my time by sending me would-be reporters. I don't have any openings for reporters. I don't anticipate any openings. So even if Ernest Hemingway applies for a job, I can't use him."

Since then, Joe has been turning away applicants by quoting these words: "Even if you were Ernest Hemingway, we couldn't use you."

The other day, Joe was about to trot out his usual clincher to get rid of an unusually eager young man, when the applicant said:

"In addition to my newspaper experience, I've just finished a novel. Here's a letter from my publishers telling me how good it is, but unfortuately they add, 'Because of present conditions, however, we couldn't use this manuscript even if you were Ernest Hemingway'."

Under his breath, Joe muttered: "The plagiarists!"

MISCELLANY

Mrs. Howard G. Campbell of 3726 Gunston rd., Alexandria, Va., thinks our local weatherman is wonderful. On May 8, the Campbells held a birthday picnic planned six weeks in advance; no rain. On May 30, they took a trip to Morgantown (Md.); no rain until after the hamburgers had been cooked and eaten. On June 1, they tried an excursion on the Mount Vernon, no rain. On June 8 a school picnic and June 14 a trip to the beach; again no rain. So she says "hooray for the weatherman." Shucks, the only thing that saved you, Mrs. Campbell, is that you move around so much the rain can't catch up with you . . . For many weeks now, the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. has been showing sound films to the "Redskins," a unit of the Junior Police and Citizens' Corps, located in the basement of the Tabor Presbyterian Church. The last of the series will be shown next Saturday—so the kids (ages 6 to 16) are wondering whether anybody else has some films, a projector, and a big heart. Adult Advisor Clarence E. Shaw can be reached at Decatur 6419 . . . I thought I had finally mastered the meaning of "sidereal time" until Corpl. Jim Williams of the Army Medical Center explained the difference between a sidereal day and a sidereal year—and now I'm back to where I started from . . . Just to even matters, John C. Haley, the pharmacist at the Peoples store at 19th and the Avenue, tells me he tore his dictionary apart searching for my "hippophile" (lover of horses, not hippos) . . . Elisabet M. Stone of 6225 Sligo Parkway dr., Hyattsville, Md. (founding mother of the Lizzy Stone League for the Abolition of Long Skirts) takes me down a peg because of my item about the "new" personalized stationery featuring a reproduction of the owner's signature. Liz scoffs: "Boy, what an observing reporter YOU are! Look at my signature at the top of this letter. I've been using this paper ever since I first encountered the idea in Miami in 1936—and every note I've ever written you has been on this stuff." Liz, I bow my head in shame.

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK.—Andrei Gromyko, who soon will return to Russia, is in failing health. His friends suspect that it's psychosomatic . . . At the fund-raising dinner in Hollywood, for the benefit of the needy in Europe, Sam Goldwyn made the briefest speech and raised the most money. He merely pointed to the large portions of rare food on the tables, said, "Gentlemen, people in Europe are starving," and sat down.

Bernard Baruch, whose "A few kind Words for Uncle Sam" appeared in the Saturday Evening Post, is writing another magazine article. This great American, whose wisdom has been tapped by five Presidents of the United States, employs a unique method in writing his pieces. Because dictating his words might lure him from the terseness he seeks, Baruch writes his pieces in long-hand. And to make sure his articles are concise, he writes them on the only kind of paper which is a constant reminder of the need for brevity; He writes them on Western Union blanks.

Guy Lombardo, now touring with his band, was asked by a Texas admirer if he plays Be-Bop music. "No," Lombardo explained, "We've been in business a long time with great success. If, however, we suddenly Bopped, heaven only knows where we'd be."

GOP Flirting With Solid South

By Drew Pearson

Philadelphia.—The Republican Party has always flirted with the idea of breaking the Solid South. It has also posed as the party of emancipation, the champion of a square deal for the South.

Yet when it comes to nominating the most coveted prize in the Republican Party, it treats Southern delegates as so many pawns to be bartered back and forth across the counter. These are the delegates traditionally bought and paid for, who can tip the scales for or against the leading candidates.

Sen. Robert Taft

Once back in 1928 enough Republicans got so indignant about this barter of delegates that they held a Senate investigation of Herbert Hoover's Southern purchases. According to the sworn testimony before that Senate committee, Ben Davis, colored GOP national committeeman for Georgia, received $2200 of Hoover money to pay the expenses of Georgia Republicans.

Prior to this payment Ben Davis was not for Hoover. Afterward he was.

Perry Howard, colored GOP national committeeman for Mississippi, also received $2000 of Hoover money. The Mississippi delegates voted for Hoover.

Rush Holland, former Assistant Attorney General for Harry Dougherty, was the Hoover bagman who toured the South and paid off the Southern delegates.

Today, Perry Howard, the same GOP potentate of Mississippi, is vigorously in the corner of Senator Taft. Taft has used a technique different from Hoover's. Some time ago he gave Perry Howard's son a job in the Senate postoffice.

John E. Jackson, chief Republican mogul of Louisiana, is also a Taft man. He is reported to handle some of the law business forwarded by the Taft family law firm in Cincinnati.

This year, however, Dewey has a slice of the Southern Republicans, and the battle to carve them up is the chief backstage battle now being fought in Philadelphia.

Who gets them may be the next President of the United States.

Taft's Notebook

Leaves from Senator Taft's political notebook—As the bartering gets feverish, and the fingermen try to swing delegates over to their side, here are the private notes on delegates jotted down in the Taft political notebook:

"Florida—Second District delegates: Mrs. Hattie I. James (colored), 1718 Myrtle ave., Jacksonville. Doubtful. Be sure to call her Mrs. Garrison and Perry Howard should talk to her. Her husband, Joe, is a registered Democrat. She is an ardent churchgoer. Holds important position with Negro Elks of Florida.

"Third District—Mrs. E. B. Goode (colored)—642 E. Wright st., Pensacola—doubtful. Garrison (Wesley E. Garrison of Miami) will see her in Phila. Her husband is a Negro dentist. Friend of Perry Howard.

"Fifth District—Miss Jeane E. D'Agostino—121 Wisteria ave., Orlando—Stassen. Letter June 1 to R. T. 'Wishing you every success and looking forward to meeting you in Phila.' Feels 'civil rights' is most vital subject in South. Interested in flood-control appropriations for Southern States. Catholic. Young.

"Delegate at large—Alex Akerman, jr., 209 S. Orange ave., Orlando—Stassen. Taft second choice if properly handled. Appeal to his ego. Lawyer. Originally from Georgia."

Note—The "R. T." mentioned above persumably refers to "Robert Taft." Although Miss D'Agostino is for Stassen, the Taft managers made careful notes aimed at swinging her over to their side.

Tips About Oregon

The Taft convention notebook also gives some interesting advice to his campaign managers about Oregon, as follows:

"Oregon—Insomuch as Dewey won the preferential primary vote, all 12 delegates are pledged to vote for him so long as he has a reasonable chance for the nomination. It should be noted, however, that it is not up to Dewey to release these delegates at any given time, but is a matter for the judgment of each delegate.

"Delegates-at-large—Robert S. Farrell—536 S. W. First ave., Portland—Dewey, Taft second choice close friend of Walter Tooze—father of the late Robert S. Farrell jr., former Secretary of State who was accidentally killed last fall. An elderly man—listens to Idleman, his alternate.

"Phil Metscham—2028 S. W. Clifton st., Portland—Taft—was for Stassen over Dewey—elderly man—chairman of the delegation—former State chairman—defeated candidate for Governor many years ago—hotel business.

"Lamar Tooze—3814 N. W. Thurman st., Portland—was for Stassen—against Dewey, but will stay put on his pledge to Dewey until Dewey is out of it. What he will do then is anybody's guess—is a law partner of Ralph Cake. Cake is probably for Vandenberg and Tooze may follow him—friendly to Taft, Univ. of Oregon—Harvard Law Sch.—former president Oregon Republican Club.

"Second District—Carl Engdahl—317 N. W. Bailey, Portland—Stassen—Taft probably second choice—State Senator—Resolutions Committee—will be Phila. June 15. Walter Tooze will meet him there that day.

"Third District. Tommy Luke, 617 S.W. 6th st., Portland—Dewey—Taft second choice—not too dependable—florist—likes Taft very much—vice chairman of the delegation.

"Robert A. Elliott, 4511 N.E. Prescott st., Portland (business address, care Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Co., United States National Bank Building, Portland)—Stassen's local campaign manager—will be one of the first to break away from the Dewey pledge—will probably go for Vandenberg if that is the setup. Very intelligent and likable young man.

"Mrs. James W. Mott, 1100 Chemeketu st., Portland—Taft, Dewey second choice—widow of former Congressman—will arrive Philadelphia week before convention and will contact the Tafts—if not, they should contact her. Taft knew husband well—secretary of the delegation."

NEW Scientific Treatments Help You to GROW THICKER HAIR

Upon Nature's innate system of growth is based Hair Experts' specialized system . . . a plan that results in thicker hair NATURALLY grown and nurtured to full strength and virility with the old or modern scientific formulae.

First, the scalp is thoroughly and professionally cleansed of its dandruff and other disorders, through special, gentle but effective germicides which penetrate below the skin surface to attack the source of the infection and then reopen clogged passages.

When the basic cause of the scalp trouble is routed, Hair Experts begin the rejuvenating treatments. After energizing the papilla to action, and then creating a fertile "field" for that growth, Hair Experts special formulae (scientifically created by and for them) stimulate the sub-scalp hair growth to normal, natural length, strength and thickness. Then sluggish blood circulation is normalized to flood the hair follicles with life-giving "food" for hair growth. Come in IMMEDIATELY for a free private scalp examination. Relax under our pleasant, professional treatments and care that helps revitalize hair to virile activity.
